TIMES CHANGE! INSULL DEFENSE GOES CLASSICAL

Jury Gets an Earful of Philosophy.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

The Insull mail fraud case, which has had plenty of mathematics, had the new note of philosophy introduced yesterday in the course of the final arguments of five defense attorneys before the jury in Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson's courtroom.

The government's charge that Samuel Insull and 16 co-defendants planned a conspiracy to defraud the public out of $100,000,000 in the sale of Corporation Securities company stock has no more substance than the shadow men in Plato's famous cave allegory on human illusions, according to the defense lawyers.

One wandering into the courtroom for the first time yesterday would have been shocked at the temerity of the government in seeking to send men to prison on "inference piled on inference, guesswork, speculation, theories."

When Did Field Join Plot?

"When did Stanley Field join the so-called conspiracy to cheat his fellow men?" demanded Attorney Frederic Burnham, shaking his finger at the government table. "We haven't got an answer yet. There is no proof, not even a theory, against a name unsullied until the day these charges were brought."

It was Attorney James G. Condon, however, speaking on behalf of four other defendants, who brought the principles of philosophy into the case and entered a new charge against the prosecutors. They were sophists, he said. Something was wrong with their minds. They had copied the specious and adroit reasoning of Protagoras and his school which flourished in the fifth century B. C.

A dishonest attitude of mind was the only way he could account for the fact of his clients being on trial for crime. The defendants were as innocent of evil intent as the blue sky of spring, Mr. Condon said, and the only thing the jury could do was to rectify the great wrong the government had done and send them out as free men.

What a Change Indeed!

Times are changing, indeed, when logic and philosophy form the appeal to a jury in a criminal case. What would be the emotions of the late Charlie Erbstein on beholding such a scene, or the late Pat O'Donnell, or James Hamilton Lewis in his prime as defending lawyer in the Dora MacDonald murder case?

These experts never mentioned Socrates or Plato. No matter what the issue, Erbstein would go after the emotions and the tears, reciting "The House by the Side of the Road" or "The Ballad of Reading Gaol."

Defense Attorney Lewis would not bother about the troublesome facts of the pistol and the dead man, but would take the jurors on an excursion along the slopes of Parnassus, plucking flowers in the innocent meadows of their childhood, picturing the lustrous Dora behind the cold gray stones of prison until the jurors sobbed all over the place.

A Difference in Method.

These gentlemen of the old school would never have missed the opportunity of pointing to the sky in the painting over the jurors' heads in which glows the ineffable light of the dawning star of Bethlehem as the wise men wander in the eastern desert looking for the birthplace of their Lord.

This trial is different. It is, Mr. Condon and Mr. Burnham agreed, one of the most peculiar trials in the history of courts of justice. From their point of view there is no evidence to meet, no dead man and no gun, no plot and no scheme, just a cloud of theories.

The lawyers were actually reduced to guessing as to why their clients had been indicted.

Explanation of Mr. Condon.

Mr. Condon explained it all in this way:

"About 300 years before Christ [he was nearly 150 years behind history in this] there developed the school of Sophists. Socrates saw where this led. He called it an intellectual disease, not a system of ideas. He said it was a disturbed attitude of mind made up by men who were not concerned with the truth, but motivated only by the pleasure of knowledge.

"From that time on, through Plato, Aristotle, the Christian era, St. Thomas Aquinas, there has been a great strug-

SENATE, HOUSE APPROVE BILL AT SPRINGFIELD

New Extra Session May Be Called.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Both houses of the legislature voted today to make the sales tax permanent in Illinois. They approved Gov. Horner's bill which extends indefinitly the 2 per cent levy on retail sales. Republicans objected half-heartedly in the senate and wholeheartedly in the house, but they could not even keep their minorities in line, much less draw support from the Democratic ranks.

Although there was a passage roll call in each chamber, today's action does not complete enactment of the bill. Since one branch of the assembly must approve the other's measures, the plan is to keep the senate here until early Friday to vote upon the house bill. That will complete the work of this special session, and if no cogs are broken in the machinery the assembly will have established some sort of record.

May Set Speed Record.

Passage of a bill in both houses in a total elapsed time of 80 hours has never before been accomplished, the old timers say, and that will be the accomplishment of this session if the sales tax is passed just after midnight tomorrow.

There may be another special session before the next, or 59th, general assembly meets in January. It is understood that, although Gov. Horner hopes to avoid it, the question of relief moneys may have to be taken up before the first of the year. If the federal government does not advance funds for December there will be nothing available to carry on the work of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission.

In this connection it was reported in Springfield that Gov. Horner had an important meeting in Chicago last night with Mayor Kelly, State's Attorney Courtney, County Democratic Chairman P. A. Nash, R. J. Dunham, chairman of the relief commission, and several other Democratic leaders.

Half for Relief Urged.

The story as it was told here was that the Chicago officials wanted the sales tax bill amended so as to insure half the state's collections going for relief purposes and that the governor held out against them.

Collections from the sales tax—about $3,000,000 monthly—have been more than sufficient to wipe out the state tax on real estate. Naturally the governor does not want the latter levy put back. He is said to have told the Chicago leaders that if a portion of the sales tax collections were set aside for relief the constitutionality of the bill might be endangered. At the conclusion of the conference Mayor Kelly is said to have suggested that at the regular session the sales tax might be raised from two to three per cent and the additional one per cent set aside for relief.

This, it was believed, would provide enough funds to supply the state's share of relief costs.

If such a pledge is made to Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins in Washington, it was hoped that the federal government would carry on the relief work during December and probably January, since the relief bill might meet with difficulties.

Wins 80 to 49 in House.

But nothing could stop the sales tax today. The senate passed its bill 30 to 13, the "aye" vote being four more than the necessary majority of 26. In the house 77 votes were needed, and the governor's floor leader, Thomas P. Sinnett of Rock Island, managed to obtain 80 votes. Republicans, with the aid of a few Democrats, polled 49 votes in opposition.

A complete absence of debate marked the senate action. Senator Francis J. Loughran of Chicago asked a roll call on the bill and it proceeded rapidly without explanations of votes.

Four Republican senators joined the Democrats. They were James J. Barbour of Evanston and James B. Leonardo, Daniel A. Serritella, and A. H. Roberts, all of Chicago.

Two Democrats, James O. Monroe of Collinsville, and James C. Mayor of La Harpe, voted against the bill. Party defections were greater in the house.

More Defections in House.

There thirteen Republicans, four of them from Chicago, favored the sales tax, while five Democrats jumped the fence and stood against it. The one downstate Republican to vote for the Least Control of Trade Best, Says Richberg

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—A maximum of coöperation between business, industry, and labor in their relations with each other and a minimum of legislative control by the government were recommended by Donald R. Richberg, executive director of the national emergency council, tonight, in an address.

Giving his personal opinions of broad lines along which recovery from the depression can be best accomplished, Richberg told the Associated Grocery Manufacturers of America that "flexibility of code making" should be the first principle of any permanent legislation to carry out the aims of the NRA.

"The soundness of the fixing of minimum wages and maximum hours for each trade and industry" had been determined, Mr. Richberg said. Without referring directly to organized labor's demands for a national 30 hour work week, he warned that working hours and conditions are best arrived at by employers and employés working together rather than by legislation.

Urges Standard Be Set.

"Dishonest business practices should be proscribed," he said, but trade and industry should first establish their own standard of unfairness before writing mandatory requirements in a code.

He urged the necessity for accurate and comprehensive statistical information "for economic security in an industrial civilization."

Declaring that anti-trust laws were passed "to preserve competition," Mr. Richberg said that business associations should be given greater freedom and suggested the creation of a new body to supervise the associations in a broad way.

"It seems to me reasonable to provide that all trade associations should do business openly and furnish full information concerning their activities to a body which might combine some of the functions and authorities of the administration of the NRA and the federal trade commission," he said.

"Certain activities could be legalized by statute and others forbidden, with provision that in the twilight zone of interpretation a national code administration would be empowered to authorize or to prohibit concerted action. Its decisions should be reviewable—not by an ordinary lawsuit but by an appeal for a declaratory judgment by a court of competent jurisdiction."

Warns of State Control.

He warned that the cartel method of business regulation would surely lead to "state control of industry."

"A democratic people will not tolerate the idea of price fixing by private agreement," he said. "They will insist on either stopping the system or placing it under public control."

In a lengthy discussion of section 7-A of the NRA, dealing with collective bargaining, Mr. Richberg said that the recent Houde case decision apparently led to a misunderstanding that a voting unit of employés could be created without their approval and that then the representative selected by a majority of that voting unit must be accepted as the exclusive representation of all the employés thus compulsorily organized.

"The right of self-organization certainly includes the right of each man to decide for himself with what man he desires to be associated," he asserted.

Richberg did not refer directly to company unions. He said the provisions of section 7A have been misinterpreted and misunderstood by both employer and laborer. As a result of the long struggle between capital and labor in this country, he said, the immediate reaction to the collective bargaining provision "was on the one hand a determination by many established unions to expand their memberships and on the other hand the determination of many employers to prevent unionization of their employés and to forestall it by creating or encouraging local labor organizations."

MURIEL'S CLAIM TO ROCKEFELLER FUND REBUFFED

N. Y. Court Referee Gives Opinion.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Efforts of Mrs. Muriel McCormick Hubbard of Middleton, Conn., to break the $8,500,000 trust fund created for her mother, the late Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick of Chicago, by Mrs. McCormick's father, John D. Rockefeller, apparently were facing defeat here today.

Referee Robert M. Marsh of the New York Supreme court made public an opinion recommending refusal of Mrs. Hubbard's demand for immediate dissolution of the trust fund and denial of her claim for a four-sevenths share, or approximately $4,875,000.

The opinion also recommended that the claims of Edwin D. Krenn, the late Mrs. McCormick's business associate, and his two assignees, Maurice B. Rissman, an architect, and Carl M. Baldwin, assistant superintendent of insurance for Ohio, be dismissed.

Committee Rule Is Upheld.

In effect the referee's opinion held that the terms of administration set up when the trust was formed have not been changed by Mrs. McCormick's death.

The opinion said that the administrative committee created by the original trust indenture should continue in charge of the funds and should perpetuate the trust in the form of three new trusts, each of equal value, for Mrs. McCormick's three children, Muriel, who is the wife of Elisha Dyer Hubbard; Mrs. Mathilde McCormick Oser, who resides in Switzerland, and Fowler McCormick of Chicago.

This administrative committee is headed by John D. Rockefeller Jr. Its other members are Cyrus McCormick, E. Parmelee Prentice, brother-in-law of Mrs. McCormick, and Bertram Cutler and William Richardson, both business associates of John D. Rockefeller Sr.

Ruling of Court Awaited.

The opinion is not the ruling of Judge Edward J. Glennon of the New York Supreme court, to whom the case was assigned when it was filed nearly two years ago. It will not become final until it has received his approval. Attorneys, however, expressed the opinion that the recommendation of Referee Marsh, himself a former Supreme court judge, would be approved by Judge Glennon after it is filed. Thus far only the attorneys in the case have received copies of the referee's opinion.

The trust fund was created in 1917 with 12,000 shares of the stock of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. The elder Rockefeller placed this stock with the Equitable Trust company of New York under an agreement which gave the income to his daughter Edith during her life.

The agreement provided that at Mrs. McCormick's death the principal was to be divided among her children, or her grandchildren if their parents were dead, and certain institutions, in the proportions which she should fix in her will. No other parties were to share in the fund.

Committee Given Powers.

It was also provided in the agreement that if for any reason Mrs. McCormick did not divide the trust principal in her will the division was to be made by the administrative committee which was named by her father. The committee, under those circumstances, was to set up equal trust funds for Mrs. McCormick's children, using its discretion as to the amounts paid out.

The rest of the funds were to be placed in trust for the Rockefeller Foundation, the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, the General Education board, and certain selected charities. The children's trust funds were to be dissolved when all of them had reached the age of 30, the principal to be distributed to each.

One year later a change was made, Mr. Rockefeller revoked the provision which gave Mrs. McCormick the right to dispose of the principal in her will. This change took place with Mrs. McCormick's knowledge and consent. It made operative the provision for distribution of the trust through the committee.

The original 12,000 shares of stock, through declaration of dividends and splitting of shares, has increased to 355,671 shares, it was disclosed at a hearing nearly a month ago. At

SEEKS MORE MONEY THAN WORLD HOLDS IN DAMAGE ACTION

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—George Joseph Goffman, owner of a welding service and machine shop which has been tied up in litigation since a partnership dissolved in 1930, today filed suit in federal District court asking damages totaling $20,555,005,993,703,418,733,025,000 and asks $50 a week in cash.

He names almost as many defendants as his suit asks dollars, the list including the state of California, all the chief state executive officers; the county and city of Los Angeles, all their chief executive officers; the Los Angeles Bar association and all its members and a number of sitting Superior court judges. In his suit he protests against the receiver appointed for his machine shop by the Superior court and, after commenting that he has not been able to get justice because administration of the law in the state and county has been "in the hands of traitors," Goffman asks a federal receiver to replace the present receiver and a federal court order letting him have $50 a week, which will come out of the machine shop assets and not out of his damages, so he can support his family.

British King, Queen Greet Greek Princess

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Seventy-one years ago Alexandra, daughter of King Christian IX. of Denmark—"the sea king's daughter"—arrived in England to become the bride of the prince of Wales, who afterward became Edward VII. of England. Today the great-granddaughter of the same "sea king," appropriately named Marina, arrived in London to become the bride of Alexandra's grandson, the duke of Kent.

Though the bridegroom-to-be now has only a remote chance of succeeding to the throne, the pomp and circumstance of Marina's reception could not have been exceeded if she were in direct line, as was her grand-aunt, to become queen of England and empress of India.

Princess Marina, her father and mother, Prince and Princess Nicolas of Greece; her sisters and her suite arrived from France today in a special packet boat which, in spite of one of the densest fogs in years, made the crossing on time to Dover.

Prince Meets Her at Dover.

The duke of Kent, better known as Prince George, fourth son of King George and Queen Mary of England, met his future duchess at Dover. The royal party then traveled in a special train to London where King George and Queen Mary, the prince of Wales, and the duke and duchess of York greeted and kissed Marina. The princess was then driven in state, despite the choking fog, to Buckingham palace, where she and her family will be guests until the wedding on Nov. 29.

Despite the cold, damp fog which reduced visibility to a few yards, great crowds collected in front of the palace and all along the route between the palace and Victoria station. They cheered enthusiastically first the king and queen and then Marina and the duke, although all they could see was the dim shadows of motor cars passing by.

The wedding will be solemnized in two ceremonies, the first at Westminster Abbey in a Church of England service and the other at Buckingham palace in a Greek Orthodox service.

Plan Much Pageantry.

Preparations are being made for wedding pageantry which will give the British public their fill of pomp and splendor. The famous abbey will be peopled by cabinet ministers, past and present, diplomatic corps, and famous men and women from all over the country as well as royalty. Everywhere will be the brilliance of uniforms and the glint of medals and swords.

According to old English custom, the magnificent gold plate of the Abbey will be displayed upon the white decked altar of the sacrarium, which will contain the high ecclesiastics, the royal family and their guests. Fifty-seven members of royalty are expected to be accommodated in the sacrarium.

The archbishop of Canterbury will officiate at the actual plighting of the troth. At the altar when the bride and groom have advanced there, prayers will be recited by the archbishop of York.

The service according to the Greek Orthodox rites will be held in the chapel of Buckingham palace and will be attended, it is understood, only by actual relatives of the bride and bridegroom.

BLIZZARD FORECAST HERE TODAY; CRAFT ON LAKES WARNED

The first real winter storm, with snow, tumbling temperatures, and high winds, was predicted for Chicago today by Forecaster J. R. Lloyd.

Mr. Lloyd issued storm warnings to all coast guard stations in a special report issued after the regular night forecast. Lake captains were advised to take adequate precautions for a northeast gale on Lakes Michigan, Superior, and Huron north of Alpena, and southeast winds on Lake Huron south of Alpena, and on Lakes Erie and Ontario.

The arrival of high winds here early this morning is expected to start the mercury on its downward path, bringing it to 20 above by nightfall.

Yesterday's maximum temperature was 64 at 5:30 p. m. It was the fourth consecutive day of rainfall, making November to date the second month this year to register an excess of precipitation.

Heavy rains and gales were general yesterday from the Rocky mountains to the Mississippi river. In Memphis 11 inches of rain fell between 11 p. m. Tuesday and 3 p. m. yesterday. Flood conditions prevailed. Cairo, Ill., was drenched by nearly 5 inches in 24 hours.

Shows How Wife Choked Him; Success Surprising

Camden, N. J., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Francis B. Weaver, 73 year old president of the New Jersey state board of tax appeals, choked himself into unconsciousness on the witness stand today at a divorce hearing. Mr. Weaver was using his necktie in a demonstration which, he said, would show how his wife had once choked him. He sank weakly to the floor, gasping. George Jacobs, one of Weaver's attorneys, pulled out a penknife and slit his client's tie, but it was ten minutes before he recovered fully.

The suit in which the referee's opinion was given was instituted by the Chase National bank of New York, which absorbed the Equitable Trust company a short time after Mrs. McCormick's death in Chicago on Aug. 25, 1932. The bank, as trustee, asked that its final accounting be approved and that it be released from the trusteeship.

Defendants named in the petition were the Chicago Title & Trust company as executor and trustee of Mrs. McCormick's estate, all three of Mrs. McCormick's children, the three Rockefeller institutions, Harold F. McCormick, former husband of Mrs. McCormick who was bequeathed a $30,000 annuity, and members of the trust fund committee.

Will of Mrs. McCormick.

When the terms of Mrs. McCormick's will became known it was necessary to amend this petition. She had bequeathed five-twelfths of her estate to Edwin Krenn, who was a close personal friend as well as her associate in the real estate firm of Krenn & Dato. The remainder she divided as follows: four-twelfths to Mrs. Hubbard; two-twelfths to Mrs. Oser, and one-twelfth to Fowler McCormick.

The words used in the will designated these bequests as "fractions of all my estate of every kind and nature, real, personal, and mixed." This phraseology became important in the litigation which followed.

Shortly after Mrs. McCormick's death Krenn assigned all his share of Mrs. McCormick's estate to Rissman and Baldwin in settlement of debts incurred during the operations of Krenn & Dato. The real estate firm was then dissolved.

Thus it became necessary for the Chase National bank to file another petition last February to include Rissman and Baldwin as defendants.

Mrs. Hubbard in Opposition.

Mrs. Oser never filed an answer to the petition, signifying her willingness for the trust committee to administer the fund. Fowler McCormick answered, supporting the petitioner and actively giving support to the committee. Mrs. Hubbard was the only one of the children to demur.

In her answer Mrs. Hubbard made a demand on the court for immediate dissolution of the trust and an order to prevent the administrative committee from setting up the three equal trusts for herself, her sister, and her brother.

Her answer pointed out that the terms of the trust prevent any outside parties such as Krenn or his assignees from participating in the principal. On this premise Mrs. Hubbard demanded that the trust principal be divided among the children in the same proportions that Mrs. McCormick had fixed for them in dividing her estate; that is, four portions to Mrs. Hubbard, two portions to Mrs. Oser, and one portion to Fowler. Mrs. Hubbard's share on this basis would amount approximately to nearly five million dollars.

Basis of Daughter's Claim.

This claim was based on the contention that "by implication" Mrs. McCormick had directed the division of the trust principal. Mrs. Hubbard contended that her mother had not had the right in 1918 to sign away her powers to dispose of the fund in her will. Mrs. McCormick's use of the phrase, "all of my estate of every kind and nature, real, personal, and mixed," clearly indicated her intent to divide the trust, Mrs. Hubbard contended.

To this argument Referee Marsh in his opinion replied that the "instrument of renunciation" which Mrs. McCormick signed with her father and the administrative committee in 1918 had forfeited any power she might otherwise have had to dispose of the trust fund. He declared that the terms of the trust "must govern its management and disposition."

Following Mrs. Hubbard's opposition to the bank's petition Rissman and Baldwin also filed intervening petitions. They asserted that stock dividends apportioned in 1917 and in 1929 to the Standard Oil stock held in the trust should not have been added to the principal of the trust. They asserted that these dividends should have been looked upon as "earnings" and as such should have been paid to Mrs. McCormick.

Decides Against Assignees.

Their plans, if sustained, would have materially increased Mrs. McCormick's estate and at the same time would have augmented Krenn's share of the estate, which they, as assignees, would receive. It was estimated that between two and four million dollars was involved in this question.

Referee Marsh, following similar decisions in the New York courts, held that stock dividends should be classed as principal and added to the trust.

One clause in Mrs. McCormick's will was the cause of much wrangling during the hearings before the referee. That was the provision that if any of the children contested the will the contestant's share of the estate should revert to Krenn.

Referee Marsh in his opinion said that Krenn has no right to any portion of the trust fund and that Mrs. McCormick could not have bequeathed him any part of it, even though she had made the bequest directly.

bill was Thomas J. Stack of Peoria. Despite their small numbers the Republicans tried to make up in verbal opposition what they lacked in voting strength. They caucused before the bill was called and agreed that all attending the caucus would be bound by the will of the majority. A majority voted to oppose the bill, so the entire 48 in the caucus were pledged against it.

Leroy M. Green of Rockford and Frank A. McCarthy of Elgin drew most fire from their attacks. Green declared that the sales tax was "a clever means of extracting twice as much from the people as the general property tax." He read from the platform adopted at the Republican state convention last summer that portion which declared against the sales tax and informed his colleagues that "every Republican who votes for this bill has ceased to deserve to be called a Republican." The Republican stand against the tax was directly responsible for the success of their state ticket in downstate counties at the last election, Green insisted.

Sees Burden on Poor.

McCarthy declared that the sales tax was a burden on "the poor man who makes $700 or $800 a year." Those people spend all their income on necessities, he continued, "and are therefore taxed on all their income."

The rich, McCarthy declared, pay a tax on only 15 to 20 per cent of their income. "They escape the sales tax, while the poor pay."

Clinton Searle of Rock Island, H. D. Sparks of Shelbyville, and Elmer Wilson of Kankakee were other Republicans who fought passage. Floor Leader Sinnett, F. W. Lewis of Robinson, and Howard L. Doyle of Decatur upheld the bill from the Democratic aisles.

The bill passed, the house adjourned after paying tribute to Speaker Arthur Roe of Vandalia, who retired this year.

PUSH NUDE SOPH INTO A SORORITY; SUSPEND FROSH

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—William S. Sargent, Findlay, O., a freshman engineer in the University of Michigan, was suspended from the university today by a faculty committee on student conduct. The action was taken for disorderly conduct in connection with the annual freshman-sophomore fall games.

Sargent was a member of a group of freshmen who disrobed a sophomore and turned him loose in a sorority house. Sargent broke through a rear window of the house and opened the front door to allow the freshmen to push the nude second year man in.

Many of the 22 co-eds who live in the house were downstairs at the time and ran screaming into the upper quarters, one of them telephoning Joseph A. Bursley, dean of students and chairman of the faculty committee which took the action today.

COURT AWARDS VANDERBILT GIRL TO MRS. WHITNEY

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Justice John F. Carew signed an order today which he entitled a "final disposition" of the struggle between Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney over Mrs. Vanderbilt's 10 year old daughter, Gloria. Custody was taken from the mother and Mrs. Whitney, the aunt, was made legal custodian.

GLORIA VANDERBILT.

Mrs. Vanderbilt, in traveling constantly between New York, London, Paris, and other places, where she enjoyed a round of parties with persons of her own age, while the child followed in the care of a nurse, had provided a life for the child the court today pronounced "in every way unfit, destructive of health, neglectful of her moral, spiritual, and mental education," and which resulted in the detriment and injury to the child.

By contrast the court declared the child's life since 1932, when her mother left her with Mrs. Whitney, with whom the child told Justice Carew she wished to remain, "a fit life, which resulted in improvement physically and mentally and has tended to promote the child's welfare and happiness."

Evidence Against Mother.

In consequence of these two findings and also of a related finding that Mrs. Vanderbilt's "mode of life has continued," the court declared that her "privilege to have the custody of her child has been overcome by the evidence offered by both sides."

Justice Carew decreed that the child now becomes a ward of the Supreme court. In his order, the mother becomes simply "the relator," the person who lost the case, whom the child is to visit on week-ends and on Christmas day, accompanied by a governess provided by Mrs. Whitney.

In deference to Mrs. Vanderbilt's insistence that she wanted her child back to make sure she would be brought up in the Roman Catholic faith, Justice Carew ordered a Roman Catholic governess for her "to be provided by Mrs. Whitney as custodian of the child."

Goes to Parent in July.

During school vacations, the child is to spend the entire month of July with her mother unless, according to the order, "cause shall be shown to the contrary."

This arrangement is to continue until the child is of age, "unless any party thereto upon good cause and on notice to all other parties, shall apply for other directions."

Mrs. Vanderbilt said through her counsel, Nathan Burkan, and through her sister, Mrs. Benjamin Thaw, that she would appeal immediately to a higher court.

WOMAN FOUND SHOT; DIES.

Found unconscious in a chair in her home with a bullet wound in her temple yesterday, Mrs. Anna Kozlowski, 30 years old, 7956 Colfax avenue, died several hours later in the South Shore hospital. Her husband, John, said she had been despondent.

$700,000 IN BOGUS MONEY SEIZED; HOLD WOMAN AND 9 MEN

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Climaxing three months of investigation, a dozen secret service agents and three New York detectives made raids today in this city, Newark and Tenafly, N. J. When their work was over, nine men and a woman, charged with being counterfeiters, were in custody, and $700,000 in counterfeit bills had been seized.

The counterfeit money, excellently engraved, was said to have been passed mainly in New York City.

In addition to the bogus money a quantity of counterfeiting apparatus was reported seized. Secret service officials in Washington said the raid marked the breaking up of one of the largest counterfeiting rings uncovered in recent years.

'PENNY ARCADES' RAIDED FOR EVIL PICTURES; 3 HELD

Two "penny arcades" were raided yesterday by agents of the Illinois Vigilance association, 105 North Clark street, with the aid of police, resulting in the arrest of three men on charges of possessing obscene pictures, and the confiscation of five motion picture films on "art" subjects.

The places visited by the raiding squad, headed by the Rev. Philip W. Yarrow, Vigilance association superintendent were Burton's Arcade, 430 South State street, and the Sportland Arcade, 24 South Halsted street. In the former Charles E. Timroth, 418 South Lombard avenue, Oak Park, who said he was a motion picture operator, was arrested, and in the latter Nick Matt, 27 years old, 737 Madison street, and Perry Kusis, 52 years old, 24 South Halsted street, were seized. Timroth is said to be operating both places on a percentage basis. Kusis and Matt were held as the owners of the Halsted street place.

The raids were conducted under a search warant issued on Tuesday by Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court.

DRAWS PISTOLS SO QUICKLY THAT TWO GO TO JAIL

The readiness with which Robert Coughlin, 18 years old, produced and flourished two pistols last night led him and an older companion, George Winter, 33 years old, of 1222 West 63d street, into a police cell.

Coughlin, who lives at 4132 West Adams street, was riding with Winter in the latter's automobile, which he still operates despite the fact that he is on the relief rolls. Near 63d and Elizabeth streets the car brushed fenders with that of John Beale, 6208 South Elizabeth street.

Beale got out of his machine to investigate the damage and found himself looking at Coughlin's two pistols and hearing advice for him to "beat it." Before he could comply Policemen Lawrence Smaley and John Ryan of the Englewood station, who were passing by, walked up.

In addition to Coughlin's two guns they found one on Winter and two more in Winter's house, to which he tried to flee on foot.

ONE OF ISLAND DEAD IS NAMED; OTHER MYSTERY

Fate of Baroness in Doubt Near Galapagos.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 21.—(AP)—A flicker of light was thrown today on the double death mystery of the Galapagos Islands.

Radio reports to the Associated Press indicated that one of the two persons who died of hunger and thirst on Marchena Island was Alfred Rudolph Lorenz of Paris, a companion of the missing "Empress" of Charles Island, 160 miles away.

But the name of the second person, a larger man, became even a deeper puzzle for the description radioed by Capt. Manuel Rodriguez of the Tuna Clipper Santa Amaro did not tally with any person known to have been one of the little group on those equatorial islands.

Baroness' Fate Mystery.

What then has become of the "Empress," Baroness Eloise Bonsquet de Wagner, and Robert Philipson?

Apparently they left Charles Island last July, shortly before Dr. Friedrich Ritter, German nudist, wrote a letter saying something had happened that he hesitated to put into words.

Capt. Rodriguez, whose crew found the bodies last Saturday said by wireless the larger of the two men found "was about six feet, bald head with small tuft of brown hair in back."

Those familiar with the names of all the persons on the archipelago said the second man might be a Norwegian fisherman named Nuggerood, but the description did not fit him.

Believed to Be Lorenz.

"The other body was fifty feet away," Rodriguez reported.

"It was five and a half feet long, very slight, with thick hair, four inches long. It wore pants, cut or torn off at knee."

"That sounds like Lorenz," said W. Charles Swett, chief officer of the exploration cruiser Velero III here. The archipelago is 500 miles off the coast of Ecuador.

"Reports that a packet of letters from Margaret Wittman, of Charles Island, were found near the body, suggested that Lorenz might have taken them for mailing. He apparently was seeking to get back to Europe."

WITH THE coming of Old Heidelberg Inn and Rathskeller to Randolph St., Chicago has taken on new importance among cities of the world renowned for their achievement in restaurant operation.

FOR OLD Heidelberg Inn and its Rathskeller are as unique, in food, service and environment, as the foremost restaurants of Paris, Berlin, London, Vienna and Rome. As in so many of the large, world-famed restaurants abroad, the prices here are as moderate as those you would pay elsewhere, for foods at all comparable.

Under THIS one roof are two distinct types of service, from 11 a. m. to well beyond midnight. On the main floor is an atmosphere of pleasant repose, with a definite touch of distinction in the service. In the Rathskeller, favored especially by men, at noon, the surroundings are, at that time, business-like and the service is as brisk as is consistent with the high standards maintained.

THE PRICES in the Rathskeller represent, we believe, the best values obtainable in all Chicago. For instance, any noon you may have most delicious entrees there for as little as 45c.

ACT CAUTIOUSLY TO INVESTIGATE BUTLER'S 'COUP'

Furor Causes Inquiry to Walk Softly.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Appalled by the furor resulting from charges by Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler, United States marine corps, retired, that a gigantic Wall street plot was afoot to set up a Fascist dictatorship in the United States, a congressional committee today proceeded cautiously with its inquiry.

Out of the comic opera atmosphere enveloping the investigation came one report that the CCC camp at Elk Ridge, Md., was to have been the concentration point for the army of 500,000 men which was to march on Washington, depose President Roosevelt, and set up Gen. Butler as a dictator, according to the general's own assertions.

Capt. Samuel Glazier, commander of the camp, was a witness yesterday, but Representative John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, chairman of the investigating committee, denied that Capt. Glazier's testimony had anything to do with Gen. Butler's charges. Capt. Glazier, in Baltimore, supported this assertion.

Even Dickstein Is Careful.

Both Representative McCormack and Representative Samuel Dickstein, vice chairman, of the lower east side, New York, like to see their names in the papers, their best friends admit, but the wholesale publicity which followed publication of Gen. Butler's charges caused them today to adopt a very conservative attitude.

Both insisted they regarded the charges of Gen. Butler with the utmost concern, but they dropped the plot inquiry for a time today to take up the stirring question of alleged communistic activities among workers in the fur industry.

The proceedings were, as usual, conducted in private. This star chamber aspect of the investigation has been altered by the selection by Gen. Butler of the New York Evening Post, a newspaper with radical tendencies published by David Stern, friend of President Roosevelt, as his official spokesman.

Gen. Butler revealed his story to the Post yesterday, thereby wounding the sensibilities of the two congressmen who, it was said, had planned to get a little dignified front page publicity for themselves out of a statement concerning the general's testimony. They are getting the publicity anyway, but the dignity is somewhat lacking.

Recall MacGuire for Quiz.

The charges of Gen. Butler mentioned Gerald P. MacGuire, bond salesman connected with a Broadway concern, as the man who approached him with a proposition to lead the army of half a million war veterans upon the capital. MacGuire, who testified briefly at yesterday's meeting, was recalled for another examination today. He and the others mentioned as concerned in the plot have ridiculed the charges.

MacGuire testified for about three hours today and was ordered to return for further questioning Friday. The inquiry will be suspended today while the committee investigates reported communistic activities among left wing labor unions.

An attorney for MacGuire told reporters that his client had denied before the committee that he had ever had any connection with any Fascist organization of any sort, or that he had ever been the cashier for any Fascist group.

Finds Contradictory Points.

Representative Dickstein said he was not impressed by MacGuire's denial of the general's charges.

Back home in Newton Square, Pa., Gen. Butler issued a statement reiterating the seriousness of his charges. He denied, however, that he had mentioned the name of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, former NRA administrator, or J. P. Morgan & Co. in his testimony, as related in some newspaper accounts.

"I was glad to go before the committee for two reasons," said Gen. Butler, again speaking through the New York Post. "First, I know that my name has been bandied about as the leader of a Fascist movement in America and I wanted to go to the highest governmental authority and show conclusively that such reports were wholly erroneous.

"Second, I wanted the government and the public to understand that at least one of these movements was being seriously undertaken and that, although it had not yet reached the point where it could have overthrown our government, it was a distinct menace to democratic institutions."

Publicity Best Weapon.

"There is no doubt in my mind that there is a potential menace in these movements unless they are exposed through publicity," he said.

"While I am inclined to minimize the danger of the movement as it was outlined to me by MacGuire, it must be kept in mind that all of Europe minimized Hitler a few years before he set up his dictatorship."

Commenting upon the denial of his charges by MacGuire and others, Gen. Butler remarked:

"Hell, you're not surprised they deny it, are you? What they really have to say they'll say before the committee."

In reviewing his conversations with MacGuire and Robert Sterling Clark, a New York broker, Gen. Butler said he had never been offered money directly by Clark.

Clark, a New York broker at present in France for his health, was quoted in Paris dispatches today as saying that he had urged Gen. Butler to "use his influence in favor of sound money and against inflation," but strongly denied that he had sponsored a Fascist movement. He declared he would take action for libel against any person accusing him in such a connection.

In Philadelphia tonight, Gen. Butler said that 41 Fascist movements, beside the one he exposed, had sought to induce him to lead them. Most of them "smacked" he said, "of dictatorship," and many were just racketeer organizations which saw an opportunity to cash in by selling uniforms and collecting dues.

"In the future, if any such organization uses my name," he asserted, "the public will know that it is done without my consent and in complete disregard of my beliefs and my record."

STATE, HIS DOCTORS TEST HAUPTMANN; NORMAL, ONE SAYS

Flemington, N. J., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann, Lindbergh kidnap-slaying suspect, today was given a thorough physical and mental examination in the Hunterdon county jail by two physicians for the state, Dr. Barclay Fuhrmann and Dr. George Henry, and by a defense physician, Dr. F. A. Thomas.

The examination lasted an hour and a half. Dr. Thomas, on whose insistence the examination was so thorough, said Hauptmann appeared to be in good health and gave no indication he was mentally deranged. On the contrary, Dr. Thomas said, the prisoner showed he was possessed of normal temperament and an excellent memory and understanding, particularly of his youth and early manhood in Germany.

A report of the examination was submitted to Sherif John H. Curtiss.

"The patient has a furtive look," said the report in part, "and there is inability to meet squarely the eye of the physician. This may indicate mental weakness, morbid suspicion, and intention to deceive, timidity, or bashfulness."

THREE BOYS FIND HOLDUP VICTIM IS SCHOOLMATE

Three high school students venturing into the profitless career of crime made a tactical error last Saturday night. They selected as a victim of their strong-arm robbery a fellow student at the Sullivan High school, Stanley Berg, 17 years old, 1350 Estes avenue, a junior.

They waylaid young Berg at 1437 Greenleaf avenue, when he made a delivery of a bottle of liquor and $2 change in answer to a fake call to the Cole pharmacy at 1355 Lunt avenue, where he is employed after school hours. When the boys realized their mistake, they pleaded with Berg not to tell on them.

Berg wavered several days between public duty and school loyalty but yesterday he informed the police, who arrested the trio at their homes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The treasury department's drive against tax evaders went into reverse today when the bureau of internal revenue allowed a Democratic national committeeman to settle his tax case for a dime on the dollar.

W. T. Kemper, Democratic national committeeman from Missouri, was the beneficiary of the treasury's tax compromise. Some years ago when a Republican administration controled the treasury the government filed a tax claim of $777,443 against Kemper. Today a Democratic administration let him off after he paid $80,776, roughly one-tenth of the claim.

Comes on Heels of Drive.

The compromise of Democrat Kemper comes on the heels of a purported government drive against income tax evaders. Thus far the drive has hit many notable Republicans, especially Andrew W. Mellon, former secretary of the treasury, and Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.].

Basis of the government's claim was that Kemper, a powerful Kansas City banker, as well as national committeeman, had failed to pay sufficient income tax on certain transactions in Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Railway company stock.

Pleads Ignorance of Details.

"I don't know anything about it, except that it was one of the cases which we didn't think we could win," Robert Jackson, general counsel of the bureau of internal revenue, said, when asked why the case was compromised by the government. Jackson said he knew nothing of the settlement.

4 Children Carried Down Ladders as Home Burns

Four children of the family of Encevio Alvarez, 1025 Blue Island avenue, were carried down ladders to safety last night when fire attacked the three story building at that address. The Alvarez family lived on the third floor. The fire apparently began in a rubbish heap in the basement and gutted the first floor, occupied by the Christiano & Katenacci printing shop. In addition to the Alvarez family, that of Joe Mosco, living on the second floor, was also forced to flee to the street.

Hunt Records of Deals Revealed by Youth.

The offices of Dave Barry, Inc., at 123 West Madison street, and of the W. W. Ehlers Investment company at 1 North La Salle street were raided yesterday by Lieut. Charles Welling of the detective bureau, who is assisting Assistant State's Attorney Vernon Thompson in an investigation of the theft of $54,000 from the Amalgamated Trust and Savings bank.

Four men found in the offices were taken into custody and a number of records bearing on the business of the two concerns were seized.

Nine Now in Custody.

Already held in connection with the bank fraud are Dave Barry, who refereed the Dempsey-Tunney fight in 1927; Otto Van Derck, 23 year old bank clerk who has confessed his part in the swindle; Joseph Baiata, notorious ex-convict and Barry's business partner; Abraham Karatz, 6807 Sheridan road, once an attorney in St. Paul, Minn., and W. W. Ehlers, 51 year old head of the investment company, admittedly a dummy concern.

Those arrested yesterday are Philip Baiata, 32 years old, 2034 North Lamon avenue, brother of Joseph; Frank Bianco, 19 years old, and James Bianco, 18 years old, his brother, of 3922 Flournoy street, and Raymond Campagna, 41 years old, 3837 Morton avenue, Brookfield.

Barry Fidgets in Cell.

Barry, who insists that he knew nothing of the conduct of Dave Barry, Inc., and of Dave Barry Enterprises by his partner, Baiata, was held in the detective bureau throughout the day.

"I never knew there were so many seconds in a minute," said the man whose long count in the championship battle is still argued vehemently by sports fans.

A writ of habeas corpus was requested for Barry yesterday by Attorney W. W. Smith. Arguments on the writ will be heard by Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court today.

Verifying Youth's Confession.

Assistant State's Attorney Vernon Thompson said that his work yesterday was intended to verify the statements made in his confession by Van Derck.

The youth said that at Baiata's orders he allowed checks to go through for much more than Barry's balances. Besides raiding the offices, Mr. Thompson visited all the banks in which Baiata or Barry had accounts.

Today Mr. Thompson expects to look into Van Derck's assertions that part of the stolen money was to be used by Baiata and his associates in buying control of the stock of the Abraham Lincoln Life Insurance company of Springfield, Ill.

Insurance Men to Talk.

"I have been informed by their attorney that Gustav Lindquist, president of the company, and Hayden Sanders, terasurer, will call at my office tomorrow to tell what they know of the insurance company purchase," the prosecutor said. "So far we have only the statements of Van Derck and Ehlers to go on."

Mr. Lindquist's attorney, Frank E. McAllister, went to Springfield yesterday. He said that the company president, who has not been at his office since Saturday, was almost distracted by the turn events had taken and was anxious to show that he had nothing to do with any plot of Baiata's.

He will be asked to explain a check for $25,000, issued by the insurance company to Ehlers on an account in the Amalgamated bank.

Seeks to "Clear Record."

Van Derck, who confessed because he wished to clear his record before getting married at Thanksgiving time, accompanied Mr. Thompson on his investigating tour yesterday. He declared he was anxious to help in any way he could. The girl he was to have married is Miss Willa Kriz, 1334 Bryn Mawr avenue.

Besides the alleged participants in the plot the police are holding Mrs. Florence Omer, blonde hostess in the Barry saloon at 122 West Madison street. She was arrested early Tuesday with Baiata.

Baiata's long record includes the looting of banks in Warren, Mass., and Philadelphia, and the Niagara Life Insurance company of Buffalo, N. Y. These swindles, it is related, netted him more than $450,000.

He served terms in the Atlanta federal penitentiary and in the Massachusetts state prison, both for the wrecking of the First National bank of Warren.

ROBBERY SUSPECTS

Three youths, who came to Chicago recently from Hartford, Conn., were held by Englewood police last night when a telegram from the east indicated they were wanted in Hartford for robbery. They are Vito Roman, 19 years old; Frank Fernino, 26 years old, and Harold Vassar, 20 years old. They were captured when they quarreled in a room at the Englewood hotel, 6311 Parnell avenue, and Roman was shot in the leg by one of his companions.

BOGAN SAYS HIGH SCHOOLS ARE TO REGAIN STANDING

The 18 Chicago high schools, warned last spring by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools that they would lose accredited standing unless they changed their standards, will meet North Central requirements this year, according to William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools.

"When the report criticising the schools was issued," Mr. Bogan said yesterday, "the association admitted that improvements were then in progress and that the rapid change of ten junior high schools to senior high schools largely accounted for the difficulties.

"Now we have completed or will complete before the new semester five new high schools, which should relieve overcrowding. In addition the board of education is contemplating a comprehensive building program.

"The board has added 103 new teachers to the staf to reduce the day school load, and added 350 teachers to the evening school staf. Day school teachers are no longer permitted to teach in evening schools."

CAROL IS PIQUED; GETS NO BID TO ROYAL WEDDING

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Nov. 21.—(AP)—King Carol, it was learned today, resents a royal slight offered him by the king and queen of Great Britain through their failure to invite him to the wedding of Princess Marina and the duke of Kent [Prince George].

Carol was said by friends to feel that since the British rulers invited Princess Helen, his estranged wife, to attend the wedding, royal etiquet required them to ask him also. Although Carol is Marina's uncle, he is not sending her a wedding present.

The Rumanian king, friends asserted, feels doubly piqued because the British royal family also ignored his sister, Princess Elizabeth, whose husband, the former King George of Greece, has been invited to the London nuptials. This attitude toward Carol was taken as a fresh indication of the widening breach between the British king and the Rumanian king.

Gunman Warns Passersby as Pal Loots Store Window

While one of a trio of three thieves stood by with a shotgun to warn off inquisitive passersby and another waited in a nearby automobile, the third smashed the window of the Gordon-Hirsch & Co. store, 332 West Van Buren street, and escaped with cloth valued at $400 last night. The three then escaped in the waiting machine.

5 MINUTE DELAY COSTING COUNTY $18,700 A WEEK

Nurses Homeless; Big Lawsuit Threatened.

A five minute delay in opening bids last Oct. 8 for the furnishing of the recently completed 17 story Cook County Nurses' home has started a train of events which now involves the county board in a legal tangle and a violent dispute with local Public Work administration officials and with members of the citizens' advisory committee for the home.

The board is threatened not only with a lawsuit for $133,077 but with the loss of needed PWA cash, and 900 nurses of the county hospital staf are being kept out of their new home as a result of the mixup. Maintenance of the nurses in a dozen small hotels, rooming houses and residences in the neighborhood of the hospital is costing the county $18,700 a week. The dispute already has delayed their transfer to the new home for six weeks.

Facts Revealed at Meeting.

The whole affair came to light yesterday at a special meeting of the public service committee of the board. Present were C. M. Osburn, state engineer for the PWA; Mrs. Bruce MacLeish, chairman of the citizens' committee, all the board members save President Emmett Whealan, and several attorneys.

Two months ago the board was informed that the building was in shape to begin furnishing. Bids were sought and the board, at the suggestion of the citizens' committee, fixed the hour of 1 o'clock on the afternoon of Oct. 8 as the time at which all bids should be opened.

However, as Commissioner Grace Fleming, chairman of the public service committee, mournfully explained yesterday when she outlined the "case history," there was a delay of five minutes in opening the bids. During that interval representatives of Marshall Field & Co. entered with a bid.

This was opened with the other bids and found to be lowest of all at a contract price of $130,279 for the job.

Submitted to Committee.

The matter subsequently was submitted to the public service committee. Mrs. MacLeish and other citizens' committee members recommended the acceptance of the Marshall Field & Co. bid. State's Attorney Courtney was consulted, and he ruled that the board might accept the low bid at its own discretion even though the bid was submited after the hour set for opening of the bids.

Benjamin F. Goldstein, the attorney designated by the PWA authorities to oversee all expenditures in connection with the loan, did not approve this course. In a written opinion he informed the board that the Marshall Field bid could not be considered the lowest because it was submitted too late. He recommended that the contract go to the lowest bidder submitted at one o'clock.

Let to Second Lowest.

Following his opinion, the board, on Nov. 7, let the contract to Mandel Brothers, Newton-Holt, and Carson Pirie Scott & Co., all of whom had joined in submitting a bid of $133,077. On Tuesday a motion to reconsider this contract was voted down, thus giving this contract binding force.

Yesterday Mr. Osburn informed the board members that his own attorney, W. O. Matthews, has held that the Field contract should have been approved as the low bid despite the fact that it was 5 minutes late. He announced that the federal government will not supply money to fulfill the contract the board now has made. He said that Attorney Matthews did not believe that the Field bid, merely because it was a few minutes late, could be ignored.

It was decided finally that Mr. Osburn's attorney will consult with Mr. Goldstein and report back in a few days.

FIRST 1933 BILLS FOR LOOP REALTY TAXES SENT OUT

The first instalment of 1933 tax bills for valuable loop property in the territory bounded by the Chicago river, Lake Michigan, and Roosevelt road, was placed in the mail last night by County Treasurer Thomas D. Nash. This is the first time the real estate bills have been ready before the personal property tax bills. Payment of the 3,000 bills sent out is due on Jan. 1. The second instalment will follow in six months.

The total taxes involved in the bills mailed yesterday amount to $17,263,074 on an assessed valuation of $265,994,735. This represents a 17 per cent decrease in taxes, on an assessed valuation 30 million dollars lower.

Chief Clerk Thomas F. Gahan announced that the largest bills in the district were for the Palmer house, $350,032, and the Stevens hotel, $261,018. Bills will be sent out in batches until all have been placed in the mail.

FRANCO-ITALIAN PARLEYS SEEN AS MOVE FOR PEACE

Jugo-Slavs Demand Probe of King's Murder.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Nov. 21.—Peace or war in Europe within another year may depend on the outcome of the conversations toward an Italo-French rapprochement initiated last night between Premier Mussolini and French Ambassador Charles Pineton de Chambrun.

The Italians were silent today about what was discussed in the conference. Ambassador de Chambrun was willing to reveal only that he and Il Duce discussed the possibilities for a Franco-Italian entente.

Diplomatic circles of Paris and Rome assert the meeting dealt chiefly with the question of responsibility for the murder of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia. A second interest of the French is how far Mussolini will go in backing Hungarian treaty revision claims.

Revolves on Hungary.

The support Italy gives Hungarian territorial reclamation is the keystone of the whole problem of a rapprochement. French diplomats holding there can be no Franco-Italian agreement until Italy ceases backing the Hungarians. On this also depends the possibility of an Italian agreement with Jugo-Slavia.

There have been no signs recently that Mussolini intends to desert Hungary and this has served to harden the Jugo-Slav attitude on demands for a showdown on the murder of her king.

Jugo-Slavia's memorandum, which is to be submitted to the league of nations, chiefly blames the Hungarians for fomenting the murder. It is understood the Jugo-Slavs hold Italy to be equally involved and only because of the pressure of other powers was the Jugo-Slav accusation against Italy suppressed. Moreover the Jugo-Slavs charge Italy with maintaining three camps for Croat refugees with the idea of supporting the Croat independence movement.

Jugo-Slavs Press Inquiry.

These camps, the Jugo-Slavs charge, are within 100 miles of Rome, in the towns of Fontaccho, San Demetrio, and San Lorenzo, which are near Aquila, capital of Abruzzi province.

The Jugo-Slavs, it was learned here, will not be put off on having an investigation by the league. They point out that eleven years ago Mussolini, for the killing of an Italian general and four other army officers at Janina by Greek bandits, sent warships to bombard Corfu. It is added that the Jugo-Slavs are determined, if the league takes no action, to settle matters themselves.

This gives rise to the danger that on the occasion of the next frontier incident the Jugo-Slavs may march troops into Hungary, which it is realized everywhere would set off the imminent European conflagration. In that case, would Mussolini back his friends, the Hungarians? Would France side with her allies, the Jugo-Slavs? And what would Germany do?

SUES FOR WRIT TO END CASLOW SCRIP BUSINESS

Suit was filed in the Superior court yesterday against Winfield H. Caslow, head of the Caslow Recovery Scrip organization, to restrain him from issuing more of his "scrip." The suit also asked for the appointment of a receiver to conserve what assets remain for the redemption of the scrip certificates.

The organization was formed more than a year ago by Caslow, who publishes Caslow's Weekly at 510 North Dearborn street, to stimulate business by issuing the certificates to circulate as money. According to the plan the certificates would be given to needy persons. Each certificate would buy $1 worth of merchandise. After affixing a 2 cent "recovery stamp" purchased from the Caslow organization the merchant would pass the certificate on to the next merchant.

When 54 stamps were affixed to the certificate the organization would redeem the certificate for $1. It is said that nearly 4,000 merchants agreed to the plan and that $19,000 worth of stamps had been sold.

Thomas Loach, a garage owner, who filed the suit through the law firm of Sabath, Perlman, Goodman and Rein, alleges that he is unable to redeem or "pass on" 38 certificates for which he has given $38 in merchandise.

While the ballot of 1,112 employés of the city's broad gauge interurban system was being taken in a poll conducted by the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, 3,000 employés of Los Angeles Railway company also voted to strike.

The company served notice it would not accept any pay increase order signed by the arbitration board unless that committee also would provide increased revenues to meet increased operating costs.

Austria on Powder Keg, Nazis Doomed, Say Refugees Here

Austria a Pawn

AUSTRIA, with its less than seven million people, has become the pivotal point in European politics, Dr. Julius Deutsch, an exile from Vienna, told Socialist sympathizers of Chicago at a mass meeting last night at Orchestra hall.

DR. JULIUS DEUTSCH.

Dr. Deutsch is a former Austrian minister of war and leader of the revolt last February in which he was wounded, losing one of his eyes.

"We are caught between the Fascist powers of Germany and Italy and surrounded by the neighboring states of the little entente," he said. "The attitude manifested toward us is that of a powerful empire toward one of its colonies.

Between Two Fires.

"On one side is Hitler, struggling to bring the German speaking Austrians under his Nazi rule. On the other side is Mussolini, who, he said, actually dominates Austria at present. In the center, in wildest confusion, are the Austrians themselves, many of whom are opposed to their present dictatorship.

"Hitler wants us because we are German," he declared. "Mussolini wants us as a military bridge to Hungary. And we, under our dictatorship, have disorder and constant civil war. Our economic life is ruined and our public finances bankrupt.

"Armament Fever" Reigns.

"In addition, there is daily fear lest the intensified political antagonism results in another explosion. All of Europe is suffering from armament fever. One small accident and the powder keg again may explode. And at present the two most likely points for such an explosion are Austria and the Saar."

To stave off such a disaster he advocated the neutralization of Austria by the league of nations and the return to it of a "sane governmental system."

Following his lecture he took up a collection to continue the underground work of the now illegal Socialist party. He will speak again tonight in Mandel hall at the University of Chicago.

Calls Nazis "Insane"

CHARGING that Nazi leaders are "morally insane," Gerhart Seger, world war aviator and former member of the German reichstag, told a thousand auditors at the Standard Club last night that Hitlerism in Germany cannot survive.

He spoke under the auspices of the Community Council of the Jewish Charities of Chicago, and told something of his own experiences when he was a political prisoner for six months in the Oranienburg concentration camp, before he escaped.

GERHART SEGER.

"10,000 Fighting Planes Built."

"Already some 10,000 fighting planes have been constructed, and 5,000 employés in factories are working night and day to complete others. War plans are even extended into the field of education, and the youth of Germany is being brought up in preparation for the next war."

Turning to the subject of last summer's "purging" reign of terror in Germany, Seger charged that 1,186 persons had been slaughtered for political reasons. Seventy-seven was the number given by Hitler in his official statements.

Seger went on to declare that there are now fifty-one concentration camps in Germany similar to the one where he was held, and that 41,000 persons are held in them as political prisoners.

Exceed Bismarck's Total.

In twelve months, he declared, the Nazis have surpassed the great total of political prisoners incarcerated in twelve years of Bismarckian rule.

Herr Seger will speak this evening at Northwestern university, and yesterday, before his talk at the Standard club, he spoke before the Socialist club at the University of Chicago.

He has been in the United States on his present visit for three weeks, and arrived in Chicago yesterday on the Twentieth Century Limited.

HUEY'S CENSORSHIP OVER L. S. U. PAPER LIFTED BY 'STRIKE'

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 21.—(AP)—A threat by the staf of the Reveille, Louisiana State university student publication, to resign because of asserted "censorship" by Senator Huey P. Long, resulted in lifting of the "Kingfish" edict, Jesse H. Cutrer of Kentwood, editor, said today.

Long last week was reported to have "stopped the presses," placed guards at the printing plant, and caused elimination from the paper of a student's letter criticizing him for naming Abe Mickla, star football player, a "state senator" in a burlesque campus election.

An elaborate mock induction into office ceremony had been planned by the senate on the opening day of the special session of the legislature last week, but Mickal failed to appear after Coach "Biff" Jones of L. S. U. team consulted with Long.

The Reveille editor said Dean James F. Broussard, acting president of the university, told him a Baton Rouge newspaper woman named to "censor" the publication "had been removed and that the censorship had been ended."

FRENCH AIR CHIEF CALLS GERMAN PLANES SUPERIOR

Asks $230,000,000 to Build New Fleet.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Minister of Air Victor Denain told France today Germany's planes are "swifter and more modern" and asked 3,500,000,000 francs [about $230,000,000] to make the French air force superior.

"Since Goering [Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Adolf Hitler's minister of air] came to power, Germany has a military air fleet available and proclaims it," Denain told the chamber air committee. "This air force is to be feared because it is composed of modern pursuit and bombing planes."

Protesting against "panic fomenters" who pretend that Germany has thousands of military planes, the air minister estimated that the Reich will have 1,000 to 1,100 planes at the beginning of 1935.

Calls French Planes Inferior.

France has more machines, he admitted, but he said the French models "are less swift and less modern."

Denain's plea for special appropriations outside the annual budget of 1,500,000,000 francs [about $108,700,000] came as Leon Archimbaud, reporter of the budget, told the chamber's army committee that the government would ask 800,000,000 francs [about $52,640,000] to strengthen French frontier fortifications.

Like the air minister, he said this amount would be requested in the special defense budget to be presented shortly.

So impressed was the army committee by Archimbaud's report on German rearmament, presented the day before yesterday, that it decided to ask the chamber to restore the 380,000,000 francs [about $25,000,000] which had previously been cut out of the regular fortifications budget.

Would Transform Air Force.

The first billion francs of the air "renovation fund" was expected to be included in the special defense budget.

While the air minister promised "quickly to equal, at least," the German military aviation program with present appropriations, he said "nearly complete transformation of the army air force" would require the additional 3,500,000,000 francs

Archimbaud on Monday, reporting on the French war budget, asserted Germany could put 5,500,000 men into the field in 1935 and asked credit of 5,689,215,000 francs [$376,200,000].

TWO CATHOLIC SOCIETIES HOLD MEETINGS HERE

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

With Cardinal Mundelein's silver jubilee celebration on Tuesday taking its place with the Eucharistic congress of 1926 in the enriched traditions of the Catholic church of Chicago, many of the dignitaries who made the fête possible remained in the city yesterday to participate in annual meetings of the American Board of Catholic missions and the Catholic Extension society.

Meetings of these two bodies were held in the Extension society's offices, 360 North Michigan avenue. Cardinal Mundelein is president of the Board of Catholic Missions. He told the assembled prelates of the growth of the mission movement in America.

Mission Gifts Hold Up.

"Notwithstanding the long period of the most drastic financial stringency in our history, the contributions for the cause of missions have suffered less perhaps than any industry, or business, or investment concern in the country," said Cardinal Mundelein. "For five years now banks have failed, factories have closed, millions of men and women have gone on relief rolls, and yet, year after year we have come together and have distributed among the more needy of our brethren of the hierarchy almost the same amount of money as in the preceding years."

Reports on Year's Activities.

Bishop William D. O'Brien, president of the Extension society, reported on the society's activities during the last year. He said that 36 chapels have been erected during the period, and $150,000 contributed to aid missionary priests of the nation and its dependencies.

During the 29 years of the society's existence it has built 3,605 churches and aided 10,000 priests, bishops, and seminarians. The society entertained visiting prelates at luncheon yesterday in the Drake hotel. Most of them had left for their homes last night.

RED LITERATURE BOMB EXPLODES IN NAZI LIBRARY

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—(AP)—A communist "bombing" in the reading room of the state library was uncovered today. A notice posted at the library by the Berlin chief of police offering 300 marks ($120) for the perpetrators set reporters on the trail.

It appears that more than a week ago an object which had the outward appearance of a book suddenly exploded near seat "A-70" in the reading room.

Instead of causing damage to persons and property, however, the bomb scattered diminutive sheets containing communist propaganda all over the room. At almost the same time, another book with similar contents exploded in the library of the high school for politics.

BRITISH CHURCH SITUATION TAKES ON FARCICAL HUE

Brothers Top Anglican, Scottish Groups.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 21.—A farcical situation was created today by the unanimous nomination of Dr. Marshall Lang for moderator of the general assembly of the Church of Scotland. His brother, Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang, is archbishop of Canterbury and therefore chief of the Church of England.

The Church of England is Episcopal and Catholic, while the Church of Scotland is Presbyterian, nonprelatic, and Protestant.

King George belongs to both. He is head of the Anglican church. While not head of the state church in Scotland, the king must also be a member there.

Two Bishops to Be Selected.

The Scottish Presbyterian prime minister of Great Britain, Ramsay MacDonald, will soon have to select two Anglican bishops, two deans, and a canon residentiary. For, although these selections are nominally made by the king as head of the Church of England, they are in reality made by the prime minister, who "recommends" his choice to the king.

Thus the Presbyterian and Anglican king nominally appoints Anglican bishops and other dignitaries, while the actual selection is made by a prime minister who may be a Presbyterian, a Baptist, or even an atheist or a Jew.

MacDonald, however, takes his duties in the church seriously, and his previous selections have given satisfaction to progressive cherchmen. This time he will select a bishop of Ripon, whose salary will be about $20,000 a year; a bishop of Guildford, who will receive $15,000; a dean of Exeter at $10,000 and a house; a dean of Worcester, who will get $8,000 and a house, and a canon residentiary of St. Paul's, London, who will receive $5,000 and a house.

Farce in Choice of Bishops.

The appointments of the deans and canons are made by the king directly, but an elaborate farce accompanies the choice of the bishops.

In theory the bishops are still elected by the deans and chapters of their cathedrals, but in fact they receive from Downing street a document known as the "conge d'elire" or "leave to elect" in which the man whom they are to elect is named.

They have no power to elect any other person and if they did so the king, as head of the church, could appoint his own man as bishop by letters patent. It is also a fact that if the dean and the chapter did so far forget their positions as to choose some one not mentioned in the "conge d'elire" they might suffer penalties involving the loss of civil rights.

'Crazy Boy' Agello, Holder of Air Speed Records, Weds

A promotion from the rank of sergeant-major, granted after he had established on Oct. 24 a new speed record of 440.6759 miles an hour in a special racing seaplane, enabled Agello to marry.

LIBERTY LEAGUE STATE OFFICE TO OPEN HERE TODAY

Branch in Each Congress District Planned.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The American Liberty league, founded with the avowed intention of protecting the constitution and safeguarding human rights therein guaranteed, opens its Illinois headquarters today in suite 1317 of the old Tribune building, Dearborn and Madison streets.

Subsidiary branches are to be set up in each congressional district as speedily as possible. A mass meeting is planned for early next month at which Al Smith and other speakers of national prominence are expected to talk.

The chairman of the Illinois division of the league is Ralph M. Shaw, and the vice chairman is Francis X. Busch, former corporation counsel in the Dever regime. Sewell L. Avery, president and chairman of Montgomery Ward & Co., was recently placed on the national executive committee of the league, which has headquarters in Washington. Illinois offices will be in charge of Walter H. Cunningham, a coal company official, as executive director.

Leaders in National Movement.

Founders of the Liberty league, which was launched three months ago, are Alfred E. Smith and John W. Davis, who were Democratic nominees for the presidency; Nathan L. Miller, former Republican governor of New York; Irenee Du Pont, manufacturer, and James W. Wadsworth, former Republican senator from New York and now a representative in congress and one of the Republican possibilities for president. The head of the league is Jouett Shouse, former chairman of the Democratic national executive committee and president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment until its aim for repeal was accomplished.

Officials of the league declare it is non-partisan and it played no part in the recent campaign, deeming that would be premature, but that it now plans to expand rapidly with a view of opposing radicalism in the coming session of congress, and of combating further encroachments upon constitutional rights.

Officials to Be Named.

"Under the plan of organization," said Mr. Shaw, Illinois chairman, "there will be a headquarters in each state and subsidiary organizations in each congressional district. How rapidly this expansion will proceed we do not yet know. In a few days the personnel of the executive committee of the Illinois division and of the initial board of directors will be announced.

"Voluntary contributions are financing the league, and it is quite astonishing the thousands and thousands of subscriptions of $1 to $5 which have poured into the Washington office without solicitation."

"The Liberty league is political, but non-partisan, and it is not anti-administration," said Vice Chairman Busch. "Its purpose is to separate the good from the bad in legislation. For the present it will conduct a campaign of education on the purposes of the organization.

A Vehicle of Opinion.

"As congress gets in session, a representative organization, non-partisan, in each congressional district will afford a medium through which sentiment can be registered on legislation which is beneficial to recovery and on legislation which is radical and retards recovery.

"It will give in each congressional district a mouthpiece through which millions of Americans who cherish the constitution and the human rights it insures, can be heard. The congressional district is a convenient unit, for after all it is the congressmen, collectively, who are responsible, at least in theory, for legislation.

"The league is for the upholding of fundamental Americanism against any subversive theories. Without partisan bias or prejudice it will study pending legislation, to separate the good from the bad, and will endeavor to advise its members upon the effect proposed legislation will have upon the general welfare of the people."

The purposes of the league, whose energies will be devoted to thwarting efforts of the brain trust and the professoriat toward further radical governmental measures, are set forth in its charter as follows:

PRESIDENT WILL LEND BIRTHDAY; AID SUFFERERS

Balls Authorized to Help Paralysis Victims.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—His face wreathed in smiles, President Roosevelt today announced the dedication of his 53d birthday next Jan. 30 to the aid of fellow sufferers from infantile paralysis. He officially approved the holding of a second birthday ball for the President on that date.

Last year a series of 52d birthday balls throughout the country raised over a million dollars for the Warm Springs Foundation, established by the President for carrying on a crusade against the disease. The sentimental gesture was the work of a national committee headed by Henry L. Doherty of New York.

Part Going for Research.

At the opening of his first press conference in this season at the Little White House on Pine mountain the President said he had a pleasurable announcement to make. This was, he continued, that he was again going to loan his birthday to the committee. Surrounded by trustees of the foundation, he explained that this year's ball will be more national in scope. Seventy per cent of the proceeds will remain where collected for treatment of local sufferers and 30 per cent will go to finance research to combat the disease.

None will go to Warm Springs other than what is collected in the area.

"It gives me much happiness to lend my next birthday to the national committee for the birthday ball for the President," the President wrote Mr. Doherty, "for this purpose in the hope that the effort will bring us nearer to the goal of forever ending the tragic consequences of infantile paralysis.

"May I again express through you my gratitude to all those who are making my birthday the occasion for serving in this humanitarian cause?"

Busy Studying Reports.

The President said he has been busy studying reports since his arrival here, these reports he described as interesting but not momentous as he fingered one on his desk in the cozy room paneled with unfinished pine boards.

This he said dealt with typographical survey of the country. He confessed himself surprised to learn that two dozen agencies were engaged in such work on different scales and indicated he will order consolidation of these studies in one all embracing map.

With the exception of his press conference the President followed his customary routine here with an auto drive, a plunge in the institution pool, and neighborly visits. He took under advisement an invitation from Gov. Dave Scholtz of Florida to dedicate a memorial at Fort Jefferson, Key West, Fla., on his spring fishing trip.

SCIENTISTS TURN ENERGY IN BRAIN INTO LIGHT RAYS

Glows in Dark Like a Mystic Halo.

Cleveland, O., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The energy radiating from living processes "such stuff as dreams are made of," was illustrated in reality today before members of the National Academy of Sciences by Dr. George W. Crile and his assistants of the research laboratories of the Cleveland clinic.

In the pitch darkness of an underground laboratory and an atmosphere suggestive of the weird experiments of medieval alchemists, brain tissues of animals were made to glow by their own inner light, giving off a strange radiance that shown like a mystic halo.

This somewhat unearthly luminescense gave direct experimental proof that the brain of animals, and of man as well, "shines by its own light," or, as Dr. Crile put it, "that the sun shines again in the protoplasm of animals."

Cite Radio Analogy.

More than that, the luminous tissue gives concrete evidence that the activities of the brain, in its functions of consciousness and of thinking, are somehow connected with these mysterious emanations fom its delicate tissue. They indicate, further, that the thinking apparatus is a superlative radio transmitting and receiving set which, all through life, keeps up an endless broadcast over a gigantic network, in a "hook up" of billions of individual "stations."

The demonstrations were given by Dr. Crile and several of his research associates, who for several years have been conducting intensive investigations on processes that border very close on the mystery of the protoplasm and the vital processes of life.

These included Dr. Maria Telkes, a bio-physicist and a graduate of the University of Budapest; Dr. Otto Glasser, an expert on radiology; Drs. William E. Lower, D. R. McCullagh, Eugene Cutuly and Benjamin Stimmel, bio-chemists; Miss Amy Rowland, and Miss Margaret Schott.

The research required the development of superlatively delicate electrical measuring apparatus capable of detecting less than one-quadrillionth of an ampere. One of these, a photo-electric amplifying machine for measuring radiations, in the visible and infra-red ray region, was created by Dr. Telkes. Another, even more sensitive, for measuring the shorter ultra-violet radiations was devised by Dr. Glasser.

"Since animals derive their energy from plant food and plant food derives its energy directly or indirectly from solar radiation," Dr. Crile pointed out, "it is clear that the energy of the animal is supplied by reradiation of solar energy in the animal. That is to say, the sun shines again in the protoplasm of the animal."

JURORS ACQUIT SUSPECT IN BUS BRICK TOSSING

A jury in the court of Municipal Judge Cecil C. Smith yesterday acquitted Edward Boyle, 38 years old, 4346 West Congress street, charged with malicious mischief in connection with the strike against the Chicago Motor Coach company. It was charged that Boyle, a former employe of the bus company, had thrown a brick through a window of a bus at Jackson boulevard and Kildare avenue last August. Three policemen, passengers on the bus pursued Boyle and arrested him on the back porch of his home near the scene of the brick tossing, but the state had no witness who saw Boyle throw the brick.

MEDICAL LEADER TALKS ON HEALTH INSURANCE PLAN

Dr. Walter L. Bierring of Des Moines, Ia., president of the American Medical association and a member of the technical committee on economic security appointed by President Roosevelt, expressed confidence last night that any "health insurance" plan proposed to congress would reflect the views of the medical profession. He spoke before the Chicago Medical society at 185 North Wabash avenue.

"A short time ago organized medicine was with its back to the wall," Dr. Bierring said. "Now the whole problem of so-called health insurance has been referred back to a committee composed of members of the American Medical association. I feel we are now in a strategic position where proponents of organized medicine will be given a chance to be heard."

An agreement was reached at recent Washington conferences that the health insurance problem be solved by organized medicine, Dr. Bierring declared. Pointing out inherent dangers in plans proposed thus far, he did not condemn health insurance generally.

Dr. William C. Woodward, director of the association's bureau of legal medicine and legislation, declared the term "health insurance" to be misleading. Actually, he asserted, the typical plan is "part insurance, part dole, and partly an involuntary gift from employers."

NATIONAL BOARD GETS LABOR CASE OF CONCERN HERE

Officials of the Zenith Radio corporation learned yesterday that the national labor relations board in Washington had taken under advisement the complaint of the Radio Workers' Federal union, No. 19774, that the corporation discharged an employé for union activities.

Attorney Irving Harriott, counsel for the corporation, pointed out that the regional labor board found no evidence to support the union's claim, but ruled that the concern had violated the NRA in refusing to reëmploy Herbert A. Breit, the discharged employé.

Breit was discharged with several other employés for other reasons, Herriott said.

WOMAN, 117, LEAVES CALIFORNIA TO VISIT RELATIVES IN MEXICO

Santa Ana, Cal., Nov. 21.—(AP)—A comparative youngster, as Orange county residents go, Senora Leandra Frausta Chairez, who admits to being 117 years old, started today on a trip to Mexico, D. F., which she hopes will reunite her with the only relative she can find in the world.

Senora Chairez left behind here a woman who is really getting on in years, Senora Martina de la Rosa. She celebrated her 128th birthday Nov. 11.

Senora Chairez, who has been living in the county hospital, was placed in an automobile destined for Los Angeles where immigration authorities were expected to put her on the train bound for the Mexican capital. There she hopes to find Capt. Santiago Chairez, attached to the Mexican army post at San Luis Potosi, and believed to be her grand nephew.

WOMAN "DIES"; SURGEON'S HAND RESTARTS HEART

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—How a woman patient, dead on the operating table after a sudden heart attack, was brought back to life when a Baltimore surgeon used his fingers to force artificial action was told today by W. V. Maconachy, assistant superintendent of University hospital.

The woman was undergoing an operation when her heart stopped beating. The surgeon thrust one hand under the diaphragm, exposed by the incision, and pressed his fingers against the motionless heart. The doctor's careful fingers compressed the heart rhythmically against the chest walls. The blood was kept coursing through the veins of the unconscious woman.

There was a faint flutter in the heart held in the surgeon's hand. He went on counting slowly and substituting his own finger strength for the halted action of the heart muscles until the flutter had become a regular and natural motion and the patient was saved.

TVA SANCTIONS 22 MILLION DAM NEAR SHILOH

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The construction of a 22 million dollar navigation and flood control dam on the Tennessee river eight miles from the Shiloh battlefield in southwestern Tennessee was authorized today by the Tennessee Valley authority.

It is the third dam to be built by that authority in its program for a unified development of the Tennessee basin's water resources. The present project is near Pickwick Landing and about ten miles north of the state line juncture of Mississippi, Tennessee, and Alabama.

The proposed dam will form a lake about 53 miles long. The storage reservoir will cover an area of about 76 square miles and have a maximum capacity of over one million acre feet.

QUEEN TELLS HOW SHE SET OFF FIRE THAT TOOK A LIFE

Mrs. Bertha Warshovsky, 61 years old, a grandmother who has been dubbed the "arson queen," made a short but dramatic appearance on the witness stand late yesterday in Judge Walter La Buy's court to testify as the last prosecution witness against Harry Siegel, 45 years old, public insurance adjuster. The latter is on trial for murder by arson and the state is asking the death penalty.

Mrs. Warshovsky, a short, dumpy woman, told how she "touched off" the fire on Aug. 11, 1928, which resulted in the death of Joseph Pecori, 17 years old, a cripple who was trapped in the fire. She seemed surprised when Prosecutors Marshall Kearney and Gordon Nash did not seem to understand some of her firebug phrases. She used gestures most of the time to demonstrate her testimony.

Story Centers on Brown.

Mrs. Carmella Pecori, mother of the crippled victim, was in court waiting to testify. She was rescued from the fire.

Mrs. Warshovsky's story did not much involve Siegel other than to charge that she talked with him about her fee of $170 for setting the fire. The money, she said, was paid to her from Siegel's office. Her testimony was more damaging to Harry Brown, Siegel's partner, who is also under indictment, but who is a fugitive.

As Mrs. Warshovsky came to the witness stand she threw back her cheap black fur coat. After she had seated herself in the swivel chair Prosecutor Kearney started her off by asking if she remembered the fire at Thomas Falone's butcher shop, Taylor street and Racine avenue.

"There's Going to Be a Fire."

"Yes. Harry Brown called me on the telephone and said I should come over, that there was going to be a fire there," testified Mrs. Warshovsky in response to the question. "He said I should be there about 3 o'clock."

Q.—Did you go there? A.—Yes, I took a cab and went right over. We started right in to make balls.

Q.—Make balls—what do you mean? A.—Balls, paper balls like this (she started to demonstrate with gestures). We were supposed to make the fire that day, but when we got the layout fixed up we couldn't make the fire because some people were sitting outside.

Says Brown Didn't Show Up.

She then told of arrangements being made to set the fire the following morning, but of Brown failing to show up. He called her, she said, and said he forgot, "all about it." The fire was set at 5:30 o'clock the following Saturday.

"I took a cab that morning and went right over," she continued. "Well, everything was ready, like we had it before, except to spread the gasoline. Brown started to walk out, and Falone hollered to get him back, because he paid him good money to set the fire. Brown then spread the gasoline and I got ready to touch up the wick."

Q.—What did you need a wick for? A.—To make the fire, of course.

"First I lighted a cigar," she continued, "and blew like this [demonstrating] to make the flame red. Then I tied it inside of a bunch of safety matches. The cigar sets off the matches and the matches start the wick to burning and then pretty soon the gasoline paper balls go up and then comes the real fire."

Siegel Offers Alibi.

Earlier in the day Falone, who also turned state's evidence, took the witness stand and told of conducting negotiations with Siegel for the fatal fire.

Siegel himself took the witness stand, after the state closed its case with Mrs. Warshovsky's testimony, and said he was in a summer cottage at Pentwater, Mich., at the time Falone charged he was negotiating for the fire. His defense will be an alibi.

CODE AUTHORITY SUES NINE FIRMS FOR $500 IN FEES

Suits for $500 against each of nine lamp manufacturers were filed in the Municipal court yesterday alleging failure to pay assessments for the support of the code authority of the portable electric lamp and shade industry. Between fifty-five and seventy similar suits will be started soon against other manufacturers, according to Michael M. Wind, attorney for the code authority.

"Eighty per cent of the members of the industry here are paying their assessments regularly," Mr. Wind said. "We will file suit against the others to collect a sufficient amount to cover a three months' period. The code assessment is one-half of 1 per cent on gross monthly sales."

CLOTHING, BOOKS OF SLAIN GIRL, 6, ARE DISCOVERED

Articles Furnish New Kidnap Clew.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Search for the slayer of Dorothy Ann Distelhurst, 6, whose body was found in a shallow grave here a week ago, was given impetus today by the discovery of her clothing, school books and lunchbox.

These articles were found buried within 20 feet from where the child's body was found on Nov. 13 under two inches of earth on the grounds of the Davidson county tuberculosis hospital. The new discovery was made by W. B. Ridge, a city foreman, and W. J. Brazil, who were digging in the vicinity of the grave in the hope of finding a clew to the crime which has baffled attempts at solution.

Strikes with Stick.

Ridge said he came upon the lunchbox by striking it with a stick he had pushed into the soft earth. Further digging about a foot from the surface brought out Dorothy Ann's lunchbox, two books, two shoes, a blue and white plaid dress, two black socks with red stripes around the tops, a half pint milk bottle and a drinking glass.

District Attorney J. Carlton Loser said a chemical test will be made of the articles to ascertain if they will provide a clew in the search. It was hoped experts would be able to take impressions of fingerprints of the slayer from the better preserved articles.

Parents Remain Silent.

The parents of the child made no public comment on the discovery. The girl's father, Alfred E. Distelhurst, was in New York attempting to contact the supposed kidnapers of his daughter when the body was found here. Several ransom notes demanding sums of money starting at $175,000 and dwindling to $5,000 in the last note were received by Distelhurst, but authorities have branded them the work of "cranks."

The child had been missing since Sept. 19, when she disappeared while en route home from a kindergarten. Workmen accidentally came upon her body and it was identified only after a dentist recognized work he had done on the child's teeth. The body was unclothed and the face nearly destroyed by acid.

TWO POLICEMEN SUSPENDED ON ALTERIE CHARGE

Sergt. Jeremiah Lynch and Patrolman Charles Clark of the Central police were suspended last night on orders of Commissioner of Police James P. Allman pending their appearance before the trial board next Wednesday on charges growing out of the arrest and subsequent discharge in court of Louis (Two Gun) Alterie recently.

Alterie, two other men, and three women were arrested Oct. 20 in a room of the Auditorium hotel by policemen who went there to investigate a disturbance.

All appeared in the Municipal court Oct. 23 before Judge Edward S. Scheffler. Alterie was arraigned under the name "Devine."

After he had discharged all the prisoners Judge Scheffler learned that "Devine" was Alterie and summoned Policeman Clark, who said he had not been sure "Devine" was Alterie.

Sergt. Lynch was involved for letting Alterie go on a $25 bond.

$5,000 PAYMENT PROVES MYSTERY IN T-N-T TRIAL

State, Defense and Court All Grill Witness.

An attempt to solve the mystery of a $5,000 cash payment by R. D. McLean, president of the Elston Trucking company, occupied the attention of the attorneys yesterday in the racketeering conspiracy trial growing out of the activities of the Trucking and Transportation exchange, the "T-N-T," and its alleged affiliates.

McLean, whose company performed a 100,000 yard cubic dirt contract for the Lincoln park board, said he made the cash payment to John P. Steffin, executive secretary of the Associated Contractors and the Engineering Service corporation, two alleged affiliates of the T-N-T. Despite a grilling by the defense lawyers, the prosecutors and Judge William V. Brothers, who is presiding over the trial, McLean declared that he made the payment to Steffin in accordance with a contract.

State Grills Own Witness.

Defense Attorneys Benedict J. Short and Thomas Johnson Jr. showed by records and checks that the $5,000 payment was made after McLean had squared up all his accounts with the Engineering Service concern. Despite this disclosure McLean insisted the payment must have been made in accordance with some adjustment arrangement which he had made previously with Steffin. Nevertheless, McLean admitted the money was paid voluntarily.

Prosecutor Donald Thompson asked permission to cross-examine his own witness because he said his statements were at variance with what he told in the prosecutor's office. The judge finally questioned him as follows:

Q.—Did you have any idea that the payment was for a bribe or to fix any one? A.—No.

Q.—Why was this money paid in cash when all else was paid by check? A.—Because Mr. Steffin requested it.

Q.—Did you get a receipt for it. A.—No.

Q.—Did Mr. Steffin say thank you? A.—I would have.

Q—Why did you pay the money? A—It was a direct obligation the company owed.

Tells of Approaching Cermak.

Previously, McLean's business associate, William E. Izard, had testified he paid $10 a day per truck to a hanger-on at the T-N-T to get his trucks working for the city, and McLean himself had said his organization paid $6,560 to the Associated Contractors. Izard had testified also that a delegation from the T-N-T visited the late Mayor Cermak to get more work for their trucks. He did not accompany the committee, he said, but after the visit was made the T-N-T members obtained more work.

McLean mentioned George [Red] Barker and William J. [Three Fingered Jack] White, slain hoodlums, whom the state charges were the leaders in the conspiracy. McLean met them, he said, when he left Steffin's office after turning over a sealed envelope containing the mysterious $5,000 payment. The defense attorneys asked him if he did not know that at that particular time both men were in jail. He said they could not have been because he saw them.

FORGES CIRCUS MAN'S WILL TO SHARE IN $12,000

Hotel Clerk Gets Six Months in Jail.

The attempt of a hotel clerk to get a part of the $12,000 estate of an old time circus man through a spurious will was disclosed yesterday in the Probate court of Judge John F. O'Connell. Arthur A. Bolte, day clerk of the Acme hotel, 811 South State street, was sentenced to six months in the county jail for contempt of court.

Under questioning two hotel porters whose signatures appear on the false document as witnesses, confessed to Judge O'Connell that they had signed a blank piece of paper. The porters are Thomas R. Thompson and Carl W. Arnold.

For some weeks Bolte persisted in denying any irregularity, but recently he admitted he had filled in the signed sheet of paper to appear as the will of John A. [Big Murray] Malloy, 84 years old, who died on Aug. 5 in the county hospital.

Learns of Bank Account.

For forty years Malloy was a well known circus man. Fifteen years ago he removed to Chicago and lived at the Acme hotel, where he became friendly with Bolte. Bolte learned, he confessed, that his friend had a savings account in the Northern Trust company. When Malloy died this account totaled $11,860.

Shortly after his death a document purporting to be his will was presented for probate. It ordered bequests of $3,500 each to a sister, Mrs. Kate Grant of Worcester, Mass., and her daughter, Mrs. Kate De Calre. The remainder was to go to Bolte.

Malloy's relatives engaged Attorney Milton Hart to represent them. He negotiated with Bolte and the latter eventually agreed to settle his claim for $1,750.

Learns How to Draft Document.

Meanwhile Judge O'Connell discovered indications of fraud by questioning the two porters. Bolte then declared he obtained technical advice on how to draw up a will from Attorney H. Loo Nieberger, then used his information to prepare the forged paper. He did not explain how he managed to persuade Malloy to sign the document. The circus man's signature was genuine.

Judge O'Connell gave Attorney Nieberger ten days in which to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court. Bolte was held to the grand jury on charges of obstructing justice and of making a spurious will. He admitted receiving $300 from Malloy before the old man went to the hospital.

Miss Anna Vanek, 16 years old, 1925 South Grove avenue, Berwyn, who was found dead in the home of her sister, Mrs. Rose Sevcik at that address, on Nov. 7, committed suicide by swallowing poison, a coroner's jury held yesterday. Norman Wing, 23 years old, 4709 North Kilpatrick avenue, a musician, who admitted being with her several hours before she was found dead, will be arraigned on a statutory charge on Nov. 27 in Berywn.

12 Sought; 62 Detectives on Their Trail.

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—With one man in custody as a material witness Brooklyn's $427,950 armored car robbery has been definitly solved, Deputy Chief Inspector John J. Ryan said today. The identity of all the members of the machine gun gang who held up the car outside the Rubel Ice company's plant on Aug. 21 is known, he declared, and picked detectives and federal agents have been on their trail for some time.

Sixty-two detectives, aided by the department of justice men, are covering widely scattered points throughout the United States, Mexico and Canada, Inspector Ryan revealed. They have been close on the gang's trail several times.

Eight Take Active Part.

"We now know who pulled this job," said Inspector Ryan. "There were twelve in the mob, eight took an active part in the robbery; four were accessories. They have plenty of money and they are traveling fast, playing the race tracks of the country and spending heavy money in the night clubs.

"Our men have been pretty close on their trail, but so far have missed them, sometimes by only half a day. There are too many of them in the mob and they have lots of money. The detectives and department of justice agents have reached a town on one or two occasions right after the mob had moved on. But we have definitly broken the case."

The detectives and federal agents now are covering places on the west coast, at Reno, Nev.; in Florida and points in Mexico and Canada, Inspector Ryan said.

Find New Witnesses.

The man in custody as a material witness is Thomas Quinn, 35 years old, who was arrested by three detectives last Thursday night. He is being held in bail of $50,000.

The police are satisfied that Quinn owned the two boats in which the robbers made their escape. Quinn has admitted ownership of two boats, one a Dory, the other a speed boat, Inspector Ryan said, but nothing more. He has admitted, the police said, that he was a small-time bootlegger, that he bought a speedboat two weeks before the robbery.

The police hinted that Quinn seemed to be happy to be in jail, apparently fearing that the mobsters would otherwise take him for a ride.

Morris, Ill., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Miss Margaret Miller, 50, a teacher in Coal City schools for 35 years, died today of influenza.

FIND BODIES OF 3 BABIES IN A TRUNK; SEIZE WOMAN OWNER

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Mrs. Ruby Clarke, a college graduate and former school teacher, was held without bail on a homicide charge today following the discovery of the bodies of three infants in a trunk stored in a Brooklyn warehouse more than two years ago. She admitted the ownership of the trunk but denied knowledge of the bodies.

The arraignment was on a short affidavit by a detective "on the belief that she has caused the death of three human beings, age and sex unknown, by suffocation." She was remanded to the Raymond street jail to await a hearing Friday.

The trunk was placed in the warehouse on July 15, 1932, but the nature of its contents was not disclosed until two weeks ago when employés investigated. They found the bodies too far decomposed for them to determine age or sex. They were sent to Dr. Emmanuel Martens, Kings county medical examiner, who expressed the belief they had been prematurely born babies. Last night Mrs. Clarke appeared voluntarily. At the end of questioning she was placed under arrest.

In the lineup today she seemed at ease on the prisoner's platform, but appeared near a collapse as she was led away to be taken to the Brooklyn Homicide court.

5 CHICAGOANS NAMED TO AID SOCIAL PROGRAM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Five Chicagoans were appointed today by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins to help further President Roosevelt's social security program.

The labor secretary set up an advisory committee on public employment and relief and an advisory committee on child welfare to consult with the staf drawing up the President's social insurance legislation.

Miss Edith Abbott, dean of the social service graduate school at the University of Chicago; Frank Bane, director of the American Public Welfare association, and Joseph Kepecs of the Jewish Home Finding society, were the three Chicagoans selected by Secretary Perkins to serve on the public employment and relief committee.

Dr. Clifford G. Grulee, secretary of the American Academy of Pediatrics, and Dr. Fred L. Adair, professor of obstetrics at the University of Chicago, were picked to serve on the child welfare committee. Mr. Kepecs will serve on this committee also.

Police Prisoner Identified by Doctor as Holdup Man

Albert Zuris, 34 years old, 6336 Ingleside avenue, was held by Hyde Park police yesterday after he was identified by Dr. Max Bernauer, 6450 Normal boulevard, as the man who had held him up Tuesday night in front of 6321 South Francisco avenue. The robber took Dr. Bernauer's car and $10. Zuris said he was a former city fireman.

TEAR GAS ROUTS 6 ROBBERS; BANK CASH UNTOUCHED

CRIMINAL COURT.

Edward Kozlowski, robbery, sentenced to one year to life in the penitentiary; Ralph Hermandez, robbery, one year to life in the penitentiary; Frank Polak and Harry Kmak, raps, each one year in the penitentiary; William Vodlek, robbery, one year to life in the penitentiary; George Hirschm, robbery, one year to life in the penitentiary, by Judge Harry B. Miller.

Jack Stacey and John Mason, robbery, sentenced each to one year to life in the penitentiary by Judge Walter P. Steffen.

The Morgan Park police last night were searching for six bandits who were routed by tear gas when they attempted to rob the Beverly State Savings bank at 103d and Loomis streets yesterday morning.

During the attempted robbery a city policeman in uniform, Charles Vaughan, was held up by two of the bandits who took his revolver. Several persons of the fifteen who were in the bank at the time were overcome by the charge of gas which filled the place.

Ordered to Lie on Floor.

The robbers drove up to the bank in a large sedan. Two carrying shotguns held up Policeman Vaughan, who was outside of the bank, and held him prisoner in a filling station across the street while three went into the bank. The leader of the three, who, according to witnesses, carried a submachine gun, ordered every one to lie on the floor.

At this moment several of the eight bank employés pressed buttons releasing the gas from twelve guns placed in various parts of the bank. The gas forced the robbers out of the bank. They entered their car and sped west in 103d street as the disarmed policeman looked on.

Customers Flee Fumes.

The customers and employés then fled from the bank to escape the fumes.

Miss Eunice Short, teller, and Miss Josephine Cox, stenographer, told the police that they could identify the men.

John W. Seger, cashier, said the bank was equipped with tear gas guns after it was robbed of $10,000 in May, 1932.

yes, and here's why—

We know that smoking a pipe is different from smoking a cigar or cigarette . . . and in trying to find the best tobacco suited for pipes . . .

We found out that the best tobacco for use in a pipe grows down in the Blue Grass Section of Kentucky, and it is called White Burley

There is a certain kind of this tobacco that is between the tobacco used for cigarettes and the kind that is used for chewing tobacco.

This is the kind of tobacco we use, year after year, for Granger Rough Cut.

DETAILS OF NEW, SPEEDY TANK ARE BARED BY ARMY

New Machine Capable of Making 50 M. P. H.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The army today gave details concerning its latest pride, a light battle tank which travels on a caterpillar tread at 50 miles an hour.

The tank has counfounded motorists and pedestrians in Washington in the last few days, for in the tests conducted by army officers it has been driven at truly breakneck speed through heavy trafic, skirting in and out of lanes, bounding around street corners, across curbings, up and down hills, all to the accompaniment of a fairly ear splitting clatter. The engineers seem to have omitted mufflers from the engine.

In warfare the new tank bids fair to produce further revolutionary changes above others, all combining to relegate the military tactics of the world war to antiquity.

Longer Marches Possible.

Swifter attacks, longer marches, more deadliness of combat, the substitution of tanks for the horses in the cavalry—all these and more significant developments come in the wake of the new tanks, it is declared.

The new tank, which is the size of an average automobile, was built at the arsenal at Rock Island, Ill., and was designed by engineers of the ordnance branch of the army under Maj. Gen. W. H. Tschappat.

After undergoing tests at Rock Island, the tank was started, under its own power, for Washington. Leaving the arsenal on Nov. 14, the tank was driven into the capital three days later, on Nov. 17.

The sustained speed during the trip was given at 30 to 40 miles per hour, although it is capable of accelerated rates in dashes of 50 miles per hour.

Demonstrating the startling new fields now open to military strategy, the tank covered 336 miles in 11 hours during one day. A fleet of these tanks leaving Fort Sheridan, Ill., at dawn could launch an attack at Cleveland the same evening.

As to the deadliness of the swift machine, the one under demonstration carries two .30 caliber machine guns and one .50 caliber machine gun, as well as a number of Thompson submachine guns. There are two armored turrets from which gunners in the crew of four may fire without risking return fire from bullets of the enemy. From the street none of the occupants of the tank could be seen.

12¾ Feet Long.

The dimensions of the new tank are; length, 12¾ feet; height, 6½ feet, and width, 7 feet. It weighs, fully equipped and with personnel ready to fight, 16,000 pounds. Its engine is 260 horse power, radial, air cooled. A radio with an 80 mile range is provided.

Army officers after riding in the machine said that its easy riding qualities will go far toward saving personnel from fatigue suffered in the old style tanks.

The element of speed at 50 miles an hour is not of itself a new departure, but the older tanks achieved this speed only by removing the caterpillar tread, allowing the tank to proceed on rubber tired wheels.

A hindrance in the time required to fix the treads in position is now eliminated by the new design.

During the world war tanks in considerable number were employed by the allies. They had a maximum speed of 6 or 7 miles per hour. In 1927 and 1928 a light full track tank was developed which had a maximum speed of 22 miles per hour and a sustained speed of 14 or 15 miles per hour. Then J. Walter Christie developed the convertible type of tank, which, until the building of the present new tank, was considered the most efficient in any army.

JAPANESE ARMY WARNS CHINA TO ALTER ITS POLICY

SHANGHAI, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Japan's army today warned China "there is no hope that the army will change" its attitude toward China until the Nanking government abandons its "revolutionary diplomacy."

A statement issued by the Japanese military attaché, after the Japanese military officers stationed in various parts of China had conferred here for two days, accused the Chinese government of trying to delay enforcement of several items in the Tangku armistice agreement. The armistice, signed on May 31, 1933, ended Japan's drive in North China.

The statement said: "The revolutionary diplomacy advocated by the central Kuomintang [the ruling council of the Chinese government] and enforced by the Nanking government led to the Manchurian and Shanghai incidents. There have been attempts to whitewash the situation after these incidents, but, unless there is a radical change in the Chinese government's attitude, there is no hope that the Japanese army will change theirs."

CHICAGO SCOTCH WILL CELEBRATE FEAST OF HAGGIS

Old People's Home to Get Proceeds.

The feast of the haggis, an ancient Scottish custom observed on St. Andrew's night when clansmen to honor their patron saint gathered about their campfires or in banquet hall and gave a tithe of their goods to the poor, will be reënacted here on Dec. 1 at a dinner in the Palmer house.

More than 1,200 Chicagoans of Scotch descent, members of one of the state's oldest charitable organizations, the Illinois St. Andrew society, founded in 1845, will attend. The "tithe" or proceeds from the five dollar a plate banquet will be turned over to the Scottish Old People's home in Riverside.

Story of the Custom.

Robert Black, general chairman of the dinner and a member of the home's board of governors, yesterday explained the custom as it is observed by the society each year.

"Bringing in the haggis goes far back in the history of the clans," he said. "Haggis is a rich pudding made from the hearts and livers of sheep mixed with suet, onions, meal, etc. The pudding is boiled in the stomach of a lamb. The old recipe is used year after year at the banquet and one of our members superintends its making.

"As in the old days, the haggis will be brought into the banquet hall on the shoulders of two 'braw' Highlanders. It will be decorated and steaming hot, and the bagpipes of the Highlanders band will be playing.

'First Guest' Served.

"Every one rises as the haggis is carried to the speakers' or chieftains' table. The pudding is then opened and the first spoonful placed on the 'first guest's' plate, and so on until all have partaken."

A custom, never broken, is the invitation issued to the President of the United States. Older members recall that President McKinley during office was the "first guest" at the St. Andrew's ceremony.

Floyd E. Thompson, former chief justice of the Illinois Supreme court, and Bishop George Craig Stewart will be the principal speakers. The bishop will speak on "The Land We Left," and Mr. Thompson on "The Land We Live In." There will be toasts to President Roosevelt and to King George, the singing of both national anthems, and also much singing of such Scotch songs as "March of the Cameron Men" and "Lass o' Ballochmyle."

LEARN THE 'LOST ART' OF BUCKWHEAT CAKES AT COOKING SCHOOL

A session featuring a surprise recipe for buckwheat cakes and an appearance by Sophie Tucker yesterday lured more than 5,000 north side mothers and wives to the fourth annual TRIBUNE cooking school at the Aragon ballroom, 1100 Lawrence avenue.

Despite the heavy rain, women stormed the doors as early as 7 a. m., coming in such droves that by 10 a. m. the ballroom was filled. By 11:30 o'clock the doors were closed, and by 12:30, opening time, more than 800 had been turned away. Officials pronounced it the largest attendance ever held at any north side cooking school.

The making of the buckwheat cakes was not on the regular day's program. They were the impromptu answer of Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, home economics expert, to the "Cry of Distress" of one "L. J. K.," published in THE TRIBUNE's Voice of the People on Nov. 15, in which he called the making of buckwheat cakes a lost art and asked a recipe which would produce cakes that were neither "sponge rubber nor soft lether, but the kind mother used to make."

Preceding Mrs. Chitwood's lecture, during which she demonstrated the making of many tasty dishes ranging from snowdrift pudding to Chinese noodle ring, the women were regaled with an hour of entertainment, the high point of which was the appearance of Sophie Tucker.

Other celebrities introduced by Phil Maxwell, master of ceremonies, were George Carlson, who led the women in community singing; Cathryne Bennett, pianist; Bess Flynn, Kay Chase, Alice Hill, and Ed Smith, from the Painted Dreams cast of W-G-N; Ralph N. Sappe, tenor; the Murray Browne dancers; Grace Holvershied, soprano, and Kenneth Stevens, tenor.

The school will continue through tomorrow, with Quin Ryan, W-G-N manager, as the highlight of today's program.

U. S. AND BRITAIN STUDY JAP NAVAL IDEAS TOMORROW

Nippon Restates Demand for Equality.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The preliminary naval conversations are still alive, but just alive. The three sets of doctors standing by the bedside are far from agreement. The British are still optimistic about the outcome. The Japanese are politely and cynically inscrutable. The Americans are pessimistic.

Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japanese ambassador, spent an hour and a half in conference with Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon of Great Britain today. The British admit that the whole time was not taken up with naval affairs, but that a part at least was occupied with other problems which are outstanding between the two countries.

Japs Insist Upon Equality.

It was announced that nothing definte was suggested by either side. The Japanese still insist upon the right to equality in naval tonnage, at least with the United States.

Despite this, the British described the conversation as friendly and helpful. American observers read into this that the Japanese are still stalling and hoping to find some way out of the difficulty.

The next move now lies with the Americans and the British. The delegates of these two nations will meet Friday, when the British will lay before the Americans a full picture of the situation in the light of the Japanese reply to the British suggestions for technical equality, with a Japanese assurance that they would not build up to it.

Deny 5-4-4 Ratio Plan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Nov. 21.—The foreign office spokesman categorically denied today that Japan had made a proposal for parity between the Japanese and United States fleets, while Great Britain would be permitted to have a larger one. The ratio mentioned in some reports of this proposal was 5-4-4, with Britain having the 5.

He reiterated that Japan is not willing to discuss political questions, such as the nine power pact, and moreover, that it is not likely to take up the question of limitation of fortifications in the Pacific until the main issue is decided. He said Japan does not regard fortifications as important.

In explaining the Japanese demand for parity, the spokesman said the situation has changed greatly since the Washington pact. He pointed out that Japan was not then menacing Anglo-American markets.

U. S. IS SATISFIED WITH RECEPTION OF ARMS PLANS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—William Phillips, undersecretary of state, announced today that the United States is fairly well satisfied with the reception at Geneva of its proposal for the control of the trafic in the manufacture of arms and other munitions of war.

He made this comment on the basis of a lengthy report from Hugh R. Wilson, who presented the proposal to the general disarmament conference. At the same time Mr. Phillips emphasized that America's sole object in urging the plan is to promote stronger and more permanent relations of confidence, friendship and peace between nations.

The report from Mr. Wilson followed the lines of press dispatches describing yesterday's meeting of the commission.

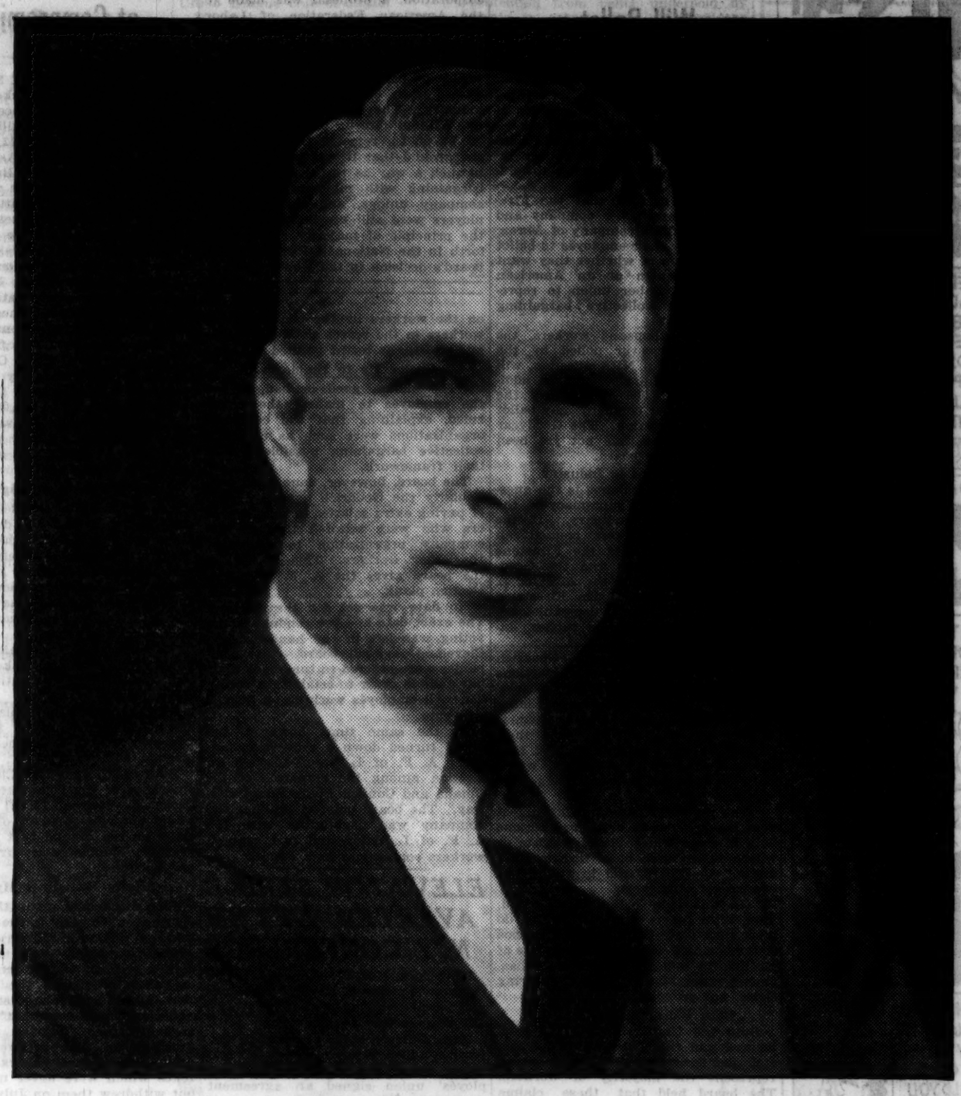
RICHMAN BROTHERS CLOTHES $22.50



Mr. W. G. E: Attorney . . . One of our oldest salesmen remembers selling Mr. E. his first RICHMAN BROTHERS suit. He's had dozens since and has sent us many of his good friends and business associates.

$22.50 Does Not Describe Richman Brothers Clothes

Strange as it may seem, our low price actually weakens our advertising. It's so difficult for many readers to believe that the fine quality we describe can be offered at $22.50. Yet our ads are carefully edited, every statement is rigidly checked, and no claim is made that can't be quickly and completely proven.

We assure you that the materials, the style, the fit and the workmanship of Richman Brothers clothes are all much finer than you'd expect for $22.50. All we ask is that you let us show you the garments and prove to you that they are every bit as good and even better than our advertising leads you to expect.

The explanation is simple. Because we make our clothes in our own shops and sell them in our own stores, we don't have to figure wholesale selling costs or retail profits in our prices. Nor need we figure charge account losses or the expense of a delivery system. That's why we can give you values that seem unbelievable.

And—that's why we say: don't judge Richman Brothers Clothes by the price. They're much better than the price leads you to expect. All overcoats, topcoats, suits and dress clothes are $22.50.

2 TIRE FIRMS' 21,000 TO VOTE ON LABOR ISSUE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The largest workers' election in history, a crucial vote which will decide whether organized labor will dominate the country's giant rubber industry, was ordered today by the national labor relations board.

The board decreed that the Firestone Tire an Rubber company and the B. F. Goodrich company of Akron, O., must allow their employés to ballot on the question of whether they want a company union or an American Federation of Labor union to represent them in collective bargaining under the NRA.

Twenty-one thousand workers, the largest number ever polled by the labor board on an NRA question, will participate in the election. In addition another 15,000 workers of the Goodyear Rubber company may ballot on the same question. The Goodyear angle of the case has not yet been passed on by the board.

Key Concerns in Industry.

Hanging in the balance is the question of A. F. of L. supremacy in the important rubber industry. If the United Rubber Workers' council can win the election over the Firestone employés' conference and the Goodrich coöperative plan, the A. F. of L. will be in the saddle. The Firestone, Goodrich, and Goodyear companies are the key concerns in the rubber industry.

Both the Firestone and Goodrich companies have fought the elections which the United Rubber Workers' council requested and which the labor board today ordered. The companies pointed out that conditions in their plants are now satisfactory and that electioneering in rival unions would only disturb the peace among the workers.

"The requirement of public interest does not limit us to ordering elections only in cases where disorder exists or where there have been threats of a strike," the board said in ruling out companies' objections.

"On this point," the board added, "we think it is unnecessary to do more than state the board's adherence to the common belief that the device of election in a democratic society has, among other virtues, that of allaying strife, not provoking it."

Both Sides Claim Victory.

Both the United Rubber Workers' council and the Firestone and Goodrich company organization claim to represent the majority of workers. The board held that these claims might well lead to industrial warfare between the rival unions and that, therefore, an election is justified to settle the question.

Although it turned down the companies' request to block an election, the board also rejected one major complaint made by the United Rubber Workers' council. The council argued that the Firestone Employés' conference and the Goodrich coöperative plan were formed to coerce the workers into joining a company union, rather than an outside union.

On these grounds, the council argued that the company organizations were in violation of section 7 [A] of the NRA and should not be given a place on the ballot when the voting is held.

Refusing to pass on the alleged violation of section 7 [A] the board declared that the company organizations will be allowed a place on the ballot. If the organization is bad and forced on the workers by the company, the workers in the secret election can repudiate it, the board pointed out.

Choice Up to Employés.

"The choice, good or bad, is for the employés to make," the board ruled, explaining that the company organizations were such as to make collective bargaining possible within their framework.

The board, however, denounced particularly the Goodrich company plan of paying extra salaries to those workers who were selected through the company organization to represent the other workers. This action by the board gives the A. F. of L. an election plank.

No date was set for the election. The exact date and the conduct of the voting was left in the hands of the Cleveland regional board. The companies were ordered to turn over their pay rolls in order to establish a voting list. All employés working on Sept. 7 will vote.

At the same time, however, the board turned down a request by another A. F. of L. union to hold an election among the employés of the Omaha and Council Bluffs Street railway. The board pointed out that the company was negotiating with the A. F. of L. union and had granted workers concessions as a result.

FEAR STEEL-LABOR TRUCE EFFORTS WILL NOT BE SUCCESSFUL

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Negotiations looking toward an industrial truce in the steel industry, along the lines of the general truce proposed by President Roosevelt last month, have broken down.

In behalf of the United States Steel corporation, a proposal was made to the American Federation of Labor that recognition of that organization would be granted, but that no contract would be made.

This proposal, it was said, would be agreed to by 85 per cent of the steel industry. The labor spokesmen, led by William Green, president of the A. F. of L., rejected the tender on the ground that it was hedged about in such a way as to permit collective bargaining with minority groups or company unions, and that the employers were still unwilling to accept the principle of majority rule as set forth in the National Labor Relations board's decision in the Houde case.

ELEVATOR STRIKE AVERTED AFTER N. Y. CONFERENCE

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The threatened strike of elevator operators and service employés in Manhattan's skyscrapers was averted today.

After thirteen hours around the conference table, representatives of real estate interests and the service employés' union signed an agreement drafted by Mayor F. N. La Guardia's board of arbitration.

The union withdrew its demand for a closed shop, a point on which the two sides had seemed hopelessly deadlocked.

Standards of wages and hours in various types of buildings will be worked out by a committee of three arbiters, with the union recognized as the bargaining agent for the employés.

Dogs have killed 43 sheep during the last six weeks on the Fox Lake estate of Walter H. Brandenburg, wine importer with offices at 2924 North Western avenue, it was revealed yesterday. Last month 26 animals were killed, and Friday night 17 more were slain, according to the caretaker, Carl Johnson.

J. ICKES CLAIMS $42,000, BUT CITY MAY PAY $2,300

Secretary's Brother Hints at Compromise.

John Ickes, brother of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, indicated to the city council finance committee yesterday that he was willing to compromise his claim for $42,125 against the city. An opinion by Assistant Corporation Counsel Quin O'Brien advised the committee that Ickes was entitled to only $2,352. The committee members notified Ickes to instruct his attorneys to confer with the corporation counsel's office on the claim.

Ickes bases his claim on the salary to which he would have been entitled under his civil service rating as chief clerk of special assessments for the board of local improvements. His original claim, filed with the finance committee, was for $40,781. Of this sum, $29,781 was for the salary paid during his absence from duty in the improvement board post, and $11,000 was "for loss through being deprived of anticipated increases in salary paid to said position." Now $1,344 is added as interest.

Big Difference in Figures.

The corporation counsel's office insists that only $2,352 is due to Ickes. This sum represents the difference between the pay he received in various political jobs during his nonoccupancy of the civil service post, and the salary he would have received had he remained continuously in his civil service position.

"My office," O'Brien said, in tendering the $2,352 offer, "takes the position that Ickes is not entitled to double salaries."

Ickes ventured the explanation that his additional claim of $11,000 was "thrown in as a dragnet, the way lawyers do."

Both Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the committee, and Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th] said they would not vote in favor of the larger claim on the ground that it would be paying a double salary from taxpayers' pockets.

Affairs Remain a Mystery.

John Ickes was given the local improvement job early in the administration of Mayor William E. Dever, whose campaign was assisted by John's brother, the present secretary of the interior. In the summer of 1926 John Ickes relinquished the job under circumstances that have never been explained. John L. Sloan, then president of the board of local improvements, filed charges against Ickes which were never made public, but withdrew them on July 30, 1926.

The next day Ickes was granted a year's leave of absence, at the end of which he tried unsuccessfully to regain his old clerkship. On Jan. 30, 1932, Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor issued a writ of mandamus directing that the job be restored, but Ickes did not return to the position until July 1, 1933, after his brother, Harold, was elevated to the President's cabinet.

Democrats Talk of Kerner for Supreme Court Vacancy

BY PARKE BROWN.

Otto Kerner, attorney general of Illinois, may be the Democratic nominee for the vacancy in the state Supreme court caused by the death last week of Justice Frederic R. De Young of Chicago. The nomination is considered equivalent to election.

Other names are being discussed, notably those of Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher and Superior Judge John P. McGoorty. All three are considered qualified but, in addition to his qualifications, Attorney General Kerner benefits from politically practical considerations which apparently will lead to his selection.

A Problem Would Be Solved.

If he is the choice of the Democratic organization, he would resign as attorney general. His successor in that office would be appointed by Gov. Horner. Under such conditions it would be possible for the governor to name a downstater as attorney general, thereby clearing up a troublesome outlook for 1936.

As matters now stand Cook county in that year would hold five of the seven big places on the Democratic slate, leaving only two of the lesser places to the rest of the state. Putting a downstater into the attorney generalship would lessen the Chicago congestion on the ballot materially.

Cook County in Control

Justice De Young represented the Seventh judicial district in the Supreme court. While there are five counties—Cook, Du Page, Kankakee, Lake and Will—in the Seventh district, Cook county will control the situation.

In the district nominating convention for the justiceship each county is entitled to one delegate for each 500 votes cast for the party's nominee for governor, in this instance for Horner. Cook county in 1932 gave the governor 1,033,789 votes in contrast to the combined vote of 86,657 cast for him by the other four counties. In other words, it will control the convention with 2,068 delegates to 175 from the rest of the district.

There has been no decision or even a conference on this subject by the Cook county Democratic leaders, but it is known that they regard Attorney General Kerner highly and that they are not pleased with the lineup for state ticket making, which is only a year away.

Lewis May Seek Reëlection.

Although he has made no announcement, it is understood that United States Senator Lewis may desire to run for reëlection in 1936, but another Chicagoan, State's Attorney Courtney, is definitly understood to be set for that nomination. Gov. Horner wants to seek a second term.

Other Chicagoans now holding state offices, in addition to Kerner, are Secretary of State Hughes and State Auditor Barrett.

Downstate—with only two men in state office next year, Lieut. Gov. Donovan and John Stelle, who will take over the treasurership in January—will insist it must have something like an even division of the offices on the slate. Normally its insistence would be that if Chicago is to have the senatorship, as custom dictates this year, the governorship should go downstate.

Election May Be Feb. 26.

The selection of the organization candidate for the Supreme court probably will be given attention soon, as there already is something like an agreement that the special election to fill the vacancy should be called for next Feb. 26, the date of the municipal primaries. This would keep the bench free from the influences of the mayoralty election in April and would place a Seventh district man in the upper court as soon as possible because of the large amount of work falling to the justice from Cook county.

Official city figures on the election of Nov. 6, were proclaimed yesterday by the Chicago election commission but failed to show any changes of importance from the police returns. The total vote cast in the city was 1,188,852, or 81.39 per cent of the highest possible vote with a registration of 1,460,734.

AUSTRALIA LOSES MILLIONS IN FARM TEST VENTURE

Abandons Huge Project in the North.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 21.—One dollar a week rent and $700 for all improvements—that is the price which the federal government here has been glad to accept for its costly demonstration farm at Batchelor, Northern Territory.

For this sum Edward B. Gibbons has received a perpetual lease of the property of 2,500 acres, which has been laboriously converted into farm land. Included with it are miles of adjacent territory.

The Batchelor farm was chosen carefully to show the people of Australia that there were agricultural possibilities in the "neglected north." The land on which it was established was selected as typical of the Northern Territory areas to be developed.

Calamity Dogs Enterprise.

But calamity dogged the enterprise from the time of its establishment 22 years ago. Costly bloodstock sheep, "dual purpose" animals chosen for the fact that they could provide both payable meat and good quality wool, were imported from New Zealand. They were attacked by swarms of buffalo flies and died by scores. The herd faded in numbers and quality. When not slain by pests the sheep were bogged and suffocated in the rainy season of the subtropics.

Prize pigs were shipped and promptly ran wild, disappearing in the forest. Poisonous vegetation killed other stock. Dairy cattle died of extreme heat or were killed by crocodiles.

The luxuriously equipped stables were eaten by white ants, which have been known to demolish whole settlements. Machinery sheds, barns and crops followed the stables into the mouths of these tiny terrors. Then it was discovered that save for some small patches of not more than a few acres there was not enough soil above the ironstone base of the territory to grow anything of economic importance. Wheat, oats, rice and barley all failed in turn when tried upon the land.

Tropical Fruits Flourish.

The farm managers discovered that pineapples and maize could be grown very well, and that irrigation aided tropical fruits to flourish, but for these there was no market.

Condemned by one director of agriculture in the commonwealth after another, the farm was finally abandoned six years ago. Forty white men and more than 200 natives worked on Batchelor farm when it was at its greatest state of development. Now it has been rented to graze horses.

At the same time it is revealed that several of the state governments are projecting further land settlement schemes. New South Wales plans development of another great irrigation area and the minister of agriculture paints a picture of a great valley filled with productive farms.

It is an ironic state of affairs because a few months ago it was revealed that Victorian land settlement plans in recent years had cost the people more than $100,000,000. In the last year $13,000,000 owing to the land settlement administration has been written off the books as not recoverable. But the loan money raised to pay for the work still bears interest.

The South Australian auditor general reports that the only hope of wheat growers in that state paying their way in the next few years would be for wheat to reach $1.25 a bushel. But New South Wales plans to move ahead and map a plan for land settlement to cover three years and to employ many workers.

PREDICTS FALL OF SEAPORTS AS TRADE DECLINES

Ezekiel Sees Rise of Inland Cities.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Drastic reorganization of the economic life of this country, including the relocation of railroads, the decline of seaport cities, and the building up of great inland metropolises, can be averted only by a restoration of our foreign markets, according to Dr. Mordecai Ezekiel. He is economic adviser to the secretary of agriculture. Dr. Ezekiel delivered himself of these forebodings in an address before the Association of Land Grant Colleges here today.

Like Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace, Undersecretary Rexford Guy Tugwell, Assistant AAA Administrator H. R. Tolley, and other members of the AAA brain trust, Dr. Ezekiel holds out little hope for the regaining of our lost foreign trade, saying, "At best we can expect only a long, slow, gradual development."

Blames World Economics.

Also like the other agricultural brain trusters, he blames the loss of the foreign markets on world economic forces, the depression, and international trade restrictions rather than upon the crop reduction schemes of the AAA. On the other hand, he sees in the AAA a great boon to farmers in the sense that it has assured them a fixed income and freed them from the vicissitudes of world price levels.

"The foreign market used to be exceedingly important to American farmers," he said. "It took more than half their cotton, one quarter their wheat, one sixth their hog products, one third their tobacco and important fractions of rice, apples, grapefruit and other products.

"Even more important, the price on the world market generally controlled the price on the entire production of these products within this country.

Big Factor in Farming.

"Prior to the AAA, nearly half the farmers' income was subject to the world market. The AAA has largely freed American farmers from this price dependence on world markets. Through benefit payments, producers of the major export products are now assured a protected income from the product for domestic consumption. But the export market still continues important as a major factor in determining the quantity to produce and the acreage to plant."

Dr. Ezekiel said we must face the fact that the United States can not sell abroad if this nation will not buy.

Streams of triangular trade which existed before the depression, Dr. Ezekiel said, must be reëstablished, such as American wheat to Europe, industrial products from that continent to South America or Asia, and coffee, rubber, silk, and other tropical products back to the U. S. Some parts of the export demand, such as that for 369 million bushels of wheat in 1920, reflected war consequences and may never be regained, he added.

Predicts Economic Revisions.

Barring a restoration of the foreign markets, this is what Dr. Ezekiel says will happen:

"New uses must be found for millions of acres and new employments for hundreds of thousands of people in the cotton, wheat, tobacco, and corn-hog belts. Railways that serve seaports, port facilities and seaboard industries which depend on foreign trade may need to be relocated. Our whole industrial organization, which tied in with the rest of the world at a score of ocean gateways, might have to be materially recast. Perhaps interior centers would become dominant, while Boston, New York, Philadelphia, New Orleans, Galveston, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, and other seaports would cease to grow.

"Barring foreign trade restoration, we must reorganize the whole economic life of this country far more drastically than any one has yet visualized—or else accept a permanent level of stabilized poverty for millions of our people."

Some Attack AAA Plans.

Many private economists hold that the AAA reduction program, including the artificial boosting of prices through crop loans, has been responsible in a large measure for the loss of foreign markets.

Department of commerce reports show that while our cotton exports declined more than 1,000,000 bales in the last three months, as compared with the same period last year, there has been no decline in world consumption.

Foreign millers are buying more cotton from India, Brazil, Egypt and China, because it is cheaper than American cotton. The world production in the 1933-1934 crop year was 25,451,000 bales, and the consumption 25,324,000 bales. English millers have spent many millions of dollars on new equipment to enable them to handle low grade Indian cotton, which is reflected in our exports.

MUNSELL HEIR TELLS OF GIVING MILLION; IN U. S. LODGING HOUSE

New York, Nov. 21.—(AP)—As he sat on a cot at the Hartford house, a free lodging house provided by the Federal Emergency Relief, Alexander Ector Orr Munsell knitted a sweater and said tonight he had given away his entire fortune of almost a million dollars during the last 15 months. He says he's happy.

Munsell, one of four heirs to the $7,000,000 legacy of his grandfather of the same name, who was president of the New York Life Insurance company, settled half the bequest on his estranged wife, Margaret Jean Dodd Munsell of Boston.

"I have managed to get by during the last year," he disclosed, "by earning a little serving on Baltimore juries. In fact, I have managed to save $300."

Munsell said he earned $100,000 in a single day just before the market slump in 1929.

At the Hartford house he interviews those seeking government relief and he is trying now to interest wealthy persons in contributing relief to the poor. He has one son at a Tucson school and another at school in Concord, Mass. His mother and one sister, Mrs. Julia Nowles, reside in San Francisco.

Four Bandits Flee When Employe Runs from Office

Four bandits, one carrying a submachine gun, were foiled yesterday by the action of a woman employé of the Bankers' Life and Casualty Insurance company, 4746 North Damen avenue, when they attempted to hold up the offices of the company during the noon hour. Mrs. Stella Mariott 1745 North Sawyer avenue, a stenographer, bolted from the room as the bandits entered. Seeing her leave, the gunmen fled without loot and without molesting Mercer Daniels, office manager, the only other employé present.

U. S. INJUNCTION KNOCKS OUT AAA MILK CODE HERE

Holds Congress Has No Power to Regulate.

Holding that neither congress nor the secretary of agriculture has the authority to regulate milk production, Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday issued a permanent injunction restraining the government from enforcing the Agricultural Adjustment administration's milk licensing agreement in the Chicago area.

Judge Barnes' opinion, while similar to a temporary restraining order issued last June in a parallel case, attacks for the first time the right of congress to limit milk production. Attorneys for the farmers and producers who sought the injunction called the opinion a serious blow at the validity of the entire Agricultural Adustment act.

Coöperative Group Wins.

The injunction was granted on the original petition of the Columbus Milk Producers' Coöperative association, a Wisconsin corporation, and 120 individual farmer members, and the intervening petition of the Meadowmoor Dairies, Inc., of Chicago.

It is directed against Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture; Homer J. Cummings, attorney general of the United States; Frank C. Baker, milk marketing administrator for the Chicago area, and Dwight H. Green, United States district attorney.

In granting the injunction Judge Barnes denied the defendants' cross-petition for an injunction to restrain the milk producers and dealers from continuing to violate the milk licensing agreement.

Decides Two Major Issues.

Judge Barnes based his opinion on two basic issues: one the validity of the Chicago milk license, and the other its applicability to the plaintiffs and interveners.

He agreed with the defendants' contention that the petitioners were engaged in interstate commerce, but took issue with the claim that the entire Chicago sales area with respect to milk is in the current of interstate commerce.

"The fact that an article is produced for export to another state," the opinion said in part, "does not of itself make it an article of interstate commerce within the meaning of section 8, article I, of the constitution. The power to regulate interstate commerce, or transactions affecting interstate commerce, does not embrace the power to regulate the production of articles intended for commerce."

This was in agreement with Judge Barnes' opinion in the earlier case, that of the Edgewater Dairy company and five other Illinois milk dealers. In the earlier opinion Judge Barnes held that milk production is not "interstate commerce."

REAL AID TO FARMER SECRET OF RECOVERY, SAYS F. W. SARGENT

If the United States would work its way back to a permanent recovery, the income of the farmer must be restored to a point at least commensurate with that of other workers, said Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago and North Western railroad, in an address last night before the Union League club of Elgin.

He spoke before a large audience of business leaders, gathered to celebrate the 85th anniversary of the arrival at Elgin of the first train over the North Western railroad. Leaders believe Elgin's growth to a city of 37,000 is due largely to the influence of the railroad.

In sifting and analyzing the causes of the depression, Mr. Sargent eliminated such reasons as lack of volume of money or over production. Even in 1929, the country could produce only 80 per cent of the needs of the population, said Mr. Sargent.

Since 1909 the income of the farmer has steadily declined. Restore it to a level equal with that of other classes, Mr. Sargent added, and a great market will be opened for goods. To do this the farmer must be aided in every possible way, financially, scientifically, and with a lower tarif.

FORMER LEGION OFFICIAL HELD AS EMBEZZLER

Amos B. Shepard, 36 years old, Wheaton attorney, a former commander of the Wheaton post of the American Legion, was held to the federal grand jury in $4,000 bonds yesterday by United States Commissioner Walker on a charge of embezzling $4,600 from an incompetent war veteran.

The veteran is Simon Blazek, 40 years old, 238 South Grant street, Westmont. Shepard was appointed by the Du Page county Probate court as conservator of Blazek's estate, which consisted largely of a $100 monthly disability payment from the government. Shepard is alleged to have confessed to his bondsmen that he was in difficulties in Blazek's accounts, but denied the charge to government investigators.

THROW OUT N. Y. LAW TO EMBARGO OUTSIDE MILK

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The New York law that was designed to protect farmers of this state from the competition of outsiders in the sale of loose milk was declared unconstitutional today by a special federal statutory court composed of Judges Learned Hand, William Bondy and Robert P. Patterson.

The court issued injunctions which virtually strip the state dairymen of protection from being undersold by rivals in other states. Unless the United States Supreme court entertains an appeal, it will be possible hereafter for New York wholesalers to purchase milk in other states below the New York cost and sell it here. The decision is based on the theory that the law is in restraint of interstate trade.

The injunction applies, however, only to the sale of milk contained in "cans or in other original packages."

PRODUCTION OF LIVESTOCK TAKES JUMP IN RUSSIA

MOSCOW, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Although the production of horses declined by about 1,000,000 head this year as compared with last, other live stock production in the soviet union showed a decided increase, according to a census published today. The census was made in July by Nikolai Ossinsky, the chief of the statistics board.

The survey showed the number of horses had decreased from 16,578,000 last year to 15,611,000 this year. These figures are compared to the 35,100,000 horses in Russia in 1913.

The total number of cattle rose from 38,380,000 to 42,380,000. The total number of cows was stationary at 19,550,000, but the number of hogs rose to 17,364,000, an increase of more than 43 per cent. Before the war Russia had 58,900,000 cattle and 20,300,000 hogs.

He Denounces Prosecutors.

Pointing his finger toward the prosecution table, Mr. Condon shouted:

"And sitting on that side of the table is the school that is not seeking the truth, but is the slave to sophistry. I am speaking God's truth when I say this. Huling is the god of their sophistical universe, of those who seek to destroy these splendid characters so painfully built with truth, honesty, and integrity."

[Harold Huling, chief of the government accountants, was called a correspondence school accountant and a Lincoln park navigator by defense lawyers the day before.]

"Prof. Huling," continued Mr. Condon, "can build all the pillars on earth, and all his shafts of color, but he cannot destroy the marble of character. He cannot destroy the truth. That is the whole question here. There was never any trial in the history of this court or any other so free from the evidence of fraud as this."

Speaks for Four Defendants.

Mr. Condon defended in detail Waldo F. Tobey, Edward J. Doyle, Philip J. McEnroe and John O'Keefe.

Tobey was attorney for Corporation Securities, Doyle is acting president of Commonwealth Edison company and McEnroe and O'Keefe were officials of Corporation Securities.

The latter three Mr. Condon described as "Insull's boys," men who had grown up in the atmosphere of the Insull character and to whom he had planned to leave a part of his great empire. This was "Insull's crime," that he had planned to hold control so that he "could give it to men such as these," said Mr. Condon.

"Insull," he went on, "was the master hand that was building character, building for these young men, who have stood by him to the bitter end. And they are ready to go with him now, to any place that God may send him. These are not empty words, but the expression of a soul."

In Defense of Field.

Attorney Burnham made a brilliant argument in behalf of his client, Mr. Field. He startled the jurors into a wide awake attitude early in his address, when, after reciting what he called the humble beginnings of Mr. Field's life in Chicago and his decision to devote himself to the interest of the public, he cried in a loud voice:

"This was his life until Feb. 27, 1933, when there descended upon him like a bolt from the blue this charge by the country he had served, that he was a rascal, a cheat and a fraud. They said he had devised a scheme to cheat the public by the sale of stocks which were sold six months and a year before he had anything to do with the company. [Mr. Field became a director of Corporation Securities in 1930. The company was organized in 1929.]

"We couldn't get a bill of particulars. From that day until the gavel fell in this case we were kept in ignorance.

"We listened for the mention of Stanley Field in the opening statement of District Attorney Green, to learn what this dastardly plot was.

Wait 18 Days for Mention.

"We listened in vain. We waited for 18 days of the trial before Stanley Field's name was ever mentioned, and then it came in one of Mr. Huling's pictures. We wait five days more and find at last that Mr. Field was present at a meeting of the board of directors of this company. He is mentioned at six other meetings. That is all.

"After seven weeks, sitting here in humble curiosity, we come to the closing arguments and in one paragraph Mr. Forest Harness [a special prosecutor] again makes the charge. Think of it. They end up with a charge as they started. There is no proof, not even a theory. They have not yet revealed their hand and never will. They must show that Field knew of a plot and joined it.

"There can be no fraud unless in the mind of the accused there is an evil purpose to accomplish results! When dealing with crime 'ought to know' is not a substitute for knowledge. Motive is the searchlight under the law.

Denies a Motive for Fraud.

"What motive could Stanley Field have for defrauding the public that he had devoted his life to serving for 16 years? What motive to turn crook and burglar? Being a director does not make him criminally liable for something done by someone else. At the meetings he attended he approved things that had already been done.

"Inference cannot be built into a verdict of guilty. Field on the stand, the truth in his voice and face, said these things guessed against him were not true. They can't put him into a plot to sell stocks when he did not know the stocks were sold. This is one of the most peculiar cases on record. They are trying to prove that men cheated the public so they could lose fourteen million dollars and abandon a life of honesty in the process.

"The late Justice Brewer said that 'a wisdom born after the event is the cheapest of all wisdom. Anybody could have discovered America after 1492.' You can't suspect and conjecture and speculate a man into prison on a plot that never existed."

Three Other Lawyers Speak.

Attorneys William Haight, John J. Healy and Charles Lounsbury also addressed the jury yesterday. Today Attorneys Jay Fred Reeve and Harry Ditchburne will speak and then the defense will be rounded up and closed by Floyd E. Thompson, counsel for Insull and his son, Samuel Jr. The government's arguments in rebuttal are expected to begin Friday afternoon, with the case going to the jury Monday afternoon.

Mr. Haight, in his argument for Defendant Charles R. Whitworth, former auditor for Corporation Securities, said that even though the government's evidence on accounting was all true, there was no evidence of criminality. He explained the difference in the two accounting systems.

"Government witnesses admitted on cross-examination that there is not one settled accounting system," Haight declared, "and there is a preponderance of evidence that our method is a reputable one. Stock dividends can be considered the same as cash dividends because the former can be sold at the market. There is no dispute about including cash dividends in income and stock dividends can be listed likewise.

Other Phases Discussed.

"As for depreciation and organization expense, government witnesses have stated on cross-examination and our experts have declared affirmatively that it is proper to charge these items against capital surplus. They also said that a depreciation item does not have to be carried on succeeding statements after it has been listed once.

"Mr. Whitworth supervised the auditing of Corporation Securities and Halsey, Stuart & Co., but he had no connection with other Insull companies. I do not mean that he thought anything was wrong. Nothing was wrong.

"The most that can be said against him is that his accounting theories did not agree with those of Mr. Huling. Even if all of the government theories were true there is no evidence of criminality in this case."

Healy Pleads for Sills.

Attorney Healy in the plea for Clarence W. Sills, former vice president of Corporation Securities, said that this defendant's acts in 1929 could not be judged by hindsight today. He dwelt on the nation-wide reputation of the men on trial and ridiculed the "idea that they could engage in a despicable scheme to cheat the public."

One of the government charges is that the market was "rigged" in the reorganization of Middle West Utilities, Insull holding company, in 1929 and 1930, and that $18,000,000 of this stock was "dumped" into Corporation Securities and Insull Utility Investments.

"The government says Mr. Sills and his associates wanted to raise Middle West's price on the market from $170 to $200 a share," Healy declared. "Why, then, did Mr. Sills buy 100 shares at $222 in July, 1929? He was buying for investment. So were the others.

"These men believed Middle West was worth what they paid for it. They bought $6,000,000 worth. They saw it go from 220 to 310, later to 570. If they were rigging the market wouldn't they have dumped the stock on the public at a high price after buying it low? Their testimony shows they still hold the stock. The government is trying to convict these men as fools as well as knaves. Both ideas are absurd."

The attorney then paid tribute to Samuel Insull, whose appearance on the stand he characterized as the "most heroic exhibition I have ever seen."

"Mr. Insull has the courage of a lion," Healy asserted. "He is fighting for the only thing left to him—the honor of his name. You can't wipe from the record the fact that he and his family lost $15,000,000 in the collapse of Corporation Securities. Halsey-Stuart lost between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000.

"As the record stands here, we can prove the United States government is insolvent at this very minute. Its bonded indebtedness is tremendous. If its forts, arsenals, battleships, and other assets were sold at forced liquidation they would not bring enough to pay 1 per cent of the debt. No one has the temerity to say the government is insolvent. Yet it deals in futures—taxes—more than Corporation Securities would have dared to do."

Attorney Lounsbury Finishes.

Attorney Lounsbury completed the argument that he began on Tuesday. He spoke for four defendants of the Halsey-Stuart group, Harold L. and Charles B. Stuart, Clarence T. MacNeille, and Frank Shrader.

Mr. Lounsbury declared that the prosecution was an "attempt to crucify character on the cross of prejudice."

A court session had been planned last night but was abandoned when Judge Wilkerson extended the hours of court during the day.

WORKER KILLED IN ROUNDHOUSE.

Chester Richards, 55 years old, of Westmont, Ill., a carpenter, died yesterday in the Wesley Memorial hospital, from injuries incurred when a supporting chain snapped on a coal chute he was repairing in the roundhouse of the Burlington railroad at 1625 South Western avenue. He fell 24 feet to the ground.

TRUSTEE OF INSULL UTILITY SUES 5 N. Y. BANKS FOR $1,540,520

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Harry A. Bigelow, trustee in bankruptcy for Insull Utility Investments, Inc., began suit in federal court today to recover from five New York banks and trust companies the sum of $1,540,520, which, it is alleged, represents preferential payments in bankruptcy made to the banks by the corporation within four months before the filing of a bankruptcy petition against it by three other creditors on April 16, 1932.

From the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company the trustee seeks to recover $500,000 in cash and a $236,489 balance in a checking account transferred to the bank by the corporation two days before the bankruptcy petition was filed.

The Guaranty Trust company is named in an action to recover interest payments of $83,333 made within the four months, and a checking account balance of $258,579 transferred to the bank two days before the petition was filed. From the Commercial National Bank and Trust company recovery of interest payments of $23,708 and a transferred bank balance of $81,118 is sought.

From the Irving Trust company the trustee seeks to recover $74,388 in interest payments and a bank balance of $257,190 transferred two days before the petition was filed. From the Bankers' Trust company the recovery of a balance of $25,711 is sought.

The petition alleges that the payments were made by the corporation in partial settlement of debts to the various banks at a time when it was insolvent, thereby preferring these creditors over all others of like class.

PROFESSOR TRIES STREAM LINES FOR BUILDINGS

Adds That to Ann Arbor Transit Tests.

BY HAL FOUST.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Aerodynamics, better known as streamlining, is seen at the engineering school of the University of Michigan here as a scientific development of the depression that will reduce head winds in the advancement of world economics.

E. A. Stalker, professor of the aeronautical engineering department of the school, this afternoon demonstrated the operation of the university's so-called wind tunnel. There streamlined designs are being perfected for railroad trains, automobiles, ocean liners, and even skyscrapers.

Would Scrap Old Models.

"By obsoleting extravagant conventional designs," the professor said, "there should be a decided stimulus to industry generally. In transportation, it is obvious that vehicles wasting their power on avoidable wind resistance will have to be replaced.

"Not as obvious but just as realistic is the application of streamlining to skyscrapers. Extra materials and expense are now added to tall buildings to withstand wind pressure that would not exist were their shapes modified along aerodynamic lines."

Air Drag Is Resistance.

"True streamlining," Prof. Stalker said, "could conserve about half the power expenditure at 70 miles an hour of an automobile representing a composite of 1934 models. Most of this wind resistance consists of the drag of turbulent air and partial vacuum in the rear of a car due to its blunt back.

"This drag could be eliminated by building a long, tapering tail on the automobile, but this wouldn't be possible. All garages would have to be remodeled. In parking the tail would sweep the sidewalk.

"As a substitute for the long tail we have installed slots in miniature models that have proved successful in the wind tunnel tests. There is a vertical setback, a long slit in the body approximately over the rear wheels. Through this slot wind can be blown mechanically from a fan driven off the rear axle or from an intake forward in the car.

Cut Rear Air Drag.

"The streams of air blown from both sides into the wake of the automobile eliminate 40 per cent of the rear drag. That reduces the total wind resistance of an automobile from 20 to 25 per cent."

The Pullman Car and Manufacturing company used the university's wind tunnel in perfecting the design of the streamlined trains it is building. Prof. Stalker estimated that the shape of these trains saves about 20 per cent of their fuel consumption or, expressed another way, that the horsepower of their engines would have to be 20 per cent greater were the lines of conventional shape.

In the wind tunnel this afternoon a student and an assistant professor were working on a new design for steamship funnels.

"If we can keep the smoke off the decks," said the professor, "the ships can burn cheaper coal and conserve on fuel bills. This is just a detail of ocean liners that probably will be modified in the future as a result of aerodynamic research.

"In the past superstructure has been built with little regard to streamlining. Side winds force ships to yaw, to be headed slightly to windward of their course, causing a loss of power from rudder drag and from the off center alignment of the propeller."

How Wind Tunnel Works.

The wind tunnel is a wooden tube with an interior diameter of eight feet and with air blown through it at measured speeds by an electrically driven propeller. The current is continuous, the tube bending like a pretzel to give the wind a circuitous route.

Minute models of trains, automobiles, buildings, airplanes or, as this afternoon, smoke stacks are placed in the wind stream supported by fine wires attached to delicate scales that measure stresses.

In working on train models, about four feet long and built to scale, wax noses and tails are sometimes used for convenience in experimenting with the efficacy of various shapes. The model is suspended so as to receive the wind stream head on, and so as to receive it at various side angles.

"These side winds complicate the problem of streamlining automobiles and trains," Prof. Stalker said. "An airplane always is headed directly into the air resistance."

NEW SCHEDULES ON SIX AIR MAIL ROUTES ORDERED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Postmaster General James A. Farley today announced the authorization of additional air mail schedules on six routes, including two from Chicago—the Chicago-Kansas City and the Chicago-New Orleans routes. The new schedules will increase the annual mileage flown over the air mail routes by 3,083,520 miles, bringing it to 35,120,792 miles, according to Farley's announcement. This is still 311,948 miles below the total flown before Farley canceled the old air mail contracts.

List New Schedules.

Los Angeles to Fort Worth, operated by American Air Lines, Inc., a distance of 1,324 miles.

St. Paul, Minn., to Fargo, N. D., operated by Hanford Air Lines, a distance of 226 miles.

Use Speedy Planes.

A temporary extension of the route from St. Petersburg, Fla., to Daytona Beach, Fla., from Daytona Beach to Jacksonville, a distance of 92 miles. This will be discontinued when the airport at Daytona Beach is completed and high speed New York-Miami planes may land there.

The additional schedule between Los Angeles and Fort Worth will result in another through schedule over the southern transcontinental route between Los Angeles and New York and will be served by high speed Douglas planes, according to the post-office department. In the beginning, this schedule will be operated from Nashville, Tenn., via Cleveland, to Newark, but when emergency air fields and the installation of lights are completed the new schedule will be operated from Nashville, via Washington, to Newark.

The inauguration of three of the new schedules—Chicago-New Orleans, Fargo-Seattle and St. Paul-Fargo—will be dependent upon the completion of the lighting of the airways over those routes and this will not be before early next year.

U. S. AIR SUPERIORITY STIRS UP A STORM IN HOUSE OF LORDS

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The air storm, which has been brewing in Great Britain ever since K. D. Parmentier and J. J. Moll in their American Douglas plane staggered critics with their performance in the recent England to Australia air race, broke in full force around the hapless air minister, Lord Londonderry, in the house of lords today.

His retort was that the British government not only knew all about the Douglas machine and had considered purchasing one nine months ago, but had gone one better and purchased for experimental investigation what government experts believed to be "an equally interesting American machine." He did not name this machine, but said the British wanted machines with a pay load of three and a half to five tons.

CALLSHUSBAND'S LIFE A TRAGEDY; BLAMES ALIMONY

"Other Woman" Charges Wife's Story False.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

The viewpoint of a woman named as the "other woman" in a bill for separate maintenance filed 16 years ago, who claims that the wife in the case had no foundation for her charges, and that she has made her husband's life a tragedy by refusing to divorce him while taking large sums of alimony from him, was expressed yesterday by Mrs. Mattie Schweitzer. Mrs. Schweitzer lives with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Eckebrecht, 613 South Prospect avenue, Park Ridge.

The recipient of alimony in question is Mrs. Rose Labadie, 1011 Thomas Street, Oak Park. Mrs. Labadie filed a bill for separate maintenance and accounting in June, 1918. In it she accused her husband, Harry H. Labadie, president of the Knickerbocker Case company, and Mrs. Schweitzer of misconduct in a cottage at Lake Marie. In 1923 she won a separate maintenance decree, being awarded alimony of $50 a week, and never has sought a divorce.

Denies Husband's Claims.

In a recent interview Mrs. Labadie said her husband had claimed that he had paid her $45,000 in alimony since he deserted her in 1914. She declared she "really didn't get that much, and it wasn't alimony, but money he owed me for my stock in the company, which he took."

"Mrs. Labadie's charges were ridiculous," said Mrs. Schweitzer, who is a pleasant faced matron of 49. "For some time she had me followed by private detectives. She never found out anything against me, as is shown by the fact that her $50,000 alienation of affections suit she filed against me in 1918 was dropped. I don't know on what evidence she got her separate maintenance decree.

"The cottage at Lake Marie was owned by my cousin and her husband, with whom Mr. Labadie roomed in the city. My parents, my cousin and Mr. Labadie often visited there, as did I, but there was nothing improper about it. We were never alone. There was never any romance there.

Once Were Good Friends.

"I suppose Mrs. Labadie is afraid her husband might marry me if she divorced him now. After having been single for 20 years it is not likely I would marry again."

Mrs. Schweitzer, whose husband and Mr. Labadie were in business together, recalled that she and Mrs. Labadie once were good friends. They had known each other since before her marriage.

Mrs. Labadie, in her alienation of affections suit, alleged that on the day of Mr. Schweitzer's funeral, Jan. 18, 1914, Mr. Labadie's condolences to the widow were unbecomingly warm. Mrs. Schweitzer recalled yesterday that she had contracted tuberculosis from her husband, that she weighed only 94 pounds at the time of his death, and was too ill and grief stricken to be conscious of Mrs. Labadie's suspicions.

Charges Story Distorted.

"It seems inconceivable that on such distortions she could be granted separate maintenance, and make her husband's life miserable for years," Mrs. Schweitzer said. "I have not seen Mr. Labadie in years, but I respect him as a fine man. He has paid and paid.

"He has nothing to look forward to but continuing to pay, while he goes into old age wifeless and childless. His only relaxation is going to church. He leads a lonely, economical life with his sister. Why does Mrs. Labadie need so much money?"

As for herself, said Mrs. Schweitzer smilingly, her neighbors in Park Ridge, where she has lived for 13 years, "know the kind of life I have lived, and I do not worry about the imaginings of others."

"I have had some tough times, bringing up my two children, who were 3 and 4½ years old when my husband died," she said.

Mayors Convene Here Today; Reliet to Be Leading Topic

A hundred chief executives of the country's principal cities will open the three day annual convention of the United States Conference of Mayors today in the Congress hotel. A number of the mayors were on the ground for the convention yesterday, including T. Semmes Walmsley of New Orleans, president of the conference.

Financing and the handling of relief for the idle are the most pressing problems facing municipal administrators, and from the topics expected to bulk largest in the discussions of the convention, several of the mayors said yesterday. Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, is to address the conference tomorrow.

Strong for Relief Work.

The physician-mayor of Wilmington, Del., Dr. William M. Speer, drew on his medical observations yesterday to condemn a dole supporting the unemployed in idleness as a system which harms its supposed beneficiaries perhaps more than anyone else. He urged that work relief, despite costs running twice or more than twice the outlay required for supporting the idle with a dole, will be found the most profitable relief method in the long run.

"A man living without work on the dole," said Dr. Speer, "may seem perfectly healthy so long as no unusual strain is put upon him. But he softens physically. His resistance is weakened. If he catches cold, he is in greater danger of developing pneumonia or tuberculosis.

Idleness Weakens Morale.

"At the same time his morale is destroyed by idleness. He is more likely to become an excessive user of liquor, through sheer boredom. In a few years he loses the incentive to look for work or to work if a job is offered to him, and at the same time his psychological resistance to disease is weakened."

Others among the early arrivals for the convention were Oscar Holcombe, mayor of Houston, Tex.; Charles L. Smith of Seattle, George Buck of San Diego, and M. C. Ellenstein of Newark.

Mayor Kelly will deliver an address of welcome at the opening session this morning, after which Mr. Walmsley will give his presidential speech. Dr. Charles E. Merriam of the University of Chicago, expert on municipal administration, will speak at a luncheon meeting and Mayor Frank Couzens of Detroit will preside at the afternoon session, devoted to municipal finance. Mayor La Guardia of New York is expected.

FURTHER PARING OF RELIEF STAF COSTS PLANNED

County Personnel to Be Cut 1,380.

Hope of further reductions in the staf of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, which last week ordered that one-fourth of its employés in the Cook county division be discharged, was held out yesterday by Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary. Mr. Reynolds explained for the first time his reasons for cutting the staf, now numbering about 9,350.

A total of 1,739 of the commission's employés, including 1,380 in Cook county, will have been discharged by Dec. 15, the executive secretary announced, resulting in a reduction of $156,399 a month in commission expenses beginning Jan. 1. The 1,739 employés to be discharged will include 1,380 from the Cook county staf, not 1,300 as previously announced, Mr. Reynolds said. In addition to the 1,380 to be taken from the Cook county pay roll, 359 will be discharged from the commission's central accounting department, instead of 250 as previously planned, making a total reduction of 1,739 in the commission's personnel. The reduction in the accounting department results from the transfer of work to various county relief headquarters.

Each Staf to Be Analyzed.

Of the $156,399 monthly economies to be effected by the commission, $121,649 will result from the reduction of 1,380 in the Cook county staf and $34,750 will result from the reduction of 359 in the central accounting department, it was said.

"We are now going to work on the 101 county organizations outside of Cook county," Mr. Reynolds declared. "There will be no horizontal reduction in staf, but each one will be analyzed individually to determine what cuts are possible. Some counties may be cut substantially, although none probably as much as 25 per cent."

Points to Problems.

Mr. Reynolds said the chief reason why the staf is being cut is that the relief burden has become "stabilized," at least relatively.

"When the IERC was organized almost three years ago, it was a time of great stress under the comparatively new emergency," Mr. Reynolds said.

"With families coming on the relief rolls in thousands, a standard of financial control and service was established on a determined basis to care for the needy and prevent abuse of relief.

"When the CWA came along, it meant more administrative work."

COUNTY SCHOOLS ASK U. S. FUNDS TO AVOID CLOSING

The threatened closing of forty-three county schools, with an enrollment of 16,000 pupils and 410 teachers, because of lack of funds may be forestalled through a federal grant of $150,000, Cook County Superintendent Otto F. Aken said yesterday.

Gov. Horner and State Administrator W. S. Reynolds of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission have suggested the grant from federal funds in recommendations to officials in Washington, D. C., Mr. Aken said. The county superintendent is planning to interview Federal Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins Saturday when he is in Chicago. Meanwhile reports and forms have been forwarded to Washington.

ACCEPTS DIVORCE IN AMENDED SUIT FOR SEPARATION

Judge Joseph B. David yesterday granted a divorce to Mrs. Marian Townsend, 7824 Cornell avenue, a radio singer, whom the judge persuaded to amend her original separate maintenance suit after his attempts to reconcile the couple had failed.

The husband, Clyde M. Townsend, 18262 Dixie highway, Homewood, auditor for the Illinois Central railroad, was ordered to pay his wife $1,000 in instalments, in lieu of alimony.

At a previous hearing Judge David had declared that judges, by exercising discretion, may prevent abuses of support actions by favoring outright divorces if it appears that reconciliation is impossible.

Gilbert Irwin Berry, better known as Gil Berry, former University of Illinois football star and at present a film actor, was sued for divorce in Superior court yesterday by Winnie Flint Berry, also a screen player.

Mrs. Berry, through her attorney, Reginald D. Osgoodby, charged that Berry deserted her Nov. 5, 1933. The Berrys were married in Wheaton Feb. 6, 1932.

Berry, who is 23 years old, entered motion pictures after a successful gridiron career which ended in 1932. His wife, who is 22 and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Flint, 1721 Thorndale avenue, also entered the movies following their marriage and she appeared as a chorus girl in "Murder at the Vanities" and other pictures.

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Among the five hundred attendants who roam the great hostelry on Ellis island, which the government maintains for a few immigrants, are two cooks skilled in Mohammedan and Hindu cooking.

Byron H. Uhl, assistant commissioner, says the force on the island is fully occupied with the intricate problem of deportations. He pointed out that there is a vast amount of detail connected with deporting an undesirable alien. It was hinted that it was much easier in the old days to permit 1,000 immigrants to enter America than it is now to get rid of one.

When Aliens Hastened to U. S.

Twenty years ago, some 5,000 aliens passed through Ellis island daily and accommodations were available for feeding and bedding 2,000 nightly. The staf has been slashed since then but there are now several employés for each person detained on the island. The big structure is kept in readiness for a return of the former thousands, a return which the officials admit, does not by any token appear to be imminent.

Passing through the large kitchens of the establishment, this observer learned of the Mohammedan and Hindu cooks. It was admitted that these gentlemen have much time on their hands. In fact, a guide who was questioned could not remember when there had been a recent need of their services.

It may comfort members of those sects to hear, however, that Uncle Sam, ready for any emergencies, never will commit the unpardonable sin of serving food to them which has been prepared by profane hands.

The visitor to the practically deserted Ellis island is rewarded with many a refreshing revelation. Perhaps the most interesting of these came during a persual of an instructive pamphlet which furnishes information to immigrants concerning the country they are to enter.

Stacks of these pamphlets were piled in the lonely library of the station. The little booklet, printed in seventeen languages, ranging from Armenian to Japanese, has not the circulation it once had, of course, but the few immigrants who now read it must find it fascinating reading.

Published by the national society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, the book carries the legend "revised to June, 1930." Reading this manual, the immigrant comes across the following extracts:

"Farming in America offers you an excellent opportunity to make a good living for yourself and family. Work at good wages can generally be found in the cities. Frequently this work is temporary.

Country Life More Healthful.

"The country life will be found to be more healthful . . . a very large number of the immigrants who have come to America have become independent by taking up farming or gardening."

Later on, under the heading "Buying a Farm," the booklet sounds a more realistic note.

"There are large numbers of employment offices," it says, "which will help you in finding a job. Welfare associations will also do much to help you in finding work."

The booklet winds up with the following sound advice: "Save and invest. In this way you will have money to help you if hard times come; you will have money if work fails; you will have money for old age and to leave to your children."

Makes Alimony Payment; Avoids Prison Sentence

Fred Fahlstrom, 2422 West 34th street, a plumber, won release from a six months' sentence for contempt yesterday when he paid $200 of $2,100 support money his divorced wife, Ruby, 8755 Harper avenue, alleged is due her. Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan, who had imposed the sentence Tuesday at the request of Mrs. Fahlstrom's lawyer, Norman Becker, continued a contempt order until Dec. 5 and released Fahlstrom in $500 bonds.

BRITAIN OFFERS FEDERAL SYSTEM FOR INDIAN RULE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 21.—The parliamentary joint committee's Indian reform report—which turns out to be a 350 page book—was made public today. It advocates a federation of self-governing units in India, but reserves to British control problems relating to financial stability and credit, defense and foreign relations, and tarifs which might restrict British goods.

Since the proposed reforms concern 300,000,000 people in India, such militant factions as Mahatma Gandhi's independence movement and its Hindu opposition, as well as others, have maintained constant agitation during the seven years of negotiations and planning and the 20 months' committee deliberation that preceded today's report.

Tory Party Split.

The dissension is hardly less in England, for besides the Labor party's minority report, the conservative majority is split within its ranks on the question. Winston Churchill and Sir Henry Page Croft are leading the fight to retain full English control of India. The Tory leader, Stanley Baldwin, is withholding his declaration until after a meeting of the party's central council on Dec. 4. The Labor party advocates progressive steps toward dominion status self-government for India.

The MacDonald government today advised the house of commons to reserve full time for debate on the bill. Since the introduction of reform legislation is not scheduled until after the Christmas holidays, there will be plenty of time to align forces for the parliamentary struggle.

The report is a cumulation of bits of India policy which have been announced from time to time. The recommended federal system is to be substituted for the present centralized government. Eleven provinces, two of them new [the Sind and Orissa] would be linked in the federal system with the native Indian states. The states would enter by voluntary act of their princes.

Burma is to be separated from India and given its own constitution and government.

Legislatures of two houses are recommended for Madras, Bombay, Bengal, the United Provinces and Bihar, and single houses for other provinces. The All-India legislature would have two houses with members elected by direct vote of the provinces and others nominated by the self-ruling native states. Minority groups are to be assured of quotation representation. The various legislatures and groups of ministers are to deal with internal matters. Provincial governors will have veto powers and the governor general [viceroy] will continue to act as the voice of the British government.

India Not Satisfied.

CALCUTTA, India, Nov. 21.—(AP)—A violent storm was raised in the Indian vernacular press today over the British parliamentary committee's report on Indian government reform.

The Anrita Bazar Patrika said recommendations contained in the report made "the estrangement between the countries complete and readjustment of their relations impossible."

The extreme organ of the Indian national congress "Forward" appeals to India to "fling the report back in the teeth of those having the audacity to offer it" to "demonstrate that Indians have sufficient self-respect to answer the insult."

The "Anand Bazar Patrika," leading Bengali daily, declared the report would be rejected even by moderates, would provoke discord and provincial jealousies and showed the bankrupt state of British statesmanship.

Moslem newspapers, on the other hand, showed disposition to accept the report as a reasonable compromise.

QUIT IT IN GOOD TEMPER.

It might prove to be the best possible thing if the naval negotiations involving Japan, Great Britain and the United States could be dropped in good temper. That they will get to any amicable agreement seems to be denied by the mood of the negotiators and by the irreconcilable interests of the nations. Great Britain and the United States probably could hit it off. Japan offers the trouble.

It is not at all difficult to give offense to the Japanese. Apparently it is not easy for American diplomacy to avoid it. Offenses are used in Japan, particularly by the military party, to further military aims and policies. They are a wall built against better understandings.

It seems probable that Japan's demand for naval equality, theoretical or actual, will be persisted in. Even if the Japanese government should be won over eventually to another view and should accept something less than it demands, there will remain in Japan the feeling that a serious affront has been given Japanese dignity and a serious injury done Japanese material interests.

If the Japanese negotiators cannot be persuaded to take a different view and if they break off the negotiations in the midst of controversy, exercising their right to do as they please in naval building, they will then have occasion to feel that Great Britain and the United States deliberately set about to weaken them and they will use their imagination or reason to find purposes harmful to them. In that case there will be no naval agreement, but there will be an accentuation of ill feeling and the Japanese can be persuaded by their own jingoes or by their imperialists that the occidental world has evil intentions and hopes to strike them down.

A conference breaking down in this fashion has come to worse than a mere failure to get noncompetitive ratios adopted. It has added to the contentious issues. The greatest apparent good that could come of the negotiations would be the abandonment of them in the best humor possible. This could be brought about if the United States would concede that it saw no reason for stipulating what Japan's navy should be. In the best of good nature the United States could advance the cause of peace by saying that it did not wish to be a party to imposing restrictions which any Japanese party could interpret as symbolic of Japanese inferiority or as containing elements of national insecurity.

In this way causes producing suspicion and irritability would be removed and the defenses of the two countries would not be impaired. A sensible America will not go to war with Japan because of the Japanese Asiatic policy. Issues will arise from time to time such as the one now presented by the Manchukuoan oil monopoly. They will be matters for diplomacy and should not be questions for the war department. There is an economic foundation for peace between Japan and the United States, if it can be left undisturbed by needless explosions.

Until better evidence to the contrary is presented, it would appear that the best thing the Japanese and American negotiators could do would be to shake hands in good nature and forget all about naval ratios. Certainly it would be better for the conference to break down in good temper than in bad.

CHARACTER ON TRIAL.

It is both easy and pleasant to coast down hill. It is also easy and in some ways pleasant to live without working. Most of the millions who are being supported today at public expense went on relief reluctantly and today are eager to find work which will again make them self-supporting, but there are unnumbered thousands who are growing contented with their dependence, as candid relief workers will testify. When it is remembered that something between a sixth and a tenth of the population is being supported by other people's work, the menace both to the individuals concerned and to the nation becomes manifest.

The subject is an unpleasant one and for that reason is seldom discussed. It should be discussed and, indeed, it must the discussed if we are to avoid the political and social consequences of having pauperized a considerable proportion of our population.

The larger the share of the national income which is distributed among those who contribute nothing, the smaller the share remaining as a reward for those who do work. Practically speaking, that means that those who work find their standard of living falling steadily toward the level of those who are supported in idleness. The temptation to join the class of dependents is, therefore, increased. Relief workers have observed that once the infection of dependence reaches a neighborhood the demands for relief from that area often increase at an alarming pace.

Today the character of many millions of the American people is on trial. Character may not be the product of temptation, as an earlier and sterner generation thought, but certainly temptation tests character, and for practical purposes provides the only proof of character.

In the long run those who have withstood the temptation to go on relief are coming out on top, if only because they have proved themselves trustworthy. The man who has worked hard while seeing his neighbor living in protected idleness has given evidence of character which is unmistakable. The man who has continued to look for work long after his friends have given up the search as hopeless is going to be among the first to find work. Those who have not dodged their debts, but have paid them at whatever personal sacrifice, are going to command credit when they need it. To their children they have given a priceless lesson in honesty and industry. For themselves they have earned the right to hold their heads high in any company.

WHAT! ANOTHER JOHN BROWN?

Gen. Smedley Butler's tall yarn about the proposed Fascist putsch would lead almost anybody to believe that the retired marine officer must have been walking in his sleep and is now talking through his hat. There is, it is true, a good deal to show here and there in the country that less stable Americans have been feeding on the loco weed, but in nearly every case their intentions, however fantastic, have been amiable and benign. At least none of them outside the communistic ranks have talked about running anybody up the street. That's a self-ordained Red privilege.

As times continued to perplex men's minds and distress their spirit it was natural that there should be more of the seeing of visions and multiplication of the number of people who would like to find some way of doing themselves and their fellow men good, however strange the way. Thus arise the Utopians, the Old Age Townsenders, Mr. Sinclair's Epicacians, and goodness knows how many more other animated citizens, male and female, who have been signing petitions, going millennial, having trance ideas, organizing with mystic rites and searching for the promised land.

Some of these schemes were calculated to raise hob if they got going, but none of them threatened to produce a crop of Steel Helmets, Storm Troops, or men on white horses. Huey Long, who has begun to think he is Hitler, made the nearest approach to military blood and thunder, but even in these times Huey is a special museum piece and as much as he has pushed the citizens of Louisiana around he hasn't yet brought any of them before the firing squad.

Gen. Butler says that he declined to lead a Fascist putsch which was being arranged to take Washington by storm in the near future, with some astonishing armies springing up to the bewilderment of all concerned, putting at the head of the government as President some suitable instrument of the Fascist cause. The general will have to produce a lot of proof before he will convince his fellow countrymen either that he is not dreaming or that some hoaxer has not been preparing to sell him the Washington monument.

There is one thing we may be sure of, which is that continental Europe, where the rule is that the wilder an American yarn the greater its credibility, will eat this Butler story up. Already the impressionable journalists of central Europe have had Arizona conducting a civil war with neighboring states and have had Huey Long seceding from the Union. They will be quite willing to inform their readers that the United States will get its Nazis and its fuehrer almost any day now. The state of America as revealed to the European mind would astonish almost any American.

MR. SINCLAIR MAY NOW OBSERVE.

Upton Sinclair probably has read no part of Secretary Wallace's book, "New Frontiers," with greater interest than the following paragraph:

"The industries of the country must be brought face to face with their responsibility for these unemployed. If they dodge it will be the duty of the government to go ahead with its own method of rehabilitation and build out of the unemployed a self-subsistence system of exchange coöperatives which are outside the capitalistic system."

Why shouldn't Mr. Sinclair call Mr. Farley Jim and Mr. Ickes Harold, Dr. Tugwell Rex and Mr. Wallace Henry? Alas, poor EPIC, and they all knew him well.

THE BLOW AT LENDERS.

[Grand Rapids Press.]

The federal judge in Louisville who has upheld the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage moratorium act has surprised a large number of people, including probably even the President himself. Having delivered himself of the opinion a few months ago that the act was not only unconstitutional but "unconscionable," this judge, Charles I. Dawson, has reconsidered the unkind remarks and decided that it isn't as bad as he first thought it was. Whether President Roosevelt, who shook his head and expressed strong doubts over the bill when signing it, has had a similar change of heart, of course, cannot be known, but the shift of the federal judge adds only to the general confusion surrounding the legislation.

It appeared, like several other inflation measures, toward the tail end of the last session of congress without administration support. Championed by the senator from debt ridden North Dakota, the act provides for a suspension of mortgage payments for five years where needed and the creditor is prevented from dispossessing the farmer if the latter pays a nominal rent during the period. Since then the measure has been alternately frowned upon and praised until this about face of Judge Dawson admirably summarizes the attitude of many authorities.

Nevertheless, if this latest favorable ruling on the act is upheld by the Supreme court, an effect not contemplated is given tremendous encouragement—that is, the urging of government into farm banking. Under the terms of the act, the lender is penalized severely and the borrower favored in generous fashion, as the approving opinion of Judge Dawson agrees. The natural consequence is that private lenders will not be overly eager in the future to finance farm mortgages. The impetus will then be given to the government's entrance into the field on a large scale and permanent basis, as the only agency satisfied to carry on the unfavorable lending tasks in connection with farm mortgages.

With these apparently inevitable results ahead if the Frazier-Lemke act is upheld by the Supreme court, it will be proved again that in legislation, as in arguments, one thing leads to another. And the second or third effect removed from the original law often is the one that has the tucked away dynamite in it which may go off when least expected.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. By F. P.

GEN. SMEDLEY D. BUTLER arises to announce a horrific plot of Wall street to organize a private army of 500,000 men, overthrow the administration and install in its place a Fascist government. Well, well (or Wall, Wall), think of dying for dear old Wall street! And the soldiers would carry yards and yards of ticker tape instead of flags and the bulls would be the shock troops and the bears bring up the reserves. No, the bulls and bears together would probably push the lambs in for shock troops. What are lambs for, anyhow? Wall street hasn't asked me to enlist in its army, but if it does it's going to get a snooty telegram: "Before I rally around Wall street, where is that money I invested in 1929 in Glass Bath Mitts, Limited?" No, if Wall street starts anything I'm going to be on the other side. With my devoted battalion behind me I plan to swoop down and capture ten batteries of ticker tape. And if the rest of the anti-Fascists do as well, then the war will be over, for how could Wall street continue to fight without its ticker tape? Up, men, and at 'em. Get that bald headed fat guy first. He's the bird that sold me Glass Bath Mitts, Limited!

THOMAS CHATTERTON.

(Who died aged 18.)

Embittered with small vehement cries
Of unjust censurers, who could not see
His greatness, for his immaturity,
The youthful Chatterton withdrew his eyes
From the world's sorrows, and its overwise,
And drowned the voice of music utterly
In Death, just as a trembling prophecy

So perished England's young Anacreon,
Before his scarcely wetted pen could frame
The dulcet prelude of a deathless song,
And write his name beyond Oblivion;
Yet shall his youth be eloquent, and claim
The godlike glories that to him belong.

PYGMALION.

TWO PEOPLE DIE of thirst on a bleak island in the Pacific and the world rocks with excitement. Thirty-five thousand people die in one year in these United States in auto accidents and very little attention is paid to it. It's the unusual that attracts. If thirty-five thousand people were to die in a year of thirst on lonely islands in the Pacific we would merely yawn when we read about it and say: "Wonder if Ohio State could lick Minnesota?"

IN THIS DAY AND AGE divorces and remarriages are so common that we think nothing about them at all. Still, Mrs. Hilda Larson Nelson Johnson Klingstrom Johnson Pyzos Paulpaulos Ek La Parr of Rockford, Ill., causes us to raise our eyebrows slightly and appear almost interested. Mrs. Hilda Larson Nelson Johnson Klingstrom Johnson Pyzos Paulpaulos Ek La Parr is being sued for divorce by her latest husband, who avers, among other things, that she berates him for being a very poor bridge player and addicted to trumping her ace. What is amazing is how with all of her weddings and divorcing Mrs. Hilda Larson Nelson Johnson Klingstrom Johnson Pyzos Paulpaulos Ek La Parr has any time to play bridge.

"'GIVE US PARITY or We'll Take It,' Says Japan to U. S. and Great Britain."—Headline. And about all the U. S. and Great Britain can do is to echo the historic conversation between Mr. Cassidy, who ran a saloon, and his bartender:

"Has he had it?"
"He has."
"He is."

DID YOU EVER WAIT while the battery in your car was being recharged? Did you ever watch the pot waiting for it to boil? Did you ever walk ten miles to the country fair and wait for the balloon to go up? Did you ever sit in a boat all day long under a boiling sun waiting for some kind of fish, any kind, to take a bite at the hook? What I'm trying to get at is that there are some things which simply refuse to be hurried. They happen when they happen. The Linebook of 1934 comes out Friday, Dec. 7, and no pleading, no prayer, no watchful waiting, no entreaty can change it. We all have to wait. BUT—you can order it right now—mind, you won't get it until Friday, Dec. 7, but you can order it of the Tribune Public Service, No. 1 South Dearborn street, and that affords a little action that may be something of a relief.

AND NOW WE HAVE the "somnokinetograph," which roosts by our bedside and records our movements in sleep. If that machine could go a little further and not only record our movements in sleep, when we kick the blankets on the floor but also automatically yank 'em back and put 'em over us again, I'd buy four of them right away.

REALM.

One area is all my own
Without or title or decree,
Taxless and formless, but to me
A green expanse, a golden zone.
Quaint birds go singing through a wood
Compound of childish dreams and love,
Flowers grow in magic texture, wove
Of something lost in babyhood.

A heart burns its undying fire
In the dear house no hands have wrought,
My books are bubbling wells of thought.
My mind knows neither let nor tire.
Dear eyes from the blue shadows shine,
A hand holds mine in honest touch;
Why need I ponder overmuch
Upon you, Life? These things are mine!

Stand back, I say! You shall not press
Into my sacred loneliness!

MENOPAUSE, OR CHANGE OF LIFE.

No one welcomes signs of advancing age. In fact, most of us try in every way to push back the hand of time. Despite our most strenuous efforts, age advances inexorably and takes its toll on the human body. Crow's feet appear; the hair loses its pigment, slowly in some and rapidly in others; and muscles become flabby.

Much of the ageing process occurs through the atrophy or shrinking of certain glands or secreting structures within the body. One such phenomenon affecting women is known as the menopause or change of life. Various physical changes are responsible for the condition.

Menstruation normally ceases between the ages of 45 and 55, and the duration of the change varies from a few months to a few years. It is the end of the reproductive period, which embraces, on the average, about thirty-three years.

There is a common belief that great danger attends this period, that insanity may develop, and that apoplexy, caused by the rush of blood to the head, is much more frequent. These beliefs are without foundation.

The chief symptom of the change of life is cessation of menstruation. In certain women this occurs abruptly. As a rule, however, the process is gradual and may be characterized by a delayed flow which is normal or decreased in amount. Now and then excessive flow is observed. While this symptom may have no special significance, yet it may be an early indication of a beginning cancerous growth. Cancer, particularly of the pelvic organs in women, if recognized early is curable in competent hands. The importance, therefore, of a careful examination should require no emphasis.

Another characteristic symptom is the hot flush, in which the face, neck, and chest may suddenly become bright red. There is a feeling of heat and sometimes a sense of suffocation. These flushes often take place at night and are most disturbing, particularly if they are accompanied by profuse perspiration.

Dizziness is a fairly common symptom and the woman may complain of periodical headache and more rarely of palpitation of the heart.

Psychic symptoms now and then develop. The patient may become irritable, hypersensitive, or depressed. It has been observed that these symptoms are more noticeable and annoying in those who are in poor physical health. The woman who is nervous and irritable prior to the menopause may become more so during this period. On the other hand, those who possess poise and reasonable control of emotions usually go through the period with comfort.

Whenever the symptoms become sufficiently pronounced to disturb comfort and rest, treatment is required. The feeding of ovarian extracts or ovarian tissue has been employed. Recently, with the introduction of ovarian hormones, the method of administration has been much simplified. A single dose given hypodermically supplies the needed substance.

It is important that every woman in this period of life shall follow correct rules of hygiene. Exercise must be adequate, but not to the point of fatigue, and more than normal rest is necessary. A tendency to gain weight will need to be watched, and less rather than more food is required at this time. Social activities outside the home should be increased rather than decreased, and change of scene often relieves the tendency to irritability. If possible household cares should be lightened. In some cases there is marked increase in mental alertness and, as the change advances, improvement is noted in the functions of digestion.

We must look upon the phenomenon of the change of life as nature's way of safeguarding the woman, of conserving her body resistance and rendering impossible the strain of child bearing.

A BALD PHILOSOPHER.

R. H. writes: Referring to a recent inquiry on baldness, I want to say that baldness is an asset and not a liability. It is merely a stage of evolution. I started to lose my hair when I was 15, and was completely bald by the time I was 20. I was graduated from college at 22 and went into a business office. Because I was bald I got promotions that I did not deserve.

GOITER.

Mrs. C. B. writes: Is it safe for a woman with a goiter to have a child? The goiter is apparently not bothering her.

REPLY.

KIDNEY STONES.

L. V. writes: X-ray pictures show a calcium stone in the pelvis of my kidney too large to pass out. I have no pain. Do you suggest operation?

REPLY.

If there is a trace of pus or blood in the urine or interruption of the flow of urine from the affected kidney the stone should be removed. As a rule such stones may be removed with little danger.

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.

People and animals have been known to sink out of sight and drown in quicksand, just as in water. However, there is no suction in quicksand, any more than in water. When a person tries to pull his leg out of quicksand he may feel this movement hindered by a suction produced by the pulling. This suction, however, does not draw him any deeper. There is no force other than gravity which draws him downward.

CONDEMNED BUILDINGS.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—In reply to H. P.'s article of Nov. 13 where he so thoroughly condemns the building inspection department for laxity, let me first state that I am not an employé of the building department, but am engaged in a demolition project condemning substandard buildings and am therefore in a position to explain to Mr. H. P. what happens after a building is condemned.

In neighborhoods, especially of the type where this building caved in, the neighbors somehow find out, in most cases within twenty-four hours after the last family left the premises, that the building was condemned, and immediately proceed to strip the place of plumbing, fixtures and timber with absolutely no regard for the structural function of some of these members. A very peculiar circumstance is that they will invariably start their wrecking proceedings from the bottom and work up, which to the most juvenile mind would spell disaster.

Within a number of hours the load from the upper floor or floors, together with the weakened condition of the lower supporting members, causes this place to be a veritable hazard, especially when children start playing.

The building department is not at all responsible and should not be blamed for what happened on Paulina street recently. However, since the public begins their wrecking proceedings so immediately after condemnation the only remedy would be to have a twenty-four hour vigil by uniformed policemen on condemned premises until the building could be satisfactorily removed.

THE MICROVIVARIUM.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 16.—I noticed in one of the issues of THE TRIBUNE during the latter part of October that a movement is under way to keep the Microvivarium exhibit of the Hall of Science at the Fair as a permanent Chicago possession. I know that I voice the opinions of large numbers of laymen as well as science teachers outside of the Chicago boundaries when I express the hope that this movement may be successful.

Among the many very interesting educational exhibits which A Century of Progress Exposition brought us is the Microvivarium, as demonstrated by Dr. G. Roemmert. This unusual exhibit brings before our astonished gaze the restless activity of a world that has been hitherto denied to the layman—the microscopic world. Here we see, in great magnification, those strange forms of life that exist in a tiny droplet of water. Just as the Planetarium brings us the wonders of the heavens, just as the Aquarium brings us the wonders of the deep, so does the Microvivarium bring us the wonders of the world of neighbors so tiny that for countless ages man did not even suspect their existence.

Let us hope that Chicago will not permit this interesting exhibit to pass into history with the closing of A Century of Progress Exposition. It would be entirely in keeping with Chicago's civic alertness that it should be the first American city to establish a permanent Microvivarium exhibit. Its value to the school children as well as to the adults would be incalculable. One of the charms of such an exhibit lies in the fact that it can be visited over and over again, with an ever changing spectacle on each occasion.

THE WASHBURNE SCHOOL.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—I think the Washburne Continuation school should be in a better, cleaner district. It is located at 1225 North Sedgwick street and the school itself surely needs redecorating.

I understand that Washburne is the only school of continuation in Chicago. When you arrive late in the classrooms you get a good bawling out no matter what your explanation may be. When I go in the morning I leave at 6:30 and arrive exactly at 8. This is due to the long distance and crowded street cars. I suppose I could travel by "L," but one hasn't always the money. This is 1934 and the money "ain't." The school is dismissed at 4:30 and I arrive home at 6. Why can't they have a school on the south side? They would have less trouble in getting pupils to attend regularly and promptly. I think many members of the faculty will agree with me.

PERSONAL SERVICES.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 14.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I desire information regarding a "daughter's allowance." I was told that a daughter who spends her entire life with her parents and gives them the care as I have done in the last ten years is entitled to some allowance after their death. There is no will nor any amount left me for this work. There is a home to be divided between two sons and myself, and I feel that I deserve more than a third and would like in some way to hold the home for myself. Can I collect a certain amount for the care of them, or is there a "daughter's allowance"? M. P.

It is ordinarily presumed that personal services between relatives are rendered gratuitously. In order to collect you would have to satisfy the court that there was an express or implied agreement to pay you. We doubt if you could make sufficient proof, but since your case would call for sympathy your chances may be good enough to warant going over your proof in a personal interview with an attorney.

Myron Duncan of Wisconsin Is Opera Hit

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Maria Jeritza would seem to have a two-fold operatic function this season. Part of it is to be herself, a flaming, impulsive, delightful personality of the stage who also becomes a notable artist. The other is to be the associate of other artists who are showing symptoms of becoming notables on their own behalf.

Last week in "Tosca" she appeared with Giuseppe Bentonelli of Oklahoma, who made a debut and a hit at the same time. Last night in a repetition of the work she appeared with two other artists of this continent if not of this country, Myron Duncan of Wisconsin as Mario Cavaradossi, and Joseph Royer of Canada as Scarpia. Both showed signs of being about to go places.

This was not Mr. Duncan's introduction to Chicago, though it was with this company, nor in the part nor with Mme. Jeritza. Two seasons ago he sang it with her at the Auditorium when John Charles Thomas was the Scarpia and Isaac Van Grove the conductor. Then he called himself Mario Duca, a name he had used on the Italian stages.

In the interval he has changed his name back and also improved his singing and acting no end. He was something to cheer about last night for the vigor, warmth, and quality of his voice and the vigor and seemliness of his impersonation. A few of us have been maintaining for years back that America is raising some excellent artists. Every succeeding year proves it.

Mr. Royer, too, proved that he is to be reckoned with. He has intelligence beyond the common in character portrayal. In makeup, in action, in quality of voice he made a vivid picture of the sinister coupled with good manners, which, one takes it, is what Scarpia ought to be. And for a further touch of good Americanism in the cast, it is enough to refer to the excellent singing of Ruth Mills as the unseen shepherd in the third act.

GUARANTORS PRESENT

The audience was a brilliant one. The guarantors and their wives and husbands occupied top floor boxes. Those who, like Harold F. McCormick, had Wednesday night boxes, gave them to friends and joined the dinner party in the top boxes.

George W. Rossetter, president of the opera company, and Mrs. Rossetter, shared a box with Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Davis and Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Ganz. All three women wore black, Mrs. Rossetter in black net frills, Mrs. Davis in black sequins, and Mrs. Ganz in chiffon. Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Carr and Mr. McCormick sat in a box adjoining Mr. Rossetter's, and next to them were Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis in emerald green silk, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham in a lovely gown of brown lace, and the Hubert Burnhams. Mrs. Burnham wore a gown of beige chiffon.

Get Certificates

Certificates of "award of civic interest" were presented last night to guarantors of the 1934 season of the Chicago Grand Opera company at a dinner in the Electric club preceding the evening's performance. A $200,000 guarantors' fund is being sought and more than 75 guarantors were eligible for the certificates.

Brief talks of encouragement over the prospects for the current season were made by Harold F. McCormick, honorary president of the company. George Rossetter, president, and George Ives Haight, chairman of the guarantors' fund. In presenting the certificates Mr. Haight said:

"You who are interested in backing the opera are entitled to something more than a reward of merit. The opera is a community responsibility and it should become more and more of a democratic nature. We have a great opera this year."

Mr. Haight said it was probable that the assessments for a deficit will be less than last year.

Now Is Best Time to Buy Yule Lingerie

BY RHEA SEEGER.

It's the best time to buy lingerie to be packed as Christmas gifts. Everything is crisp and new—new colors, flattering new necklines, and color combines. For instance the nightgowns. If you have some one on your list with a weakness for black numbers you'll fall for the knockout affairs made with a train and a ruffle around the hemline, a ruffle around the top, and straps and sash of turquoise blue corded ribbon. The same thing with cherry red ribbon is also a heart breaker.

There are some pale gray chiffon nightgowns spattered with floral designs, also made with the ruffled train and top, that could easily make a most successful party gown next summer when its warm and sultry.

Long sleeved nightgowns have staged a comeback; they're luscious looking creations usually made with long, full puffed sleeves of sheer material, with the rest of the gown in harmonizing satin. Tricky looking models patterned after a masculine nightshirt are made of silk crêpe, with the cuffs and tucks on the chest outlined with ivory tinted Val lace.

Val lace trims the newest of lingerie, dainty narrow stuff as feminine as anything ever used for trimming. You'll find it on yokes of satin, sheers, and the crêpes; also on costume slips, combinations, and sleeping pajamas.

Bed jackets made of pastel velvet are taking the place of the luxurious fur lined affairs, since the fur lined ideas were found to be too warm. The new arrivals are made with a shirred yokeline, three tiny twinkling buttons at the front and longish sleeves ending in shirred cuffs. All pastel colors are available.

Fashion Group Will Fete Noted English Designer

Members of the Fashion Group of Chicago are making plans to fete Victor Stiebel, young British designer, on his arrival in Chicago next week. A luncheon will be given next Wednesday at the Casino club for the group and a few guests, at which the young Englishman, who while still in his twenties has won the patronage of a number of Europe's acknowledged leaders of style, will tell of his career, while mannequins display various costumes from his most recent collection.

Drama League Will Present Paul Nordoff

Lecture-Recital Scheduled for December 16.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE DRAMA LEAGUE is patting itself on the back over having secured Paul Nordoff, the young composer, pianist, and lecturer, who has just completed a Guggenheim fellowship, as the artist for an affair it will give on Sunday, Dec. 16, at the Casino. There is much interest in Mr. Nordoff, especially in musical circles, not only because of what he has accomplished, but because he is a protégé of Olga Samaroff, who has retired from professional life now, but who has played here many times in concert and as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

His subject that evening will be "Drama in Music," and in discussing that he will trace the history of jazz and its place in modern music. He will play excerpts from John Alden Carpenter's "Skyscraper," which, by the way, is on the Symphony program for tonight and tomorrow afternoon, "Ragtime," by Strawinsky, Hindemith's composition with the same title, part of Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," and several other things.

Miss Martha Borland, one of this year's debutantes, met young Mr. Nordoff in Munich last year and she and her mother, Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland, are planning to give a cocktail party for him on Monday, Dec. 17. Mrs. Harold C. Pynchon is program chairman this year for the Drama league and so is in charge of arrangements for the party at the Casino. Mrs. Clarence Hough is the league president.

Mrs. Pynchon left yesterday by motor with Mr. and Mrs. Carveth Wells for New York, where she will visit for two weeks her daughters, Miss Edith Atwater, who is playing with Dorothy Gish in "Brittle Heaven," and Mrs. James A. Drain Jr. (Barbara Atwater).

Renaissance Society to Hear Miss Stein.

Announcements will be out in a day or two for the lecture Gertrude Stein is to give a week from Sunday before members of the Renaissance society of the University of Chicago. She is to talk on "Pictures — What They Mean to Me," at 8:30 o'clock in the evening in Ida Noyes hall, following a supper in the same place at 6:30 o'clock.

Many of those who will hear Miss Stein then also will hear her talk this coming Sunday, for the Renaissance society and the Arts club have many members in common. Her subject at the Arts club is to be "The History of English Literature as I See It." Only members may attend this lecture, too, and the supper that will precede it.

The Arts club has cards out for an illustrated analysis of Aaron Copland's new ballet, "Hear Ye: Hear Ye," by the composer next Wednesday morning at 11:30 o'clock. The ballet will be produced shortly by the Chicago Grand Opera company.

Students in the department of English at the university are to have an opportunity to hear Miss Stein talk next Wednesday night at 8:30 o'clock at International house. The two lectures that she was scheduled to give on Tuesday and Wednesday under the auspices of the University of Chicago Student Lecture bureau were canceled because she does not speak before large audiences nor does she want her audiences to have to buy tickets to hear her lecture.

James H. Douglases Purchase Residence.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Douglas have moved in to their apartment at 1500 Lake Shore drive after having spent the summer and early fall in Lake Forest. The old-fashioned house at 1 North Stone Gate road which they rented pleased them so much that they bought it this fall and it will be their summer residence for several years and then, perhaps, their year 'round place of abode for they are loyal Lake Foresters. They think that in time they will live in the country all the time.

The house, the home of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Day, was built about forty years ago and although there are many in the north shore town that are larger and more pretentious, there is none with a more charming atmosphere than the comfortable frame house in which the five daughters of the Day family spent their girlhood and young ladyhood. The house has been added to, and even moved from one part of the property to another, but it still retains an

THE business of getting a nonsense telegram off to a lady sailing for Europe brought stories of telegrams into the conversation. We repeat for you the tale of a telegram once sent by Mrs. Niles Trammell to her mother. Mrs. Trammell had, in her childhood, a guardian of whom she was accustomed to speak as "the almighty." The name stuck after she was of age. Once, after she had been visiting in Washington, she took a train for Greensburg, Pa., and she sent a telegram to her mother informing her that she had left Washington for Greensburg, and that she would be with her guardian in the morning.

Telegram—Sales point—Tinkering—Diversion.

During the trip she was puzzled by the solicitude of the porter, who knocked repeatedly at the door of her compartment to ask if she wanted anything and to bring newspapers and periodicals. Finally, in annoyance, she pointed out that it was intrusion rather than service, and inquired the reason for it. The porter explained, with some hesitation. He had been ordered to keep an eye on her, he said, because the telegraph company had notified the conductor that she was contemplating suicide.

"But why did the telegraph company think that?" inquired the traveler, in shocked surprise.

The porter produced a copy of the wire she had sent to her mother and gravely handed it to her. What she had wired was:

"LEAVING WASHINGTON TONIGHT; WILL BE WITH THE ALMIGHTY IN THE MORNING."

Boys Remake Old House Into Modern Club

Lay Cement, Strengthen Rickety Walls.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

How nearly a thousand boys in the stockyards district remodeled and equipped an old frame house into a modern club to carry on a community program for self-betterment was revealed yesterday by John H. Witter, superintendent of the Chicago Boys' clubs, a foundation sponsored by the Union League club.

Several months ago, Mr. Witter said, the rickety old house was acquired and the boys fell to work converting it into a club headquarters. With very little money available the boys elected to lay the cement floor in the basement for a gymnasium. They strengthened the walls, rearranged rooms, redecorated them; scrubbed, cleaned, and painted the structure.

Not content with remodeling the house, the boys acquired a vacant lot, cleared it, leveled it off, and turned it into a playground and ball field. This has been in use all fall.

In a statement to the directors at the annual meeting Mr. Witter reported that the membership of the Chicago Boys' club is larger than at any time in its thirty-three years. There are now 16,345 memberships, compared to 11,040 a year ago. Four years ago the membership was but 5,027, an increase of 300 per cent despite the depression. In addition the club has reduced its deficit from $25,797 two years ago to $3,280.

Five club buildings in the most thickly populated neighborhoods of the city have been maintained during the last year; also a summer camp at Winona Lake, Ind. At the playgrounds 275 baseball teams were organized and supervised and 2,123 underprivileged boys were sent to camp. In all the clubs boys are encouraged to develop their creative abilities in handwiork as well as other activities.

O—much, MUCH kotow this morning to Samuel Goldwyn's perspicacity in securing Russia's Anna Sten for our screens!

In "We Live Again," the cinema's latest version of Tolstoy's "Resurrection," the star of "Nana" proves herself, without doubt, to be not only glamorous but great.

No two ways about it—you really SHOULD see the picture at the United Artists'! It is emotionally gripping, photographically gladdening. It is a movie of which the makers have every right to be proud.

This tragic romance of the oppressed Russia of 1875 has been screened with a fine reticence that is a curb but never a damper to its passionate theme. The action carries the observer from the beautiful country place of Prince Dmitri and his aristocratic aunts to Moscow—to Siberia—and every foot of the road makes engrossing seeing.

The story is really a tale in three parts you see.

On his rural estate Prince Dmitri spends an idyllic summer, joyously cavorting about with Katusha Maslova, a peasant girl who has been reared as one of the family, and spouting in her uncomprehending ears his enthusiastic, newly acquired belief in equality for all. . . .

He goes to officers' school, and, in the decadent life of the great cities, innocence and enthusiasm fade and flicker out. . . .

Another summer. Prince Dmitri, his eyes swimming in guile and himself looking like Mephistopheles in his handsomest moments, returns home for a night and has his way with the trusting Katusha. He leaves before she is up in the morning. . . . There is a baby, who dies and is buried by an outcast girl in unhallowed ground.

Part 2. Moscow seven years later. Prince Dmitri is older, seasoned, blasé. He is engaged to the daughter of a judge, and it becomes his duty to sit on a jury that tries a wanton—Katusha Maslova—for murder. . . .

Part 3. Remorse. Repentance. Restitution—Resurrection for two souls that had seemed dead to faith in God or humanity. . . .

Anna Sten hasn't an unnatural moment. She is completely lovely and naïve in the early scenes. Later her hardness and hopelessness are as believable as her virginal charm, and in the final episodes, when she and Fredric March [believe me, HE does fine work, too!] let go, they have you crying with them!

Kotows also, you see, to Director Rouben Mamoulian!

See you soon!

P. S.: John Boles and Lupe Velez played the prince and Katusha in 1931 and Rod La Rocque and Dolores Del Rio were featured in a 1927 version. Am I a swell remember-way-back-whenner!

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

The latest beauty news is a hair brush specially made for children, just the right size and with bristles that are neither too harsh nor too soft. And a Chicago beauty shop has inaugurated Saturday morning "brushing classes" for young ladies and gentlemen!

If you think this isn't an enlightened beauty, health and hygiene age you aren't in the know about things that go on around town.

First of all, there is the new hair-brush specially made for children, sized just for their little fists and the size of their heads. It's a brush of the highest quality bristles, too, neither too harsh nor too soft for the young scalps that are so prone to scaliness. The kids are crazy about it, but best of all they get so proprietary about it that they REALLY brush their hair, or if they're too small to manage, suffer a good brushing at some one else's hands without a whimper.

Teaching youngsters to brush and brush and brush is sending them off to a good start in their beauty life, goodness knows. The twice daily hair brushing interlude really should be as much a matter of routine as the religious tooth brushing, and we think presentation of a brush such as this one is excellent psychology.

What's more, a shop is pushing the good work even further. They're having hair brushing classes every Saturday morning—free, of course—where the children line up and attack their own heads with much vim and vigor. They have a perfectly swell time for themselves, brushing upward and forward until they look like Indians—and think of the good it does for their hair and their habits!

These brushing lessons, supervised by a specialist, are actually lessons in hair and scalp hygiene, but because they're conducted with such gayety the children find them beautifully sugar coated. They take to them with a will and go home with some fine ideas in their little heads about keeping hair clean, lustrous and healthy.

The Forgotten Honeymoon

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

Rhoda Cornboise's engagement to Maj. Ralph Stornack is arranged by her ambitious mother. Rhoda is in love with Colin Brearley, who is in jail for the murder of a Canadian solicitor in a London night club. Colin was alone at the table with the Canadian when the lights went out and he was struck in the throat by a tableknife. Chief witness against Colin was Maj. Stornack, who was the solicitor's host. Rhoda met Stornack when he called to express his regret for the testimony he had to give at her lover's trial. Jack Caermaen, an old pal of Colin's, is his warder. He plots Colin's escape by taking Colin's place as prisoner, allowing Colin to use his week's vacation. Nobody looks closely at prisoners, he explains, and warders are frequently changed. Rhoda elopes with Colin on the eve of her marriage to Stornack. They spend a brief honeymoon in Wales. Then Colin returns to prison. Rhoda returns home and feigns a lapse of memory. Her mother besieges her to marry Stornack, who is still willing. He and his confederates know she has inherited the fortune of a Canadian relative. The solicitor had come to London to tell her of it. Stornack calls on Caermaen and they quarrel. Jack suspects Stornack of the crime for which Colin was convicted. Rhoda, who is expecting a baby, leaves home and stays with friends of Caermaen's, the Rawlings, in London. Her mother follows with a court order, placing Rhoda under her charge. Caermaen and his solicitor plan to investigate Stornack. Mrs. Cornboise takes Rhoda to France, where her son is born. Her mother sends the baby away. Rhoda arranges to see him and have him properly cared for. She and her mother return to London. Caermaen arranges to get Colin out of prison again for a few days to have him identify a confederate of Stornack's. Thinking Rhoda is still in France he plans to fly there. Rhoda, with her mother, calls on Mrs. Rawlings. Colin had just left there for the aerodrome. Mrs. Rawlings gets word secretly to Rhoda, who evades her mother and taxies to the aerodrome in time to meet Colin. Her mother learns from the taxi driver where she had gone. Rhoda flies with Colin to see their son. Jarroman meets them in Paris. He is on the trail of an uncle of Rhoda's who had settled in Canada.

INSTALMENT XXVIII.

HOPE AND REALITY.

"In a very short time my agents will be able to pick up your uncle's trail in Canada," Jarroman said. "We strongly suspect that Simpson was his solicitor. There may—there may have been some money floating about which might help us to put our hand on a man who hoped to gain by Simpson's death."

"It's as far as I can safely go at present," answered Jarroman. "But I'll just tell you this. . . . We've found a man—we've found a man, Colin—who has a very funny athletic trick. Without any run he can jump over a table."

"Good lord!"

"That's all!" said Jarroman. "Good-by!"

Jarroman departed, leaving behind him a glow of optimism. The ever-racing hands of the clock seemed to them less of a menace to their happiness. For these two were compelled to live on hope—it was the staple diet of their love—and they had to make the most of any that came their way.

"Colin—if we can really prove— "

"I know what you mean, but don't say it!" he broke in. "It may not come off."

"But it will!" she said with sudden conviction. "O, I can't reason about it! Anything I say sounds silly. I just feel that we shan't have to rush about in holes and corners like this much longer—and sneak off and see our own child as if we were committing a burglary."

The sheer force of her conviction moved him, gave him a vision of freedom which would sustain him when he went back to prison. His eyes were moist as he held her to him.

"Rhoda—we're lucky in our friends!" he said thickly. "There's Jack—and dear old Fred Jarroman was risking everything in talking to me. Let's just hope and say nothing."

It was wise indeed to avoid discussion, for they would have made themselves aware of the terrible gap between their hopes and the reality. In a few weeks Jarroman would be able to find for certain that Rhoda's uncle had left her a large fortune. But that would not prove that Stornack killed Simpson. Jack Caermaen's statement that he had seen Stornack jump over a table would be equally useless. It could be proved that Galston was in the night club at the time—but so far it could not be proved that Galston had turned off the light. In short, up to the present, there was not a single real item of evidence pointing to Colin's innocence.

They spent the rest of the daylight hours with Colin—Jack—then another evening of amusement in Paris.

On the next morning there was the good-by visit to the nursery, then an early lunch at the hotel.

"I telephoned Capt. Lissett that we'll be ready to start at 1:30," he told her, but he spoke as if he were delivering a funeral oration.

She nodded.

"Don't be grim, Colin," she said bravely. "I don't feel a bit like I did when we parted last time. I'm absolutely sure we shall be together again soon."

It wasn't quite true because, in the shadow of imminent separation, her courage was oozing. But, true wife as she was, she would not let him see it.

"I suppose your people don't believe the lapse-of-memory stunt, do they?" he asked.

"I don't know what father believes. I don't think he minds very much. He just knows I've got into some kind of trouble and would help me if he could. It's mother who makes all the bother."

"Of course it is rather straining the lapse of memory to have to pretend you don't even know who Colin Jack's father is."

"O, she doesn't believe that part of it! I'm pretty sure she thinks he's Jack. I told you how we all ran into each other at Mrs. Rawlings'."

"That's pretty awkward!" he said gloomily. "I mean, it's very uncomfortably close. Does she know what his job is?"

"No. She doesn't even know—he's a friend of yours. You never brought him to the house in the old days. And, of course, she'd never in a thousand years guess it could possibly be you."

"I suppose not. Yet one can't be too careful. Women like that jump to conclusions without any kind of reason and they're so often right. If we were ever to drag Jack into it— "

"But we won't. I'd do anything on earth rather than that."

"We shall have to go in a minute. Is there anything else we must talk about? Remember we can't hear each other in the aeroplane. And for safety's sake, I think we'd better part at Croydon."

She smiled back at him.

"There's only one thing more to say. I've said it before—and there'll be time to say it again at Croydon."

A minute after that, it seemed, they were at Le Bourget, making polite conversation to the pilot.

Within an hour Mrs. Cornboise at the Dangerfield hotel received a telegram informing her that Mr. and Mrs. Smith were on their return flight to Croydon.

Mrs. Cornboise had not left the hotel for the last three days. She had waited for the telegram, now with triumph, now with dread. She would discover the identity of Rhoda's lover—and she was almost certain that he was that Capt. Caermaen.

The one thing that spoilt her theory was the quite simple objection that if it had been he there could have been no particular reason for all this furtiveness—this preposterous story of a lapse of memory. Why should not Capt. Caermaen marry Rhoda openly? She had not liked him as a person, but he was obviously a man of their own class.

Perhaps he was married already. In that case, she would use all her great energy to procure a divorce.

Unless he turned out to be a penniless rapscallion. In which case she would find means of eliminating him.

She had no doubt whatever of her power to deal with him. She could hold over his head the charge of abducting a woman who was legally a lunatic—however clever and deceitful she might be in actual fact. If he turned out to be a hopeless undesirable he would be given the choice of prison or disappearance.

And if he should prove not to be Capt. Caermaen—well, the same threat would hold good.

On the surface she fully believed that her one purpose was her daughter's welfare. But there were other forces at work. Her dread of scandal—her own pride and dignity had turned the affair into a struggle in which her own daughter had defied her. Rhoda must be crushed into grateful obedience—and the telegram she held in her hand would be the instrument of the girl's subjection.

She arrived at the aerodrome a long time before it was necessary. She took care to inform herself that each plane was signaled and posted before it landed. She sat down and turned over the leaves of a magazine, waiting as contentedly as a cat will wait when it knows that the mouse will eventually come out of the hole.

Mrs. Cornboise strode out of the waiting hall. She learned from an attendant whereabous the aeroplane was expected to come to a stop.

It swooped down fifty yards ahead of where she was standing. . . . She hurried forward.

Rod La Rocque Returns to Films

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Rod La Rocque, who is back in Hollywood after two years in Europe and a brief whirl at the New York stage, fetched a philosophical outlook back to the sound screen. Rod, a former Chicago boy who got his screen start in the days of "'Way Back When"—meaning 1919, which is a long time ago in film history—is not back in the movies in his present capacity as subordinate actor because he or his wife, Vilma Banky, needs the money.

"We knew we were lucky to be making big salaries in the days of our silent starring contracts," the tall actor, now playing in "Mystery Blonde" at Fox's, says. "We lived on the scale we knew we were going to have to spend the rest of our lives. Vilma and I figured we could do nicely without a swimming pool, without a yacht, without big parties or imported limousines. I put a lot of my money in annuities. Vilma did so also. We didn't realize so much as many of our friends when so many other people in Hollywood were investing in stocks. But the annuities look wonderful now and you know what happened to those in Hollywood who were playing the stock market."

La Rocque says that, in spite of this, traveling and seeing the great places of the old world becomes tedious as a steady occupation "and I found out there was nothing like having work to do. I did some picture work in Europe, where, I must confess, I like to live, and Vilma did some also. But there is more satisfaction in working in American pictures because they are better made and, strangely enough, although Vilma was born and raised in Europe, she prefers Hollywood. So we came back here, although I still regard Europe as our permanent home."

La Rocque has been playing one of the unstarred but most important parts in "Mystery Blonde"—Mona Barrie, that attractive ex-brunette, being the mysterious blonde. His rôle required a lot of acting ability and personality, for he has to convince the audience that he is the kind of a man who is worth his wife risking her life to try to get him out of prison.

William Faversham, the veteran classical actor, and Gilbert Roland also are in the cast. Eugene Forde, brother of the third Mrs. Tom Mix, is the director.

La Rocque has become fluent in French and German as the result of his parts in European films. His last film abroad was "S. O. S. Iceberg."

Richard Simmonses Parents of Daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Simmons are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter yesterday morning at St. Luke's hospital. "Mother and child doing nicely," is the report. It is the first child of the former Dorothy Marshall and her young husband and the second grandchild of the Benjamin H. Marshalls. Their elder daughter, Mrs. Richard H. Fleming, has a little girl.

Instead of motoring east for a fortnight's pleasure Mrs. Hambleton Kirk is propped up in a bed in the Passavant hospital nursing a broken arm. The accident occurred Saturday when Mrs. Kirk slipped while crossing Michigan avenue at Oak street. Mrs. Lawrence Williams, who planned to drive east with her mother, has gone on by train.

Due to the Community Fund drive the Kenwood Social Service club has given up the idea of having a dollar drive and has hit upon the more amusing and exciting idea of having a benefit on the Dixiana showboat which is now moored in the Chicago river at the Diversey parkway bridge. Accordingly Mrs. Paul B. Schaff and Mrs. Wilson Killough, as special chairmen for the benefit, and their assistants have taken over the night of Dec. 14 to help raise the $10,000 that this organization contributes every year to the Infant Welfare society. The money supports the Providence station of the Infant Welfare at 29th and Halsted streets.

St. Chrysostom Guild to Open Benefit Today

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

Members of St. Chrysostom's church and their friends may be counted upon to attend the annual fall holiday sale of the Women's guild and auxiliary, which is being held today and tomorrow in the parish house on Dearborn parkway.

The benefit promises to combine the variety of a stroll down Michigan boulevard [or the Rue de la Paix or Bond street] with portrait painting, fortune telling, a food sale, a lingerie and linen sale, restaurant service, and a theater.

The beauty of the electric blue display hall with tall silver columns and red curtained display booths, called "Christmas windows," will fairly take the sightseer's breath away. Mrs. Harold Eldridge, chairman of the sale, already has received many compliments from her committee for this idea. Representatives from the shops in the "Christmas window row" will take orders on the goods displayed, starting at 10 this morning. Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis, fortune teller, a portrait painter, and a girl who does silhouettes will arrive at noon to install themselves in little booths at one end of the display. They will be there for the afternoon and evening.

Dinner will be served from 6 until 8 o'clock upstairs, with I. Newton Perry as maitre d'hotel. The guests will sit at long tables covered with gold cloth and lighted with orange candles. They will be waited upon by a score of young and pretty churchgoers, many of whom were married in the church, and four distinguished kitchen maids, Mrs. Harold B. Smith, Mrs. James R. Offield, Mrs. Fletcher Durbin, and Mrs. John Redmond.

Many will be dining early to make the first show at 7:45 in the theater, for no seats are reserved and tickets must be purchased at the door. No one wants to miss Miss Peggy Hambleton, Walter Frazier, and Miss Sarah Hinde starring in "Under the Gaslight—or Virtue Has Its Own Reward." Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr. has directed the performance, with Samuel Otis training the actors. Miss Eleanor Holden has done all of the scenery, including a snowstorm which fell by mistake during a rehersal into the drawing room scene.

A fashion show in the afternoon and again in the evening yesterday opened the merchandise fair that the women's association of the First Presbyterian church of Evanston is giving as a benefit. It will continue until tomorrow night. Mrs. Robert L. Elliott is president of the association and Mrs. John H. S. Lee was fashion show chairman.

Rene Weiller, French consul-general in Chicago, will decorate Mrs. George L. Cragg and Miss Mary West with the "Palmes Academiques" at the causerie of the Alliance Française this afternoon. Mrs. Cragg was president of the conseil d'administration of the alliance, and last year was chairman of the causeries. Miss West, who is chairman of the library committee, studied painting in Paris two years and was one of the first members of the alliance here.

The Friends of Opera will meet this afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Drake ballroom to hear three artists of the Chicago Grand Opera company in a musical program arranged by Mrs. Charles H. Swift and then to have tea. Those who will give the program are Miss Franca Somigli, Miss Eleanor La Mance, and Giuseppe Bentonelli. Mrs. Arthur Meeker is chairman of the organization.

This morning at 11:30 o'clock in the Blackstone ballroom Miss Anna Fitziu will hold the third of ten intimate opera mornings, accompanied by Frederic Persson at the piano. "Salome" will be the subject and Mme. Jeritza will be the especial guest.

Mrs. James Ward Thorne will be a luncheon guest of the Chicago Woman's club today at luncheon preceding an illustrated talk she will give on her miniature rooms.

Handwriting Is Used as Guide in Selecting a Life Partner

BY MURIEL STAFFORD.

Often I receive letters from young men and women saying, "Will you please analyze my handwriting and also that of the person whose writing I am inclosing? I intend to marry this person."

This seems wise to me. If everybody picked his life partner with the assistance of graphology, some divorces might be prevented. At least you'd know better what to expect!

Neither men nor women are good judges of the other person when in love. Graphology would tell whether all you imagined were true or whether a charming act was being put on for your benefit during courtship days. Both parties are inclined to hide their faults before marriage, whether they realize it or not. Graphology can be a great help if properly applied.

No one with high intelligence should marry a person whose handwriting betrays a mediocre mind. A romantic idealist should not try to be happy with a complete materialist. No sincere and loyal nature can mate happily with one who is insincere. And so on. A comparison of qualities in handwritings will disclose just how much alike you are.

We are inclined to credit those we love with virtues they don't possess. Love's rose colored glasses hide defects that may make us unhappy. It is best to know beforehand of traits we do not appreciate or understand.

A question I am often asked by women is whether they would be happier in a career or in marriage. It really takes two handwritings to answer this, one of them being the handwriting of her prospective husband.

Today's writer asked a question regarding marriage or a career.

tell by my in a Career

This is a delightful person with much charm. She would make a most desirable friend, interesting, loyal, and sincere. Yet she is not governed at all by her emotions. The backhand slant in her case does not reflect mere "emotional restraint" but betrays a lack of interest in sentiment of any kind. She likes companionship on a large scale, plenty of travel and intellectual interests.

If she married a man whose handwriting slanted far to the right with light pressure she would make him bewildered and unhappy. If she married a man whose handwriting showed that he would understand and respect her unemotional viewpoint, they should be ideally happy. Temperaments that are emotionally alike usually blend well.

BY MARY MEADE.

Every knowing hostess is a P. T. Barnum at heart. It's a real showman's instinct that leads her to add fluffy dumplings to the left-over veal stew and to glorify yesterday's cake with spicy sauce for today's dessert.

Let's start with Mr. Barnum's own statement (or was it Aristotle's?) that "there's nothing new under the sun."

The play, of course, is to make the old tricks seem new and inviting. If asked, your family will agree that they want meat, potatoes, vegetable, and dessert for dinner. And they're not averse to a salad a day.

According to the above formula we might be considering fried hamburger, mashed potatoes, spinach, carrot salad, canned fruit, and cake. Highly respectable and wholesome food—but beastly tiresome if served often.

But with a few changes in the ingredients look what can happen. Meat, potatoes, onions, carrots, and spinach arrive together on one platter or plank. Plain lettuce salad may be added to the meal. The fruit is no longer prosaic and usual and the whole picture is such a feast that cake seems quite superfluous.

Planked Round Steak with Vegetables.
½ tablespoon fat
½ teaspoon chopped onion
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
¾ pound ground round steak
¼ pound ground pork
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ cup milk
1 cup corn flake crums
1 slice bacon
Boiled potatoes, parsleyed
Whole buttered onions
Diced cooked carrots
Spinach, cooked

Pan fry the onion in the fat. Combine with it the egg, seasonings, parsley, meat, milk, and corn crums. Form the mixture into a flat loaf on a plank, a shallow baking pan, or a fireproof platter. Place the strip of bacon across the top. Surround the loaf with boiled potatoes, baking in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) for about thirty-five minutes. Take out, brush the potatoes with butter, and sprinkle them with chopped parsley. If the meal can be served on the baking plank or platter, do so. Otherwise transfer the meat and potatoes to a hot table platter. Between the potatoes arrange hot buttered onions and nests of spinach filled with diced cooked carrots. Pass chili sauce as an accompaniment.

Fruit au Gratin.
With Sauce.
8 canned or stewed pear or peach halves
Butter

Drain the fruit, saving the juices. Roll the fruit in the corn flake crums. Place the halves in a buttered baking dish, cut side up. Dot them with butter and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees F.) until the crums are brown and the fruit heated through. Serve with the following sauce:

Lemon Spice Sauce.
1 tablespoon cornstarch
½ cup brown sugar
1 cup boiling fruit juice
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1½ tablespoons lemon juice
Dash of nutmeg
Sprinkle of salt

Blend the cornstarch and sugar in the top of a double boiler. Add the hot fruit juice (water added if necessary to make one cup). Stir constantly while the mixture thickens. Cook five minutes after the thickening has started. Remove from the heat and stir in the butter, lemon juice, nutmeg, and salt.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

CROSSING THE RUBICON.

In the Sims system there is a great gulf fixed between contracts for two odd in a suit and contracts above that. When by constructive bidding [as distinguished from competitive bidding against bidding opponents] we go beyond this stage of two odd, we nearly always continue to a game contract. Either we are checked by signoffs so that we stop at two in a suit [or sometimes at one no trump] or else, finding the signals are not against us, we go on to game. We like to take considerable chances for games once we are not halted by signoffs; for under these conditions there is no question of a misfit and, therefore, no danger of a serious penalty.

There Is an Exception to This General Principle.

It is true that at times we bid two, but not beyond three, in a suit; but this is exceptional, the bidding being then dropped because the strong trump suit is found to be a duplication, both of the partners being unable to continue because in each case they have too many losers outside the suit, and needed to hear a bid of no trumps or a second suit in order to account for some of the losers in the off suits and so give an apparent game chance based on the approximate count of losers. At that, we usually go on to game in rubber play; under match-point scoring it is often advisable to stop at three and accept par on the bidding, hoping for a little luck in the play. One is so often allowed to make four when one has bid only three, whereas had four been bid the defense would make no mistake in gathering in four tricks.

You Already Know the Underlying Theory.

When a Sims player opens the bidding as dealer or in second position, he does so because his hand contains either a natural rebid or rebid material. Either he can rebid his suit or bid a second suit, or else, if his hand is of the defensive short-suited type, he can, without fear, allow his partner to play the hand in one no trump if that be his response; or, if his partner immediately responds with two no trumps, he can raise to three without a tremor. Finally, if a slam try is developed by the responding hand, the opening bidder can take a natural part in the bidding, whether his contributional is distributional or in strong high-card holdings. To make clearer the point we are now discussing—signoffs—let us state the facts from another point of view.

WHEN A SIMS PLAYER OPENS THE BIDDING AS DEALER OR SECOND HAND, HE IS NOT ONLY WILLING FOR THE BIDDING TO REACH TWO ODD, BUT HE ACTUALLY EXPECTS IT TO DO SO, UNLESS HIS PARTNER PASSES.

The original bid intrinsically foreshadows a continuance to two—but not necessarily more than that. Consequently

[a] Weak responses or signoffs by the partner operate merely to keep the bidding within the limits originally provided for; they do not raise it unnecessarily from one to two; they keep it from going beyond two. Going from one to two is part of a necessary chance-giving, fit-ascertaining process which was provided for by the essential reserve or rebid factor in the opening bidder's hand.

[b] Once the bidding is opened, the hand will never be played in one of a suit unless the partner passes. Otherwise the mechanics of the one-over-one, or the level of any other response, automatically take it to at least one no trump or two in a suit.

[c] Therefore, when you are not driving the bidding beyond two odd in a suit, any bids you make in a fresh suit are not necessarily pointing the way to a contract in excess of two. The opening bidder, in showing a second suit, is making a qualitative rebid, not a quantitative rebid. The bidding having been—one heart, one spade or one no trump, two diamonds—the opener is not saying: "By bidding a second suit I am showing a much stronger hand than if I had merely rebid my hearts." His message is: "I have these two biddable suits; tell me your preference; I do not necessarily wish to get beyond two in the one you prefer. My primary trick values may have been shaded below three by virtue of an aggressive two-suited type of hand." This is really the reverse of the inference given by the same bidding in most systems, where each new bid denotes reserve strength. Had the opener felt optimistic of game despite a one no trump response from his partner, he would have had to bid three hearts or three diamonds to insure against a pass on the next round by responder. Had the response been one spade, either of these jump rebids would apply similarly. By bidding merely two diamonds he would be asking preference between the red suits, apparently prepared to sign off unless responder's one-over-one concealed distinct strength. Two spades would be highly invitational, but again deferring to the responder the decision whether to bid beyond the two level.

Children Can't Always Follow Adult Etiquet

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: Is this problem one that a mother's manner or psychology may solve?

"Should a child of 7 conform to the more formal manners of a grownup? Should greetings, introductions, a feeling of hospitality, and partings be in his scope?

"My little girl seems tongue tied on these occasions, squirms to avoid them, affects indifference and even deafness seemingly.

"To avoid her extreme embarrassment, I've passed over lightly all formal demands.

"What is your opinion?"

To which we reply:

I think you are most wise. The insistence upon formal manners is often responsible for shyness in a child. Where this insistence takes place in public, the resulting shyness is increased. It creates conspicuousness, embarrassment, self-consciousness.

Manners should in general be developed in other ways—by imitation of the courtesies of grownups, by the practice of mannerliness in every day life, so the child doesn't see a difference between company etiquet and family etiquet, by tactful suggestion. And handling it in this way I do think one can expect in most cases greetings, introductions, and partings.

Our booklet, "Have You a Shy Child?" is fully written and contains practical advice. A stamped, self-addressed envelope will bring it to you.

Fidgeting, Awkwardness Ruin Good Impression.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Yesterday in talking of what makes the charming woman charming and the other woman not, we had our fascinating one seated in a living room chair, after making a graceful, pleasing entry into the room.

We'll let her sit there a little yet, just to see if she ever is guilty of any of those unpleasant habits of pawing at her hair, pulling at her face, pecking the chair upholstery.

No, she doesn't! Not this charm model of ours. She's attended all the duties of the toilette before she entered the room, so she doesn't need to fuss with herself. She knows that the well bred person keeps her hands away from her face. She knows this same attractive creature arranges her feet so that they do not project unduly, nor swing, nor are legs crossed so that skirts ride high and vulgarly. This woman of charm would simply die rather than sit with wide spread knees as women sometimes do thoughtlessly. She knows that line of body [rather lack of line] squared off at the knees is ugly. Or, better, she knows, with artists, that there is a lovely tapering line from shoulder to toe that she is not going to disrupt.

She may be the gayest companion in the world, but she gives the impression of complete and utter quiet. You feel a reserve power always behind her. Not like some who squander theirs in meaningless, reckless, often awkward gestures. Now, how to get that poise? By walking well, by dancing well, by stretching exercises that keep you stretched tall whether you sit, stand, or walk. By exercise that makes your muscles pliant.

And I certainly cannot recommend better exercises for this very thing of poise and sureness than stretching the body tall every time you think of it during the day, and think of it often.

CUBS GET CARLETON; SOX BUY WASHINGTON

EAGLES BATTLE HAWKS TONIGHT ON STADIUM ICE

St. Louis Makes Its Chicago Debut.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The St. Louis Eagles will swoop down on the Stadium rink tonight to bicker with the world's champion Blackhawks in a National Hocky league game. It will be the visitors' first Chicago appearance, but hocky railbirds will have little trouble in recognizing them as the late Ottawa Senators.

The eccentric nature of the Eagles can be traced through a glance at the league standings, which reveals them in third place in the five team Canadian division, despite the fact that they have won only one game in six. This peculiar situation is caused by the two trailing teams, the Canadiens and the Americans, who have played only two games and won neither.

Just to add to the confusion, the Eagles also are bringing with them the league's leading defense scorer, young Scotty Bowman, who has made two goals and two assists. Then, too, they are presenting the most unique line in the league, at least from the standpoint of racial antecedents. At center will be a young Hebrew, Max Kaminsky, flanked by two Celts, Jerry Shannon and Frank Finnigan.

They Are Tough.

Despite the fact that their wings have been clipped five times, the Eagles, who became the Eagles when the Ottawa franchise was transferred to St. Louis, are not to be regarded as sparring partners for the rest of the league. The Hawks couldn't pin them until the last period in the opening game at St. Louis a few weeks back. After this the Eagles turned on the potent New York Rangers and spanked them, 4 to 2. Tuesday night they had Toronto licked, 2 to 1, going into the last period, when Busher Jackson went slightly daft and scored four goals for the leafs.

Having come to faceoffs with the Eagles already, Manager Clem Loughlin and the Hawks are taking them none too lightly. They will have every reason to make an impressive showing tonight, after their unhappy performance of last Sunday, when the Leafs ran over them, 5 to 0. Loughlin ran the Hawks through a 90 minute drill at the Stadium yesterday and reported all in good shape for the game. Donnie McFadyen, Marty Burke, Tommy Cook, and Norman Locking, all of whom have undergone some surgical embroidery in the last few days, will be ready, as will Paul Thompson and Art Coulter, both victims of colds.

Eagles Get Stars.

In Bowman, Kaminsky, Shannon, and Jeff Kalbfleisch St. Louis acquired the prize rookies of last season, all four having delivered. Bowman was rated the defensive find of the year, and when Boston was minus Eddie Shore during the Ace Bailey case last year, it made strenuous but futile efforts to purchase the young man, so highly did it regard him. From the Montreal Maroons the Eagles took Glenn Brydson and Irvine Frew, both of whom have fitted into their system of play nicely.

EAGLES SIGN WASNIE.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Nick Wasnie, right wing with Ottawa last year, has been signed by the St. Louis Eagles of the National Hocky league, it was announced today. He is to report tomorrow in Chicago, where St. Louis plays the Blackhawks.

PAYNE, RECORD KICKER, NEARLY BECAME BADGER

Payne, who said he almost attended Wisconsin, now is a modest business man here. He isn't much of a football fan in spite of the fact that his 63 yard drop kick stands as the longest on record, overshadowing that of O'Dea by a yard.

He had his suitcase packed for the trip from South Dakota to Madison, but instead joined the army. Payne was playing for South Dakota Wesleyan in 1915 when he set the record.

"My 63 yard drop kick," he explained, was more or less impromptu. It wasn't a deliberate attempt to break O'Dea's record. As a matter of fact, I never had heard of it. We were playing Northern Normal, an industrial school of Aberdeen, S. D., on Oct. 16, 1915, and I was a lot more interested in winning the game than I was in breaking records.

"The quarter back called for punt formation so I stepped back and decided to try a drop kick and was lucky enough to connect. We won 9 to 7 as I recollect it."

LENA DEPRIVES COMMISSION OF KING'S ADVICE

But Board O. K.'s Lasky Without Help.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Kingfish Levinsky fully appreciated the nice things the members of the Illinois boxing commission said about him after they had watched him work out for his battle with Art Lasky at the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night.

So shortly before 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon when it was time for the members of the commission to take a look at Lasky in a drill at Trafton's gymnasium the Kingfish took the notion he should join the party to give Commissioner Joe Triner and Packy McFarland any advice they might seek regarding Lasky's present physical condition.

In Walks Lena!

Just as he headed for the door, in walked Lena Levinsky—Leaping Lena—who can say "stand on your head Kingfish" and usually has the feat performed.

"Off with the wardrobe," commanded Leaping Lena. And off came the boulevard promenade outfit in which the Kingfish was garbed. Into his gymnasium trunks he leaped. Thus the boxing commission's party including Commissioners Triner and McFarland, Secretary Louis London, and Gymnasium Inspector Harold Ryan had to journey to Trafton's gymnasium, look over Lasky and come to their conclusions on his condition, without the expert advice of the Kingfish.

Commission O. K.'s Lasky.

Lasky looked fit according to the commissioners. He boxed four rounds, keeping Tony Sousa and Tom Jones busy throughout the drill. He wanted to go a third round with Jones but the latter refused to continue. There wasn't another heavyweight available so Lasky wound up his drill by hammering the punching bag into a helpless state.

"Lasky is in fine physical condition," Triner, chairman of the commission, said. "I am making no predictions, but I have about come to the conclusion that this fight will terminate in a knockout."

Commissioner McFarland was particularly impressed with Lasky's speed. "He moves around fast for a heavyweight and doesn't look like a fellow who will be easy to hit," he said.

Levinsky, after Lena had ordered him back into his gymnasium trunks, boxed two furious rounds with Adolph Wiater, punched the bag two rounds, shadow boxed two rounds and skipped the rope an additional round. He scaled 202 pounds when it was over.

Commissioners Needed Him.

"Maybe the workout helped me," the Kingfish told Leaping Lena after it was all over, "but I still think the commissioners needed my opinion about Lasky," he added.

All the other heavyweights on the supporting card were in town yesterday, swinging gloves in every direction. Charley Massera of Pittsburgh and Al Ettore of Philadelphia, who are to clash in the 10 round semi-windup, attracted much attention. Their last meeting took place in the semi-final to the Max Baer-Primo Carnera title engagement. Massera won that decision, but the crowd hooted the verdict.

With assurance last night that Max Baer will arrive in Chicago tomorrow morning to second his brother, Buddy, in a four round bout with Frank Ketter, affairs in the Stadium counting room were moving at a fast pace. Baer, who started for Chicago by plane from Mexico City, was forced down three times by bad weather. Last night he forsook the plane and left El Paso, Tex., by train. The Stadium management estimates the probable attendance at 18,000 and the receipts at $40,000.

Varias Milling Defeats Martin in Barcelona Bout

BARCELONA, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Varias Milling, Filipino lightweight, defeated the Spaniard, Martin, in an eight round bout tonight. Milling floored the Spaniard in the second round. He weighed 131 pounds, Martin 130½.

Talking It Over

The largest crowd that has seen a professional football game was when Red Grange made his debut in New York. . . . Nearly 70,000 were in attendance. . . . The receipts were $114,000, and the Bears received a check for two-thirds of that amount. . . . The day previous they had earned $45,000 in Philadelphia. . . . In the WAKE of the NEWS

NASSAU INN.

WHILE being Princetonized before the Yale game there was one question which none of those now on the scene could answer to our satisfaction. The college which is now Princeton university was founded in 1746. Nassau inn had its origin in 1756. What, then, did the students of those days do for spirits frumenti in the intervening decade?

Nassau inn is to Princeton what the Orient, Rosey's, and Freddy Beasimir's were to Ann Arbor in the old days, what that little place near the telegraph office just off the public square whose proprietor's name has escaped us was to Madison. There a peculiar whistle sounded in fraternity row caused students and near students to tumble out of their quarters on slightest provocation to march, parade formation, to their gathering place.

Of course there's the more sedate Princeton inn cocktail room where I grads gather, and the less sedate George's a few miles out in the country which doesn't close at midnight as the inns do. But Nassau inn and its taproom is an institution, unofficially recognized. When repeal became effective it took the place of nineteen speakeasies.

A faculty member who watches over student welfare incognito told us he was much pleased at the change, because now students increasingly are crooking their elbows to beer. Right after repeal they ordered hard liquors and strange cocktail preparations to which they had been accustomed at the speaks, because beer was so bulky to handle. Now one seldom sees hard liquor being consumed.

At the inn is a room upstairs which caters to the general trade, including women. Downstairs students, excepting freshmen who are barred, gather at bar and booths for their beer, mostly on Friday and Saturday nights as a recreation, for drinking is not considered a serious problem among the young men, who must maintain scholarship standards or go home. Mr. Buster Lewis is major domo.

We asked an undergraduate whether freshmen did not sometimes cheat the inn inhibition. He looked at us in a puzzled manner. "Why no," he replied, "it just isn't the thing to do."

Perhaps most interesting to a visitor is the senior room at the rear, to which only fourth year men have access. This addition was constructed in 1912. There on tables scattered about are carved, sometimes with considerable art, initials of students of subsequent years.

From hooks on rafter beams are suspended pewter steins, each held in place by an automatic lock. A master key is in custody of the Negro attendants. These steins are individual, marked with the initials of their owners, and cost $2.75 each. There are 300 hooks. All will be subscribed before the senior class graduates in June.

Small World After All.

At the instigation of his father, Uri B. Grannis Jr. of Lake Forest invited us to dinner at the Tiger inn, one of the Princeton undergraduate clubs where students dine. Sleeping quarters there are only for alumni. We gladly accepted for an unusual reason. We were anxious to meet the grandson of the seemingly severe but really kindly old gentleman for whom we once worked as an office boy back in the '90s. He was W. C. D. Grannis, president of the Atlas National bank, at Washington and La Salle streets, long since defunct. For some reason we don't remember we were invited several times to his old stone front mansion at the northwest corner of Michigan avenue and 21st street. Our services at the bank were during the summer vacation of grammar school days.

At the Tiger inn we met interesting chaps, including several scions of prominent Chicago families. Small world after all, isn't it?

GOPHERS COOL ON CHARITY TILT WITH BUCKEYES

Would Rather Play Rose Bowl Game.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Frank McCormick, director of athletics at the University of Minnesota, asserted today that he had received no communications pertaining to a proposed Minnesota-Ohio State football game for charity or any other purpose.

"And I will reserve comment until an official communication concerning the game is received," he added.

There has been considerable local discussion of such a game, but Ohio State has not figured in the discussion as much as the Rose Bowl contest. Followers of the Gophers are hopeful that the team will be permitted to go to the Rose Bowl for the annual New Year's day, with that game taking precedence over the playoff contest with Ohio State.

Although McCormick refused to be quoted on that subject, from one in close touch with the athletic director it was learned that McCormick feels if a game is to be played, it should be the Rose Bowl contest. McCormick did admit that he had been informed of reports concerning a Rose Bowl contest and a proposed charity game with Ohio State, but that was as far as the move had gone. Members of his athletic staf had discussed the possibility of such a game, or such games, but only informally.

Wants Big Ten O. K.

In the meantime President Lotus D. Coffman was in New York at a meeting of the board of trustees of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. When contacted he replied: "Such a game would depend strictly upon a vote of the Big Ten faculty board. A restriction on such games must be removed first."

From another source came more caustic comment. It was to the effect that Ohio State was beaten by Illinois, while Minnesota has been unbeaten to date. This group could not see why Ohio State should enter so seriously into the discussion because of that defeat by Illinois.

ST. JOHN DUBIOUS

Columbus, O., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Athletic Director L. W. St. John of Ohio State university expressed doubt today that the Buckeyes and Minnesota will meet in a post-season charity football game, despite the fact that the two state governors, a senator-elect, and the President have been asked to use their good offices to bring a game about.

"In view of the well known attitude of the Western conference on post-season games, the outlook for a contest between Ohio State and Minnesota is rather dubious," Director St. John said.

Senator-elect Vic Donahey of Ohio wired President Roosevelt at Warm Springs, Ga., asking the President to use his good offices to help make the game a reality.

Gov. George White of Ohio, also interested in staging the game, proceeds of which would add a neat sum to the Ohio and Minnesota relief funds, talked by telephone with Gov. Floyd B. Olson in Washington today and the Minnesota executive promised his coöperation.

BERWANGER BEST BACK IN BIG 10, FIELDING YOST

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The best back in the Western conference? Jay Berwanger, of course. That was Fielding H. Yost's answer to the question today.

Pressed for more information about his impression of stars he has seen, Yost mentioned Seidel and Stan Kostka of Minnesota, as the best quarter back and full back, respectively, and Dick Heekin, Ohio, as the second best half.

Ellwood Patterson is the best center, he said, and Bill Bevan and Regis Monahan the outstanding guards, and as for a pair of ends—there are none better than Michigan's two, Willis Ward and Matt Patanelli, he declared. On the matter of tackles he was noncommittal. He has seen none who stands out as do those mentioned, he said.

Illini-Maroon Game Heads Big Ten Football Finale

BY WILFRID SMITH.

While Minnesota and Purdue are busy Saturday afternoon with their efforts to win a share of the Western conference football championship, the other Big Ten teams will put the finishing touches on the final standings for the season. Most important of all the five games from the standpoint of evenly matched competition is the Illinois-Chicago game at Stagg field.

The Iowa-Ohio State game at Columbus, which apparently will provide a victory for the Buckeyes, will give Ohio State five victories for the season as against one defeat and these five victories will equal the winning championship total of Minnesota, provided the Gophers defeat Wisconsin as is expected. However, the Northwestern game at Michigan probably ranks second from a competitive standpoint. The teams are about even on the basis of a slightly superior Northwestern offense and a heavy Michigan line which should outplay the Wildcat forwards by a small margin.

Wolverines Near Shutout.

Michigan must win to prevent a complete shutout in six games. So far the Wolverines' touchdown against Illinois is the only score in five conference games and in addition they were unable to score against Michigan State and secured only 9 points in their victory over Georgia Tech.

On this basis Michigan can not be expected to score against Northwestern while the Wildcat offense, which has managed at least a touchdown in all conference games except Illinois, and in this game scored a field goal, should come through with a victory. The result may hinge largely on which eleven can muster desire to win, for after all, win or lose, both teams must finish in the second division.

Illinois is certain of fourth place in the final standings even if defeated by Chicago [granting that Purdue and Minnesota win over Indiana and Wisconsin, respectively]. Chicago, however, can assure itself a first division berth. But to both teams, victory is more important because of ancient rivalry.

Saturday's contest will be the 39th in the series which began in 1892 and has been continued without a break since 1901. Chicago holds a series advantage of 17 victories to 16, but if the 1918 game, when all conference rules were suspended because of the Students' Army Training corps, is included the series is even. However, the Maroons still have an ace in the disputed game of 1894 when Illinois quit the contest while trailing, 10 to 6, when Chicago refused to permit the Illinois coach, Bucky Vail, to play with his men.

Most notable in the long series is the 21 to 21 contest in 1924 when Chicago, with such plungers as "Five Yards" McCarthy, Gene Francis, and Harry Thomas scored two touchdowns before Illinois had the ball except to kick off. Red Grange broke loose then to score and Chicago led, 14 to 7, at the half. The Maroons punched over another touchdown, after which Grange again ran through Chicago for two scores and a tie.

Chicago's last victory was scored in 1931, a 13 to 6 conquest, but last year Chicago lost 7 to 0 in what many believed should have been a Maroon triumph.

The final Western conference standings, if the teams play Saturday according to form, will look like this:

Ohio State	5	1	0
Illinois	3	2	0
Chicago	3	3	0
Wisconsin	2	3	0
Northwestern	2	3	0
Iowa	1	3	1
Indiana	0	4	1
Michigan	0	6	0

Sox, Cubs, Yanks, Indians Set Pace in Player Deals

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Chicago White Sox.—Bought Outfielder Vernon Washington from Indianapolis for Pitcher Phil Gallivan, Infielder Billy Sullivan and cash. Released Pitchers Hugo Klaerner, and Harry Kinzy and Catcher Ed Madjeski to Dallas.

Comiskey Purchases Star Outfielder.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 21.—The Cubs and the White Sox almost simultaneously today completed player deals which are considered of great importance in the programs to build up the teams which represented Chicago none too satisfactorily in the majors last season. The Cubs acquired Pitcher Tex Carleton from the world champion St. Louis Cardinals and the Sox obtained Vernon Washington, slugging outfielder, from the Indianapolis club of the American association.

Carleton, who won 16 games while losing 11 for the Cardinals last season, comes to the Cubs ostensibly in a deal which gives the Cardinals Pitchers Bud Tinning and Dick Ward and an undisclosed sum of cash. There are observers, however, who believe the transaction which recently sent Pat Malone and cash to the Cardinals for Ken O'Dea, a nonhitting rookie catcher, is allied with the neat swap turned today.

Players, Cash for Washington.

Washington, beaten out of the American association batting championship in 1934 by a margin of one percentage point, cost the Sox cash, Pitcher Phil Gallivan, who won four games and lost seven for the Sox last season, and Billy Sullivan, whom the Sox had out on option as Milwaukee's third baseman during the 1934 season.

In getting Carleton the Cubs not only landed a pitcher who has taken starting assignments for the Cardinals for three seasons, but they removed one of their most annoying foes from the ranks of the Cards. In 1933 especially, many of the Cubs rated Carleton a better pitcher than Dizzy Dean.

Tex Is 28 Years Old.

Until Paul Dean arrived with the Cards last season, Carleton usually was coupled with Dizzy in those feature Sunday and holiday double headers in which the Cards have specialized.

Tex, whose real name is James Otto, is 28 years old and a native of Comanche, Tex. He is 6 feet, 1½ inches tall and his weight is listed as 176. He is expected to weigh more now that he will not have to play 77 games in torrid St. Louis. Carleton's major league record shows him to have won 43 games while losing 35.

He started one game and appeared in two in the recent world series. Although both were won by the Tigers, he was not charged with either defeat.

Bud Tinning leaves the Cubs after three years in their service, following his purchase in 1931 when he won 24 and lost 2 for Des Moines. Bud, a pleasant, earnest fellow, found great difficulty in battling his tendency to obesity and to this was attributed the fact that he won only four games this year as compared to 13 in 1933. He won eight straight during one stretch in 1933.

Ward Is Recalled.

Dick Ward, a sensation in the Coast league in 1933, when he won 25 games, trained with Cubs and started the season with them last spring. He didn't click in the National league and was sent back to the Coast where he won 13 and lost 4 for Los Angeles, causing the Cubs to recall him.

The new Sox right fielder, Washington, is a big fellow, six feet one inch, who weighs 200 pounds. He batted .367 and led the league in extra base hits. He has a good arm and is said to be a fair fielder.

Grimm conferred with Manager Pie Traynor of the Pirates today, offering Babe Herman and Guy Bush for Pitcher Larry French and Freddy Lindstrom. Traynor, however, wanted Jim Weaver, too. Grimm will not give up Weaver, but he will offer Traynor Ray Henshaw, young southpaw who finished last season with Los Angeles, when he meets with the Pirate boss tomorrow.

Terry Chills Trade.

Grimm was the busiest man in Louisville today. In addition to a long session with Traynor, he also conferred with Manager Bill Terry of the New York Giants and during the late afternoon he was closeted with Branch Rickey of the St. Louis Cardinals. Terry put the chill on the Cubs-Giants conferences by saying he would make certain trades, but that he wouldn't part with any of his starting pitchers. Terry has no one Grimm can use except starting pitchers.

The White Sox spent the day in shearing their roster. Three players went to Dallas. These included Eddie Madjeski, who was the Sox's first string catcher last season; Harry Kinzy and Hugo Klaener, the last two having been on the roster under the heading of pitchers.

Babe Didrikson Reaches 2d Round of Golf Tourney

Fort Worth, Tex., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Mildred [Babe] Didrikson, star in the 1932 Olympic games, advanced to the second round of the annual Fort Worth women's golf tournament today, defeating Miss Nell Moody, Sherman, 4 and 3. In another match Mrs. D. Van Landingham, Charlotte, N. C., triumphed over Mrs. E. R. Huey, San Antonio, 1 up, 19 holes.

GOPHERS SHAPE ATTACK FOR WET FIELD AT MADISON

Heavy Back Field Ready if Footing Is Muddy.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Coach Bernie Bierman is building up more Minnesota fortifications against what may happen at Madison Saturday in the windup game involving Wisconsin's Badgers and the Gophers.

For the second straight day Bierman took players outside for a bit of work in the heavy going brought about by intermittent rains. He outfitted them with mud cleats and gave them a long workout in the event that heavy footing prevails at Madison for the game.

Drills Beise at Quarter Back.

As another precaution, Bierman is concentrating on Sheldon Beise as a quarter back alternate in the event the field is wet. Beise had a chance at signal calling against Chicago Saturday, and performed well. If the footing demands more Minnesota weight to cope with the weight of the Badgers, Bierman will have Beise ready for quarter back, Lund and Alfonse for half backs and Kostka for full back. That would give the Gophers a weight average in the backfield that cannot be matched in the Big Ten.

The Gophers took their final heavy workout today. Tomorrow they will come out earlier and will leave from the stadium on buses for the train to Milwaukee, stopping there until they start for the game.

BADGER FIELD SOAKED.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—A steady rain, which during the last two days has fallen to the depth of nearly two inches, sent the Badgers into the field house again this afternoon as they completed scrimmage for the Minnesota game, which promises to attract more than 38,000 fans to Camp Randall Saturday.

Equipped with Gopher plays, the freshmen had little luck against the varsity. Coach Doc Spears, who admits he would rather defeat Minnesota than any other Big Ten foe, is building his defensive preparations with the utmost precaution. The regulars were excused from most of the contact work again today to avoid danger of injuries.

Numerous wires and telephone calls from Minneapolis today indicated Minnesota is worried over the amount of rain in southern Wisconsin. Since no cover is available at Camp Randall, the field this afternoon was thoroughly soaked from the two day rain.

About 5,000 tickets, most of them well behind the goal posts, were all that remained today. Madison hotels have been sold out for more than a week, and rooms of any description and tickets within the goal lines are at a premium.

Coming to Madison heralded as one of the greatest football machines in the nation, the Gophers will be accompanied by between 10,000 and 12,000 fans, the largest delegation ever sent out of the Twin Cities, and the biggest single gridiron movement from a Big Ten school in the history of middle western football.

RAIN HAMPERS IOWA.

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—A chilly, driving rain forced the University of Iowa football squad indoors today, hindering this week's preparation for the final game against Ohio State.

Coach Ossie Solem gave the squad signal and blocking drill in the fieldhouse, but was forced to abandon the heavy scrimmage scheduled for the practice period.

The squad will leave for Columbus tomorrow afternoon with only regular drill. Players will hold a brief workout before entraining if the weather permits and will limber up in the Buckeye stadium Friday afternoon.

Dr. A. S. Fort, medical adviser, said that Bernie Page, end, and Herman Schnideman, half back, would not be available for Saturday's game, because of injuries. He stated Don Nelson, sophomore guard, who was out earlier in the week with a leg infection, would be ready to start.

Following are the men named for the trip:

ENDS—Frank Jakoubek, Corney Walker, John England, John Lindenmeyer, Don Simmons, Gordon Matson.

GUARDS—Clarence Dee, Floyd McDowell, Bill Seel, Don Nelson.

CENTERS—Ted Osmaloski, Jack Shea.

DRILL OHIO DEFENSE.

Columbus, O., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Ohio State took it easy this afternoon in preparation for its game Saturday with Iowa on Ohio field.

The Buckeyes met the freshman eleven in defensive work for a greater part of the afternoon, following which they held a snappy signal drill on offense.

The Buckeye back field will consist of Smith and Heekin at the half back posts, Wetzel in the full back position, while either Dye or Pincura will occupy the quarter back position when the team takes the field against the Hawkeyes.

Fenger Team Weakened; 2 Players Sick

Capt. Francis Smith, 157 pound half back, and Ray Apolskis, 140 pound center, of the Fenger High school football team, were taken ill yesterday and may be unable to play when the squad opposes Lindblom for the Chicago Public High School league championship at Soldiers' field Saturday afternoon.

Physicians reported the sudden illness of the players was not serious and Coach Doug Fessenden expressed hope that they would recover sufficiently to participate in the title contest. While Smith and Apolskis were confined to their homes other members of the Fenger team listened to a lecture by Fessenden in the school gymnasium.

Lindblom Works Indoors.

Lindblom's eleven, however, was sent through a light workout by Coach E. L. Moore in the gymnasium. Barring injuries in practice today and tomorrow Coach Moore expects the squad to be at full strength for the game. The team is in better condition than at any other time during the season, Moore said.

The loss of Smith and Apolskis will be a severe blow to Fenger, which hopes to gain its first league football championship. The two played an important part in Fenger's drive to the south section title and the 26 to 6 victory over Crane Tech in the semi-finals last Saturday.

If Smith and Apolskis are unable to play, their places will be taken by Harold Fiske, 16 year old junior center, and Fred Greco, 137 pound junior half back, Coach Fessenden said.

St. Mel Player Ill.

St. Mel may take the field against Leo in the Catholic league championship game at Loyola stadium Sunday afternoon without the services of William Duff, speedy senior right half back. Duff was unable to practice yesterday because of a heavy cold.

Paddy Driscoll, veteran coach at St. Mel, who is spending his tenth season at the west side school, sent the squad through a short workout in the gymnasium. St. Mel will be making its second appearance in the finals for the title. It lost to Mount Carmel two years ago in its first bid for the championship.

Chicago to Have Team in National Hocky Tourney

Chicago will represented by an amateur hocky team in the national tournament next spring, according to an agreement reached yesterday by Emil W. Iverson, president of the Chicago Amateur Hocky association, and officials of the Junior Association of Commerce. The latter organization, of which William L. Timber is president, will sponsor the team which is to be composed entirely of American boys.

The new team, to be known as the Olympic club of Chicago, has for its purpose the development of native hocky talent. Any youth living in the central district of the National Amateur Athletic union will be eligible. The winner of the national tournament in the spring will represent the United States at the 1936 Olympic games in Germany.

Youthful interest in hocky here was demonstrated last year when 438 boys joined the C. A. H. A., playing in the C. Y. O., Community and Big Four leagues. The paramount objective in the current movement is to establish clubs supported by non-commercial organizations.

A wealth of talent was uncovered in last year's play, and a number of the season's stars will be available for the new club. Among those now working out at the Chicago Stadium for the fourteen places on the squad are Art Samec, Wes Lampsa, Matt Wiljanen, Roy Halvorsen, Mike Kuzma, Frank Gresnick, Harold Lorey, Jock Riddell, Burr Spreitzer and Ray Smith.

Among the Junior Association of Commerce officials who met with Iverson yesterday were Blaine Cummings, Lester A. Colby, Charles Van Dyne, Billings McArthur, V. B. Leister, and Louis Rysdon.

Hart Pins Bad Boy Brown in Marigold Mat Windup

Frankie Hart, Chicago wrestler, threw Jack [Bad Boy] Brown in 24 minutes and 5 seconds of the windup match at the Marigold Gardens last night. In other matches George Ligoski pinned Bunny Martin in 19 minutes and 4 seconds; Bobby Novak won from Dick Gerber in 18 minutes and 20 seconds, and Larry Tillman threw Leo Donoghue in 12 minutes and 6 seconds.

Yale May Lose Two Backs for Harvard Game

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Yale's eleven iron men remained intact today during a secret practice in the bowl, but at least two members—Jerry Roscoe, quarter back, and Kim Whitehead, half back—are giving Coach Ducky Pond many uneasy moments as to their being available for the Harvard game Saturday.

Roscoe and Whitehead were in uniform and participated in some of today's practice, but were kept out of any contact work.

Cold Slows Roscoe Up.

Roscoe is trying to snap out of a cold which forced him to bed under a doctor's order last night, while Whitehead is still limping from an injury he received in the winning battle against Princeton.

For forty minutes the varsity was ordered through a supervised scrimmage which was featured by some brilliant broken field running by Morton, Rankin, and Fuller. No scoring was allowed.

HARVARD NAMES 3 VETS.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Only three players with previous Yale game experience were named for Harvard's starting lineup against the Elis today by Head Coach Eddie Casey.

They were Capt. Herman Gundlach, Bob Haley and Shaun Kelly. Of the trio, Gundlach is the only one who has ever played in the bowl. Only two other members of the Crimson squad, Fergy Locke, who made a 93 yard scoring run in last year's 19-6 victory, and Chet Litman, have ever faced the Blue team.

Two seniors, six juniors, three of whom are playing their first year of varsity football, and three sophomores composed Casey's Yale game lineup, which will take the field with Dubiel and Kelly, ends; Burton and Adlis, tackles; Brookings and Gundlach, guards; Comfort, center; Haley, quarter back; Moseley and Watt, half backs, and Jackson, full back.

Illinois Boys to Play in Navy Line Against Army

PURDUE DRILLS IN SECRET.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Despite the third continuous day of rain, Coach Noble Kizer had the Purdue football squad out for another session of intensive drill this afternoon in preparation for the game with Indiana, a foe that has developed the habit of quashing the Boilermaker hopes when least expected.

Duane Purvis, Jim Carter, Carl Heldt, and Frank Haas, all seniors, will be playing their last game for Purdue. In addition to the four senior regulars eleven other members of the Boilermaker squad, most of whom have seen frequent service on Purdue elevens of the last three years, will don the old gold and black uniform for the last time Saturday. The other eleven seniors include John Burch full back; Joseph Modzeleski, guard William Riblet, quarter back; Ernest Davidson, end; Frank Kirk, tackle George Basker, half back; Robert Jennings, tackle; Herman Adams, end Vernon Craig, half back; Vincent Cherico, full back, and Dan Toriello quarter back.

Indiana Eleven to Play Centre in 2 Game Series

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—A. N. [Bo] McMillin, football coach at Indiana university, announced today that the Hoosiers will meet Centre college of Danville, Ky., in 1935 and 1936. McMillin, a graduate of Centre, played with the Praying Colonels when they defeated Harvard in 1921. The first game between the schools will be played next year at Bloomington, Ind., and the second at DuPont stadium in Louisville.

MAROONS HOLD LONG SCRIMMAGE IN MUD AND RAIN

Perfect Offense for Use Against Illini.

Steady rain and ankle-deep mud couldn't deter Coach Clark Shaughnessy yesterday from his intense desire to administer one final dose of heavy scrimmage to the Chicago football team in preparation for the invasion of Stagg field by Illinois Saturday.

For ninety minutes the first team raged up and down the practice field, with Jay Berwanger and Ewald Nyquist ripping through the freshmen for consistent gains. When the varsity returned to the field house, carrying on their persons a good portion of the surface of the field, the second team was called out, "just to get a taste of mud."

Work On Offense.

Offense was the theme for the first team. Coach Shaughnessy has not found it necessary to develop any new plays for the Illinois game. During the season he has taught the team more than 100 plays, and a good portion of the trickier operations have never been used, for one reason or another.

The last two Saturdays the Maroons have not had much opportunity to strut their attack. Only twice this season, however, have they been within an opponent's 20 yard line and failed to cross the goal line, once because of a fumble and once against Minnesota.

The Chicago team will have no noticeable weight advantage over the light Illini team. The starting Maroon line may average a pound or two heavier, but not if Illinois starts Barnhart, husky guard, in place of Gryboski.

ILLINI HOLD SCRIMMAGE.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—A hard downpour of rain gave the Illini experience with a slippery ball as they put on their hardest scrimmage of the week in preparation for the Chicago game. Ken Nelson, sophomore end, who has played every minute in the major games, developed a charley horse and had to rest. Francis Cantwell, sophomore, was placed at left end on the varsity and may get his first chance Saturday. Cantwell was practically unheralded at the start of the season but has improved steadily.

Zuppke retained Henry at right half back, which seemed to indicate that the sophomore has a prospect of appearing against the Maroons, although Froschauer's experience may gain him the preference. Barnhart and Bruder, sophomore guards, played in the place of Bennis and Gryboski, regulars, who continued to rest. Gene Dykstra, end, returned from Chicago where he was called by the death of a relative. The Illini will depart for Chicago Friday noon.

N. U. Studies Wolverine Plays During Drill in Mud

Northwestern's football team of thirty-five players and the usual retinue of coaches, trainers, and managers will depart tonight for Ann Arbor and the scene of Saturday's final game of the season with Michigan. The Wildcats will establish headquarters at the Dearborn Inn on the outskirts of Detroit.

The Northwestern band and 500 students and alumni will follow the team on a special train, which will leave Chicago at 7 o'clock Saturday morning over the Michigan Central railroad.

Rain Hinders Practice.

After two days of rain the Wildcats are hoping for fair skies today, as they go through their final workout. Yesterday's practice was held in a steady downpour, which hampered all efforts to study Michigan's anticipated forward passing attack.

The Wildcats are preparing for one of their hardest games of the season. They feel that Coach Harry Kipke will have his players keyed to a high effort to score a Big Ten victory.

Coach Dick Hanley plans to start the same lineup against Michigan that opened the Notre Dame game last week. This consists of Swisher and Cruice, half backs; Toth, quarter back, and Duvall, full back. The line will be composed of Leeper and Henderson, ends; Wray and Chambers, tackles; Kawal and Whalen, guards, and Lind, center.

Seven End Careers.

Saturday's game will wind up the football careers of seven members of the Northwestern squad. They are Capt. Al Kawal and Ed Whalen, guards; Harry Leeper, end; Walt Stanul and Ed Horne, half backs, and George Potter and Freddy Lind, quarter backs. The latter will be unable to play, due to a broken ankle, received in the Illinois game.

The personnel of the Northwestern team that will make the Michigan trip follows:

Quarter backs—George Potter, Ollie Adelman, Steve Toth, Hugh Murninghan.
Full backs—Hugh Duvall, Don Geyer, and Bob Schwartz.

MICHIGAN SHOWS SPIRIT.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The Michigan squad put on a typical Wednesday afternoon show today, going through its practice sessions with all the fire and the dash that ordinarily characterizes a winner. Sideline observers withheld an opinion, fearing that the demonstration might be just another one of those Wednesday sessions, yet admitted that such a show against Northwestern on Saturday might result in a Wolverine victory.

Coach Kipke noted improvement in every department of play. John Regeczi was throwing his passes with greater accuracy and the three big ends, Willis Ward, Matt Patanelli, and Mike Savage did everything but turn cartwheels in catching the ball. Furthermore, the blockers actually blocked and the ball carriers picked openings.

Practice on Offense.

Kipke kept the first two teams on offense most of the afternoon, but held a short defensive drill against the Wildcat plays.

Gerald Ford and John Viergever were back in uniform, and while some hope was held out that Ford might start at center Saturday, it was said Viergever probably would not play. Hanshue is being coached for the tackle job.

The back field that got most of the attention today was made up of Jennings at quarter, Ellis and Regeczi at the halves, and Remias at full back. Regeczi later moved over to full, while Pillinger took his place at half. Bolas replaced Jennings.

Peden, Audy and Le Page Lead Milwaukee Bike Race

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 21.—(AP)—At the end of the 24th hour tonight in Milwaukee's six day bike race, the Canadian team of Torchy Peden, Jules Audy and Henri Le Page was leading the field of 24 riders on sprint points. The Canadians were tied in mileage with three other trios as the riders wheeled past the 505 mile mark.

Coast Conference Names Rose Bowl Eleven Monday

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 21.—(AP)—The west's representative for the Rose tournament football game at Pasadena Jan. 1, 1935, probably Stanford, will be named by the Pacific Coast conference here Monday.

This announcement was made today by Prof. Hugh C. Willett of the University of Southern California, who is president of the faculty representatives of the group. The ten members of the conference are casting secret ballots now.

Power to select the western team was put in the hands of the conference last year by the Tournament of Roses committee of Pasadena as a direct result of adverse criticism from several sources over selections made in the past.

Since the group does not recognize an official football champion a system for selection of the western team has been worked out whereby the team given the highest rating after the votes are counted, is chosen.

On June 1, as part of the June week exercises at the academies, the Naval nine and track and field team will appear at West Point, while the Army la crosse team comes to Annapolis.

The next football game will take place on Franklin field, Philadelphia, for the third consecutive year, the date being Nov. 30. The Navy made the selection this time.

Leadership of Sarboe Makes Cards Click

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Every successful football team has a sparkplug whose presence in the lineup electrifies its attack. On the Cardinals it's Phil Sarboe, former Washington State star, late of the Boston Redskins.

When Sarboe joined the Cardinals in midseason, the team immediately began improving. Its first effort with the 22 year old quarter back was a victory over Brooklyn. Then came the Detroit game in which Sarboe took charge with a second string back field in the fourth quarter and accomplished more in five minutes against the Lions' vaunted defense than National league opponents had been able to do in 8 hours and 45 minutes previously. He directed the drive that scored two touchdowns and nearly toppled the haughty Lions out of first place.

Gives Cardinals Confidence.

It is upon Sarboe that the Cardinals lean heavily for victory in their game with the Chicago Bears at Wrigley field on Sunday. His passing and generalship have given the Cardinals much of the confidence which has elevated them from a disorganized outfit early in the year to a team which now is expected to be a leading contender next season.

Sarboe, a native of Tacoma, Wash., where he played football, baseball and basketball at Lincoln High school, will have plenty of opportunity to exercise his talents Sunday, for in the Bears he will be facing the best in football.

"They can be fooled, though," Phil remarked yesterday, "Any team in this league can be fooled. It's much harder than in college and you have to be slicker with your trickery, but close study of games each Sunday reveals that no club is foolproof."

Asks for Job.

Sarboe came to the Cardinals by choice. He was dissatisfied at Boston, where he was injured early in the season and demoted from first string quarter back. He sought out Owner Charles Bidwill and asked for a job. He had planned to ask Coach Lone Star Dietz of Boston for his release. Boston's double wing back system required only blocking of quarter backs and Sarboe saw little future for a man his size on a club where he would be expected to take out behemoths on every play. He weighs only 165 pounds.

Before he had a chance to go into the matter with Bidwill, Boston released him. Bidwill immediately offered him a contract.

Plays Baseball, Too.

Sarboe found his way into the league through friendship with Turk Edwards of Boston, with whom he played one year at Washington State, and Mel Hein, New York Giants' center, also a Washington State product. When he completed his college career last year he immediately signed with Boston. Later he was offered a contract with the Oakland baseball team of the Pacific Coast league. He accepted this bid also and expects to be Oakland's regular short stop next season.

Feathers Only 38 Yards Short of 1,000 Figure

New York, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Beattie Feathers, back field star of the Chicago Bears, who set a goal of 1,000 yards in ground gaining in the National Football league this season, is only 38 yards short of that mark.

Temporarily halted by the New York Giants last week Feathers is hoping to make up the difference against the Chicago Cardinals this week-end.

With 962 yards to his credit the former Tennessee star is setting the ground gaining pace for the pros, with Swede Hanson of the Philadelphia Eagles in second place and Earl [Dutch] Clark of the Detroit Lions, third. Hanson has gained 727 yards and Clark 654.

P.G.A. Awards Title Tourney to Oklahoma

The 1935 championship tournament of the Professional Golfers' association will be held at Oklahoma City, Okla., at a date to be announced later. This announcement featured the second session of the organization's annual meeting yesterday at the Morrison hotel.

In conjunction with the awarding of the association's big event officers were elected for the 1935 season. George R. Jacobus of Ridgewood, N. J., at whose home club the Ryder cup matches with Great Britain will be played next spring, was reëlected president, while R. W. [Doc] Treacy of Milwaukee and J. B. Mackie of Fay Rockaway, N. Y., were renamed secretary and treasurer, respectively.

The directors for 1935 include Johnny Farrell, Short Hills, N. J.; Dan Goss, Birmingham, Ala.; William Maguire, Houston, Tex.; James Anderson, Pontiac, Mich.; Jack Martin, Tacoma, Wash., and Tom Boyd, Staten Island, N. Y. Reëlected as honorary officers were Charles Hall of Birmingham, Ala., as president, and Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen as vice presidents.

The P. G. A. delegates also adopted a plan whereby the eight players reaching the quarter finals of the annual tournament would be exempt from qualifying the following year. A proposal to increase the qualifying bracket for match play from 32 to 64 was favored by a majority, and referred to the executive committee with a view to working out such a plan for the meet at Oklahoma City.

Pittsburgh and Ohio State Schedule Game for 1936

Columbus, O., Nov. 12.—[Special.]—Ohio State will meet Pittsburgh's Panthers at football on Oct. 10, 1936, in the Ohio stadium, Athletic Director L. W. St. John announced today. The game concludes a two year agreement opened in 1932 in Pittsburgh with a scoreless tie.

RAIN PUTS END TO NOTRE DAME'S OUTDOOR DRILL

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Rain again forced Notre Dame's football squad into the gymnasium today, giving hopes of a victory over Army Saturday a severe setback.

The varsity has worked outdoors only one hour this week and that was nothing more than an unlimbering drill on Monday. It is likely that the squad will suffer from a lack of defensive practice against Army's offense.

Coach Elmer Layden named a squad of 39 men to make the trip to New York. It will leave tomorrow noon, and the only drill scheduled is a short practice at New York Friday. The squad named:

Guards—Schiralli, Smith, Schrenker, Lauter, Weidner, Church.
Centers—Robinson, Solari, Pojman, Mundee.
Quarter backs—Fromhart, Bonar, Gaul, Bruno, Moriarty.
Full backs—Elser, Carideo, Miller, Danbom.

ARMY IGNORES RAIN.

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The Army football squad rehersed both its offensive and defensive plays for the Notre Dame game today in a steady drizzle. It was a secret drill, its secretiveness emphasized by a patrol of military police.

The offensive sorties that have served the Cadets so well this year will again be in evidence Saturday. While the Army team was busy on the gridiron the office of Lieut. Pat Echols was busy with last minute ticket requests. The answer was a very definite "No" to most of them, as the ticket supply had dwindled to almost the absolute zero. Apparently there will be more than 80,000 at the Yankee stadium Saturday.

CARR OVERULES BOSTON PROTEST AGAINST HELLER

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Joe Carr of Columbus, O., president of the National Professional Football league, announced today that Boston's protest of the New York Giants' acquisition of Warren Heller has been overruled.

Heller, former University of Pittsburgh halfback, who played with the Pittsburgh Pirates this season, was acquired by the Giants in an effort to bolster the team after Harry Newman was injured in last Sunday's game with the Bears. Boston, which meets the Giants Sunday, protested the signing of the star half back so late in the season.

NO OTHER TOBACCO IS "JUST AS GOOD" AS REAL HAVANA*

What domestic tobacco . . what other "imported" tobacco . . can give a cigar that rich MILD flavor that comes from real Havana? Ask any man who enjoys a good cigar.

Does Bayuk PHILLIES—at 5c—have real Havana? Yes . . and it's long-filler Havana . . the same quality and quantity—the same exact blend—that made PHILLIES the largest-selling 10c brand on the market.

NEGOTIATIONS ON ROSS-CANZONERI MEETING RUSHED

Expect Contracts Will Be Signed Next Week.

Contracts for a lightweight championship bout between Champion Barney Ross and Tony Canzoneri at Chicago Stadium in January may be signed before another week has expired, it was indicated yesterday.

Joe Foley, back in town after undergoing an examination for failing eyesight at Rochester, Minn., already has obtained the titleholder's agreement to the bout. Negotiations with Sam Goldman, manager of Canzoneri, were opened after his arrival from New York yesterday. Conferences will continue to be held during Goldman's 10 days' stay here until arrangements for the contest have been completed.

Ross dethroned Canzoneri as lightweight and junior welterweight champion at the Stadium June 23, 1933, before 11,000 who paid $46,000. In a return conflict Barney successfully defended the title at New York Sept. 12 of the same year. The New York gate doubled that in Chicago for the reason that few thought Ross had a chance to win the Stadium bout.

Canzoneri is training on his farm on the outskirts of New York pending completion of negotiations for a third title scrap against Ross. As soon as it is arranged a tuneup contest will be lined up for Tony. The champion has commenced drills at Trafton's gymnasium for a junior welterweight title defense against Bobby Pacho of Los Angeles at Cleveland, O., Dec. 10.

Joe Louis of Detroit has delayed his return from a short vacation at West Baden, Ind., until tomorrow to begin workouts for a 10 round engagement with Charley Massera of Pittsburgh at the Coliseum a week from tomorrow. Promoter Maurice Rivkin hoped to interst Al Ettore in accepting the contest with Louis in case Al defeated Massera in the 10 round fight on the Levinsky-Lasky card. Ettore's handlers said Louis' accomplishments as a professional boxer are known throughout the east and they would have to see Joe perform before accepting the assignment.

Art Lasky will box at the Stadium again on Dec. 28 if he whips Levinsky tomorrow. . . . Johnny Phagan, west side middleweight, is training in anticipation of boxing at Marigold gardens Monday and at Milwaukee Dec. 10. . . . Geno Salvatore, La Salle, Ill., lightweight, and Corn Griffin, Columbus, Ga., heavyweight, also are available for the Marigold windup. . . . Eddie Ward, former Golden Gloves lightweight king, expects to box Phil McQuillan in a four round preliminary.

Frank Battaglia went five rounds yesterday, three with Bill Treest, St. Charles, Ill., light heavyweight, and two with Jimmy Cummings, Chicago middleweight, for a 10 round bout against Karl Ogren at Arcadia Gardens next Tuesday. . . . Milt Aron, Dubuque, Ia., junior welterweight, has returned to the loop after a visit to his home for a supporting bout at the Arcadia. . . . Jackie Sharkey is making arrangements to go to Mexico City next week for a series of bouts there. . . . Dick Sisk, Brighton Park welterweight, and Al Grove will box the main event at Kent, O., Dec. 13.

Winfred [Moon] Mullins has gone to his home in Vincennes, Ind., for a couple of days. . . . Bob La Monte will motor to Rockford tomorrow morning for his feature combat against Billy Celebron in that city the same night. . . . Jerry Kucera and George Van Der Bosch sparred two rounds each yesterday with Tony Zale of Gary, Ind., for the latter's argument with Kid Leonard of East Moline at Peoria Monday. . . . Zale will head for Peoria Sunday. . . . Pete De Grasse, New York featherweight, moved to Washington, D. C., yesterday to prepare for a 10 round rumpus with Frank Covelli there Monday.

Jimmy Christy, Catholic Youth organization featherweight, and Dave Barry of Springfield, Ill., will clash for the second time at Midway arena Monday. . . . Mickey Beal and Oscar O'Hanion are matched in the six round semi-windup. . . . Preliminary affrays match George Van Der Heyden with Johnny Fitzpatrick and Joe Roman with Jim Richards. . . . A 10 round combat between Young Rightmire and Tommy Paul for Midway arena Dec. 3 was announced yesterday.

Augie Mandell vs. Sam Scoglio, [4].

Irish Johnny Golden vs. Gene Caggian., [4].

Watch Him Is Easy First in Bowie Feature

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Running his most powerful race of the fall season, Mrs. John D. Hertz's Watch Him today captured the Leonard Calvert purse at Bowie in a manner to make many think that he will go to the post one of the choices in the Bryan and O'Hara Memorial on Saturday.

Mrs. Walter M. Jefford's Commonwealth won the Horatio Sharpe purse, secondary feature, and now looms as the prohibitive favorite, with his stable mate, Firethorn, for the endurance handicap, companion piece of the week-end with the Bryan and O'Hara Memorial.

Card Draws 5,000.

Despite cloudy weather and a heavy mist, the track remained fast for the races, which were witnessed by the largest midweek crowd of the session. It was estimated that 5,000 saw the sport.

Watch Him was handled by Don Meade and gave him a double, as he had ridden Mrs. A. P. Doyle's Acautaw in the second. Driving on swiftly from the head of the stretch to the wire, Watch Him won by five lengths from Mrs. Payne Whitney's Soon Over, and returned 6 to 5. Soon Over got the place by two lengths over Bubblesome. Then in order finished Mad Frump, Deduce, and Silent Shot.

Meeting's Fastest Time.

Watch Him's time of 1:47 for the mile and a sixteenth was the fastest so far during the meeting, being four-fifths of a second faster than Identify turned in last Saturday when he beat Watch Him. Watch Him was third then.

K. OF C. BASKET LEAGUE TO OPEN PLAY ON SUNDAY

With nearly all its teams strengthened by the addition of stars from college, prep and independent ranks, the Knights of Columbus basketball league will open play Sunday with four games in the west division at the Community center, 4711 Madison street. The south side, whose games are to be played at White City, will open a week later.

Ten teams will compete in the west division, Cardinal having been admitted to membership. A change has also been made in the personnel of the south division, where Quigley has replaced Dowling, which dropped out this season after 15 years in the league.

Admission of a tenth team has necesssitated a shift in the opening west division schedule which has been revised as follows: Hughes vs. Setters, Lafayette vs. St. Cyr, Tonti vs. Barry, Carroll vs. Cardinal. St. Cyr is the present league champion, having won the title for the last two years.

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Max Baer, world's heavyweight champion, and his manager, Ancil Hoffman, en route to Chicago, stopped in El Paso today and announced that Jack Dempsey will promote the champion's next title fight in 1935.

4 SAILORS LOST AS LAKE SHIPS COLLIDE IN FOG

Freighter Sinks; Second Boat Back in Port.

Port Huron, Mich., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The battered freighter Edward E. Loomis arrived at its home port here tonight with 15 survivors of the steamer W. C. Franz, with which it collided in a deep fog on Lake Huron off Thunder Bay Island early today. The Franz sank with a loss of four lives.

The Loomis suffered a stove-in bow, but was not badly damaged below the water line. The disabled craft was accompanied by the coast guard cutter Cardigan.

Because the Loomis carries no wireless her owners, the Great Lakes Transit corporation, have had no report from the ship and had not been able to learn the names of the men drowned. The owners were in communication with the convoying coast guard cutter but did not learn many details of the collision.

The steamers collided in a heavy fog at a point given as 30 miles south by east from Thunder Bay Island and 17 miles east by southeast of Sturgeon Point light. It was believed from the somewhat vague and garbled messages received from other ships that the Loomis rammed the Franz.

The Franz was a 346 foot freighter, built in 1901 and registered in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. It was a steel screw steamer of 3,429 tons. Its owners were the Algoma Central and Hudson Bay railroad. The Franz had delivered a cargo of wheat at Port Colborne, Ont., and was upbound for another load of grain.

The Loomis, in command of Capt. Alex McIntyre, a veteran of the Great Lakes, has a gross tonnage of 4,279 and carries a crew of 31 men. She was built in 1900. Her home port is Buffalo.

YOUTH CROSSING STREET IS HURT FATALLY BY CAR

John Scarppetti, 18 years old, 3435 South Western boulevard, was fatally injured last night when he was struck by a south bound automobile at West 36th street and the boulevard. He died at St. Anthony's hospital.

Edward Galica, 174 West 147th street, Harvey, driver of the car, was not held. Witnesses told the police the accident was unavoidable.

Fred Lind Jr., 22 years old, quarter back on the Northwestern university football team, was bruised, and his mother, Mrs. Winifred Lind, 45 years old, 1336 Washington avenue, Wilmette, was seriously injured, in an automobile collision last night at Noyes street and Orrington avenue, Evanston.

Scarppetti's death and two others yesterday raised the 1934 Cook county motor toll to 1,114. The other victim:

Adolph Lozen, 51 years old, of 1300 East 93d street. Fatally injured when struck by a truck while crossing the street near East 92d street and University avenue. Charles Ouse, 27 years old, of 7026 South Michigan avenue, driver of the truck, was held for the inquest.

John Schimek, 42 years old, 1729 Washburne avenue, a peddler. Died in the county hospital of injuries suffered Nov. 19 when he was struck in front of 2011 West 13th street by a truck driven by Thomas Butler, 29 years old, 1808 West Roosevelt road. Butler was charged with speeding and reckless driving, and is free in bond awaiting trial Dec. 13.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

John Cummer, 18 years old, of 2505 Burling street, fifth member of a gang of youthful burglars who ran afoul of the law when their stolen car crashed Tuesday night, killing one of them, was captured last night and locked up at the Sheffield avenue police station.

Cummer, who was caught after leaving a moving picture theater near his home, admitted to Lieut. Stephen Barry that he had been in the custody of juvenile authorities a week ago, and released on parole.

He also admitted being involved with the others in the theft of the automobile of James J. Adams, 4320 Washington boulevard. The youth who was killed was William Russell, 2239 Seminary avenue, who was driving the stolen machine when it crashed into an electric light post near Wrightwood and Magnolia avenues.

NEEDLESS USE OF AUTO HORNS HIT BY COUNCIL

Police action against motorists who toot their horns unnecessarily was recommended by the city council yesterday. The aldermen adopted a resolution of Ald. John A. Massen [Forty-eighth] pointing out that the uniform trafic code prohibits the use of an automobile horn except to sound warning of danger.

In another resolution affecting trafic, offered by Ald. David L. Sutton [Eighth] the council directed the committee on trafic and public safety to investigate the feasibility of removing shrubbery that obstructs the view of drivers at intersections. The proposal is to prohibit trees or shrubs within twenty-five feet of a corner.

The council also adopted resolutions of condolence for the families of the late Justice Frederic R. De Young of the Illinois Supreme court and the late Albert R. [Al] Tearney, former alderman. The council voted to urge all citizens to participate in ceremonies on Dec. 4 commemorating the arrival on Chicago's site 257 years ago of Father Jacques Marquette.

The United Protest committee was granted leave to hold a parade on Saturday in demonstration against recent relief cuts, providing the American flag be displayed at the head and no posters or signs attacking the government be shown.

BROADWAY JONES AND BLONDE FACE LEAP QUIZ TODAY

Frank Lawrence, known as Broadway Jones, gambler and ex-convict, and his sweetheart, Dorothy Lawler, will be the main witnesses today when the coroner resumes the inquest into the death of Miss Lucille Louise Nolan, night club hostess.

Miss Nolan plunged 17 floors to her death from the Medinah club, 505 North Michigan avenue, on Nov. 14, as the climax of a party in Room 1703, at which Miss Lawler and Broadway Jones were present. The gambler and the blonde were questioned by police after the first session of the inquest had been closed, but were allowed to go free by the coroner's orders.

Jones and the girl both told stories indicating that Miss Nolan had ended her life when "Broadway" chose Miss Lawler as his paramour in preference to the cabaret girl, but there are obvious discrepancies in their stories which police want cleared up.

The coroner has also indicated he would investigate the narcotic peddling activities of Broadway Jones, who served a prison term for that offense. It was noted that Miss Nolan was a friend of one George Miller, who served a sentence in 1932 for narcotic law violations. Miller was arrested at that time at 1517 South Michigan avenue in room 420. Miss Nolan, who then worked at the Frolics night club, lived in room 411 at the same address.

J. M. KRALOVEC DIES; BOHEMIAN LEADER IN CITY

James Martin Kralovec, a former member of the board of education and a resident of Chicago for 60 years, died early yesterday in his home at 2107 South Ashland avenue, following a four month illness. Funeral services will be held Saturday at 1 p. m. from the Pilsen Turner hall, 1814 South Ashland avenue, and burial will be in the Bohemian National cemetery.

Mr. Kralovec was a leader in Chicago Bohemian affairs for nearly half a century. He was born in Bohemia Oct. 13, 1858, and came to Chicago in 1874 after receiving his grammar school education in his native town.

In Chicago Mr. Kralovec became a mason's apprentice and later a draftsman for an architectural concern. Returning from a two years' stay in Canada, he attended school and business college in Chicago and then formed a contracting firm with a brother in 1883. In 1905 he established an insurance business, which firm he continued to operate as J. M. Kralovec & Son until his death.

Mr. Kralovec was president of the Czechoslovak day at the Columbian exposition in 1893 and he was a member of the board of education from 1909 to 1911. He is survived by his widow, Mary; a daughter, Mrs. Lydia Truc, and four sons, George W., Edward M., Hugo J., and Arthur J., all of Chicago.

PERMITS 'MILLION DOLLAR BABY' TO LIVE IN NEW YORK

Myrtle Fahrney Saemann, 5 years old, the "million dollar baby" over whose custody her parents fought bitterly in court, may go with her father, Franklin I. Saemann, to live in New York. Permission was granted yesterday in an order issued by Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude.

A stipulation of the order is that Myrtle be returned to Chicago each year from June 25 to Sept. 1 to visit her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Fahrney, 400 North Euclid avenue, Oak Park, and her mother, Myrtle Fahrney, whom Saemann divorced in 1931. The child is heiress to part of the Fahrney fortune founded by Peter Fahrney, millionaire patent medicine manufacturer.

When the divorce was decreed Mrs. Saemann was granted permission to resume her maiden name and was given the child's custody. Later the child's custody was given to Saemann on the ground that her mother was physically unable to care for her. Yesterday's order was obtained by Attorney Frank E. Cantwell.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 21.—(AP)—Dr. Willem de Sitter, 62, noted professor of astronomy of Leyden university, died today of pneumonia. He was noted for his "empty universe" and then his "exploding universe" theories.

On March 22, 1932, they issued a joint statement "on the relation between the expansion and the mean density of the universe." The two scientists said the curvature of three-dimensional space may be positive, negative, or zero.

10 govt. issues.	107.31	106.97	108.34	108.16

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 21.—The listed bond market was fairly steady today. United States government issues rallied in quiet trading, closing up 10/32ds to off 3/32ds point. Home Owners' Loan corporation issues were strong, particularly the 4's due 1951, as the time is short if the bonds are to be called for redemption on Jan. 1 under the required 30 days' notice.

Utilities, Industrials Strong.

Public utility and industrial bonds showed the best strength in the domestic corporation group. Paramount Publix issues jumped 1⅝ to 3⅛ points on the news that the long awaited plan of reorganization has been about completed and will be submitted for court action.

Speculative railroad bonds, however, were reactionary, the principal losers including issues of Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific, and Chicago and North Western. Further gains were recorded by Interborough Rapid Transit liens on unification prospects.

Foreign Loans Higher.

Foreign loans moved irregularly higher in relatively quiet dealings. French and British government and most of the Scandinavian issues were strong. Japanese government loans were fractionally easier.

Transfers aggregated $10,858,000 par value against $12,232,000 on Tuesday, and of this amount the turnover in governments accounted for $2,030,000, compared with $2,770,000 the day before.

PALMER FINDS STATE INSURANCE ON HIGH PLANE

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—The insurance business in Illinois is being conducted today on a higher plane than it has ever been before, Ernest Palmer, state director of insurance, told Gov. Horner, in his annual report today.

The department as well was an important source of income to the state, the report showed. The division paid $6,248,309 into the state treasury in the year ended June 30 while its expenses were $366,994.

The report showed that there are 1,178 companies licensed to do business in the state. The department has on deposit $40,852,478 of securities owned by these companies as protection for policy holders. Licenses were issued to 74,399 agents, 9,987 brokers, and 3,559 sales, the report disclosed.

United Carbon.

Investors' Guide: Kindly give me information about United Carbon.—Mrs. D. J.

Answer: United Carbon company turns out about 27 per cent of the United States carbon black requirements. About 35 per cent of the company's dollar volume of business is sale of natural gas, which provides a steady volume of profits.

About 80 per cent of carbon black shipments is taken by the tire industry, the remainder being purchased by manufacturers of printing inks, paints and other materials using pigments.

On Jan. 1, 1934, the price of carbon black was advanced 1 cent a pound. Since the company normally sells about 54 million pounds a year, the increase in dollar sales is substantial. The company has also been benefited by rising demand for its products.

Earnings for the first nine months of 1934 were more than twice as large as in the corresponding 1933 period. Since fourth quarter earnings are usually the best, there is a possibility that the company will establish a new high record for earnings this year.

For the first nine months net income was $988,000, or $2.53 per common share, against net of $480,000, or $1.05 per common share, for the corresponding 1933 period.

	Net sales.	Net Inc.	*Inc. per com. shr.
1933	$4,748,000	$636,000	$1.39
1932	3,416,000	146,000	.05
1931	3,230,000	†436,000	†1.43
1930	3,541,000	366,000	.58

*Preferred called July 2, 1934. †Loss.

Current assets on Sept. 30, 1934, including $788,000 cash, totaled $2,965,000 and current liabilities were $542,000. Capitalization consists solely of 370,127 shares of no par stock.

National Bellas Hess.

Investors' Guide: I would appreciate it if you would find out for me if common stock of National Bellas Hess [the original company] had any value on Jan. 20, 1933. My husband held 100 shares of it at the time of his death on the above date. The appraiser of the estate listed same at 75 cents. I do not believe that is correct.—Mrs. C. M.

Answer: On Jan. 20, 1933, stock of the old National Bellas Hess was quoted at a high of $1 a share and a low and close of 87½ cents a share.

NAME O'CONNELL RECEIVER FOR CENTRAL TRUST

Igoe and Flaherty Get Legal Job.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The Central Republic Trust company, former Dawes bank, which was taken over by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett Tuesday afternoon, yesterday was formally placed in receivership.

A bill for the dissolution of the Central Republic was filed by the state auditor in the Circuit court. Immediately thereafter Barrett went before Judge John Prystalski and obtained confirmation of the appointment of William L. O'Connell as receiver for the bank and an order empowering him to retain the law firm of Igoe & Flaherty as his attorneys in liquidating the assets of the bank.

Action Follows RFC Suit.

This action followed the Reconstruction Finance corporation action on Monday in filing a bill to collect double liability from Gen. Charles G. Dawes and the other 4,000 stockholders of the Central Republic. The RFC's suit did not necessitate a receivership for the bank, but the bill stated that the RFC understood that Auditor Barrett was about to place it in receivership.

The Central Republic Trust company (formerly called the Central Republic Bank and Trust company) ceased to do a deposit and loan business on Oct. 5, 1932, but since that time had limited its functions to liquidating assets securing its $90,000,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation and servicing its trusts, which now number about 3,500.

Under Receiver O'Connell, according to members of the state auditor's staf, these trust will gradually be turned over to other trust companies, the choice of trust company being made by the makers or beneficiaries of the trusts.

Receiver's Bond $500,000.

The bill for dissolution, a customary action in cases where the state auditor takes over a bank, was filed by the office of Attorney General Otto Kerner. Bond of $500,000 was set for Receiver O'Connell.

In addition to the state receiver for the bank the bill for collection of $100 per share from the holders of the bank's 140,000 shares calls for a federal equity receiver to handle the funds so collected.

The state receiver will concern himself entirely with liquidation of assets and payment of creditors. Inasmuch as practically all of the bank's 76 million dollars (book value) of assets are already in the hands of the RFC there will be no assets to liquidate and no creditors to pay.

The RFC has been doing its own liquidating through the officers of the Central Republic and is expected to continue that liquidation of assets through its own agents.

This liquidation affects hundreds of Chicago business men, home owners and other individuals who owe the Central Republic on the 76 millions of collateral which it still holds as security for the unpaid portion of the $90,000,000 loan.

Report in Auditor's Bill.

State Auditor Barrett's bill states that an examination of the bank, made after the close of business on Tuesday, showed that the resources carried on the books "were and are erroneous and do not correctly reflect the true value thereof."

Attachés of the auditor's office explained that this meant that the book value of $76,000,000 shown as the worth of the assets securing the RFC loan was greater than the actual market value of these assets.

The examination, the bill sets forth, also showed that "the capital stock had become impaired and said impairment cannot be made good"; that the bank "was operating with an insufficient portion of its assets in cash or readily convertible securities": that the business of the bank was being conducted in an unsafe manner, and the bank ceased to do a general banking business on Oct. 5, 1932.

Dollar, Pound Called Keys to World Stability

Much may be accomplished in the direction of world monetary stability and attendant confidence if the "practical parity" of the American dollar and British pound can be established definitly, Sir George Schuster, former finance minister for India, said here yesterday.

SIR GEORGE SCHUSTER.

"Something like a practical parity has existed for the last several months," said Sir George. "If this can be established, it will have an immense effect on general confidence throughout the world. It might even relieve the gold bloc countries of further uncertainties, and thus go a long way toward settling their difficulties."

Anglo-American Relations Good.

Sir George is of the opinion that feeling between Britain and the United States never has been better than it is today. Because of this condition, he feels there is a sound basis for a broad understanding between the two governments in matters of major importance to the future of the world.

Accompanied by Lady Schuster, Sir George is making a study of governmental policies and attendant conditions over the United States. He said he is not representing the British government in any way.

"I am here as one who regards the situation in the United States as one of the key points in the world situation and who wants to get an idea of it for himself," said Sir George. He and Lady Schuster left last night after making headquarters at the Drake hotel while visiting business leaders of Chicago. This is the first time he has been in sections of the country other than the east. The Schusters are to sail for England Dec. 21 after a swing west and back through the south.

Silent on New Deal.

Sir George declined to make any comment on New Deal policies. Last week in New York, however, he cited the need for absolute confidence in currency and referred to the British balancing of the budget to produce "confidence in public finance and the foundation of all our hopes and progress."

"All I can say is that the United States has vast problems to be met in the present situation, but that I am confident it will solve them," Sir George said.

This British financial authority has pointed out that currency devaluations have created potentialities for enormous expansion of credit, which, if realized, again may put bankers to the test as to whether they will apply the brakes in time to prevent another era of dangerous speculation and the depression which follows.

Guests at Reception.

Sir George and Lady Schuster were guests at a reception at the Tavern club yesterday afternoon given by the English Speaking union. Sir George spoke informally at the reception. He asserted that the economic policies of Great Britain and the United States differ so widely that it is difficult to compare them.

He said that Britain's return to the gold standard in 1925 increased her recovery difficulties and that following that the labor government tried some schemes which were not very successful. The United States may yet try some of those schemes of the Labor party, he added.

The present government in England, he continued, has established confidence in public and private enterprise and is doing all it can to encourage it. The British have not attempted anything as ambitious as is being tried in this country, but have made distinct forward steps, he declared.

Frederick Prince Arrives Today for Armour Meeting

Frederick H. Prince, chairman of the finance committee of Armour & Co., will arrive in Chicago this morning to attend the directors' meeting scheduled for tomorrow. Directors are expected to select a successor to the late President T. G. Lee. P. D. Armour III., a director and former vice president, and Philip L. Reed, executive vice president and treasurer of the company, are being prominently mentioned as likely choices.

LEVY 100% ASSESSMENT ON STOCKHOLDERS OF HARRIMAN NATL. BANK

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—A 100 per cent assessment has been levied against stockholders of the defunct Harriman National Bank and Trust company by the controler of the currency, the stockholders were advised today in a letter from Frederick V. Goess, receiver of the closed bank.

The assessment, which amounts to $100 a share, the par value of the stock, is payable Dec. 20. It totals $2,000,000, which equals the stated capital of the bank when it was closed for the bank holiday of March, 1933, never to reopen.

At the time of closing there existed an estimated deficiency of about $6,300,000 which has since increased to an estimated $9,000,000. A part of this deficiency has been met by a special settlement of $2,866,950 made by ten banks, nine of them members of the New York Clearing House association and one the successor of a former clearing house bank, in satisfaction of a suit brought by the government against the clearing house institutions to enforce an alleged pledge made by the association to support the Harriman.

GOLD CURRENCIES UNEASY IN DULL TRADING SESSION

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Continued uneasiness over the Belgian situation apparently reacted today on the gold bloc currencies in a dull foreign exchange market. Large offerings of belga in Paris late yesterday brought their quotation down to 3.5385 francs to the belga, very close to the gold shipping point, which is 3.5375. In the New York market the belga was unchanged at 23.32, 7 points below the gold point.

In London the cross-rate was 75.68 francs to the pound, against an overnight rate of 75.63, indicating a slight weakening of the franc, and in New York francs sold at 6.59 cents, unchanged from yesterday. Based on the old par of the franc the dollar was worth 59.45 cents, while calculated on the new par of the franc the dollar was valued at $1.0066.

Sterling in New York was quoted at $4.99½, up ⅞ of a cent, while in London the gold price was reduced 2 pence to 139 shillings, 5½ pence, putting the dollar equivalent of $84.77.

In New York the Swiss franc was off 1 point to 32.44, 1 point below the theoretical gold shipping point, while guilders were quoted at 67.60, 4½ points below the gold point, and unchanged from yesterday.

Additional shipments of gold previously engaged were reported by the federal reserve bank. A consignment of $11,406,900 arrived from France, and from India $1,276,800 gold was received.

INSISTS OIL CODE TURNS WORKERS TO COMMUNISM

Dallas, Tex., Nov. 21.—(AP)—Disrespect for the federal government arising from asserted inequitable application of the NRA oil code has led 2,000 unionized east Texas oil field workers to communism, P. B. Roberts, union organizer, told the Cole congressional oil inquiry today.

Membership of the union dropped from 13,000 to 11,000, Roberts said, with the 2,000 accepting communism because they believed the code operated in favor of property holders to their detriment. He said neither wages nor hours of workers had improved under it.

Power Output Highest Since January, 1931

Production of electricity in the United States last week rose to the highest level in nearly four years to a total of 1,691,046,000 kilowatt hours. The preceding peak was attained in the week ended Jan. 24, 1931 when output amounted to 1,712,786,000 kilowatt hours.

The total for the week was 4.6 per cent above the corresponding week of last year and .9 per cent greater than the 1,675,760,000 kilowatt hours reported for the preceding week, according to figures released yesterday by the Edison Electric Institute.

Chicago Output Higher.

In the Chicago district output was 1.2 per cent higher than the preceding week and .1 per cent above a year ago with a total of 102,997,000 kilowatt hours, Commonwealth Edison company announced.

The percentage figure shows improvement over a year ago, since output dropped at that time due to the closing of the Fair on Nov. 12, 1933. Weather comparisons with a year ago continue to be an unfavorable factor, the company says.

Week ended	1934.	1933.	Per Cent change.
Nov. 17	102,997,000	102,928,000	+0.1
Nov. 10	101,699,000	104,452,000	−2.6
Nov. 3	104,571,000	93,208,000	+6.4
Oct. 27	103,741,000	103,132,000	+0.6

Detail Regional Changes.

In New England last week the recent upward trend in power production was reversed when the region reported a decline of 3.5 per cent from a year ago. In the preceding week there was a gain of 1.1 per cent.

All other regions last week reported continued gains as follows: Middle Atlantic 3 per cent, against 1.9; central industrial 3.2, against 1.6; west central 1.3, against 4.6; southern states 15.6, against 11; Rocky mountain 5.6, against 3.1, and Pacific coast 2.9, against 5.1.

U. S. OFFICIALS ADVOCATE CASH SHIP SUBSIDY

Washington, D. C., Nov. 21.—(AP)—A cash subsidy was disclosed today to be what government officials now contemplate for submission to President Roosevelt for the future of the American merchant marine. At the same time there is a strong desire among them for retention of the present plan of aiding aviation through air mail contracts.

A departmental committee is working on recommendations as to the policy that should be adopted for the merchant marine. Another presidential commission is studying air transportation. Their recommendations will go to President Roosevelt for a final review before some phases are embodied in legislation.

Out of the ocean mail study is evolving a plan, which President Roosevelt favors, for abandoning the present indirect subsidy to the merchant marine through ocean mail contracts. In its place would be substituted one which would make flat gifts of government money for the maintenance of an adequate merchant marine.

STEEL OUTPUT AT BEST LEVEL IN FIVE MONTHS

Production Up 1.5% for Last Week.

Steel ingot output has risen to the highest level since June, with operations at 28½ per cent of capacity, a rise of 1½ points last week, according to the weekly review released yesterday by Iron Age. Steel specifications in Chicago are the highest in 21 weeks, the magazine says.

The rise in national operations was accomplished in spite of recessions at some producing centers. Expansion of iron and steel demand is gaining momentum, although still somewhat hesitant and irregular, the review states.

"Reaffirmation of present prices of pig iron and finished steel for the first quarter has had a salutary effect by removing uncertainty from the minds of buyers who were disposed to wait out the market," the journal says.

Expected to Boost Orders.

"This clarification of the atmosphere is counted on to accelerate the upward trend in iron and steel bookings which to date has been slow but increasingly consistent."

Farm equipment builders contributed a large part of the gain in specifications at Chicago, the report says. Most producing centers are reported to be receiving more support from the automobile industry, although the improvement is gradual due to deliberate moves by the industry in preparing for new models.

"Business in heavy iron and steel products is still measured largely by government expenditures," according to the survey. "Cast iron pipe makers have been operating at a good rate on PWA work since September. Structural steel work continues to fluctuate with the placing of large individual tonnages."

Fabricated Awards Lower.

Fabricated steel awards for the week are placed at 6,400 tons, or only half of the amount reported a week ago. It is said that bids on 21,000 tons of sheet steel piling for the Grand Coulee dam, Almira, Wash., are now under advisement at Washington. The journal reports the Norfolk and Western railroad has purchased 10,000 tons of rails.

Increases in operations included a rise of 2 points to 33 per cent at Chicago, 1 point to 24 per cent in the Philadelphia district, 2 to 32 in the valleys, and 5 to 37 in the Wheeling district. The rate was 3 points lower at 24 per cent in Buffalo, down 6 to 47 at Detroit, and off 8 to 17 in the south.

Steel scrap, measured by the magazine's composite price, has risen for the fifth consecutive week, moving to $10.33 a ton from $9.79. Composite prices for finished steel and pig iron are unchanged at 2.124 cents a pound and $17.90 a ton respectively.

Walgreen Net Profit Rises to $3 a Share

Net profit was $2,558,895, equal to $3 a share on the outstanding common stock after provision for dividends on the preferred shares. This was the best showing since 1929. Net income was $1,820,483, or $2.04 a share, in the preceding fiscal year.

At the same time President Walgreen disclosed that the chain is proceeding steadily with its expansion program. On Sept. 30 the company was operating 483 stores, an increase of 13 over the preceding year. Twenty-five to 30 more stores were to be opened between Sept. 30 and Dec. 31.

"We have been able to increase the number of our stores and factories during the year, pay our dividends, and at the same time strengthen our current position," President Walgreen told stockholders. The company closed the year with current assets of $10,498,939 and current liabilities of $2,606,376. This compared with $9,064,687 and $2,966,464, respectively, a year earlier.

The company paid $1,026,275, or $1 a share, in dividends during the last year. After these payments the net addition to surplus was $1,539,619, which brought the total to $5,557,275.

Changes in store operations resulted in the opening of 44 new stores and the closing or disposition of 31 units. Unsatisfactory units were weeded out.

ADVERTISING LINEAGE IN NEWSPAPERS RISES 3.3% DURING OCTOBER

Continuing its gains over every month of last year newspaper advertising volume in October showed an increase of 5,000,000 lines or 3.3 per cent over October, 1933, according to Advertising Age. The analysis is based upon reports of newspapers in 80 cities.

Financial advertising turned upward with an increase of 8.8 per cent, the total for the month being 2,550,000 lines, against 2,342,000 a year ago. Classified advertising during the month rose 4.5 per cent or nearly a million lines to 22,772,000.

Retail advertising advanced from 86,279,000 lines in October, 1933, to 92,916,000 last month, a gain of 6.5 per cent. General advertising rose from 27,946,000 to 30,722,000, an increase of 9.9 per cent. Automotive advertising dropped during the month after showing large gains earlier in the year. The total for the month was 5,246,000 lines, down 15.2 per cent.

Willard Re-elected B. & O. President for 25th Time

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Daniel Willard was reëlected president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad today for the twenty-fifth time. Other officers also were reëlected. Since taking office Mr. Willard has guided what was formerly an organization controled by the Pennsylvania railroad into a position as one of the four great eastern trunk lines with trackage extending from New York to Kansas City.

AM. TELEPHONE MAINTAINS $9 DIVIDEND RATE

Quarter's Payment About $42,000,000.

Directors of the American Telephone and Telegraph company yesterday declared the regular quarterly dividend of $2.25, thereby maintaining the regular $9 annual rate. While it was generally expected that the company would maintain its annual rate, there had been talk in financial circles that because of adverse factors affecting the company the rate might be reduced.

American Telephone has about 700,000 stockholders—the largest number of any corporation in the world—and the payment which will be made Jan. 15 to stockholders of record Dec. 15 will mean a distribution of about 42 million dollars.

Has Maintained Rate.

The phone company giant has continued through the depression without cutting its rate, although in the last few years revenues have declined, necessitating the dipping into surplus to make up the deficiency. Net earnings as shown for the last two years fell short of dividends by $54,655,000 in 1933 and $45,695,000 in 1932. These sums were charged against surplus.

Giving consideration to the loss of Western Electric company in 1933, the net income of the system was about $68,400,000 less than dividends paid, and in 1932 it was $58,300,000 less. Subsidiary companies making dividend payments to the parent organization did not as a whole earn them by about $23,571,000 in 1933 and $22,400,800 in 1932.

There has been some improvement in the company's business recently, including gains in the number of telephone installations and in the volume of long distance messages.

Deficiency Indicated.

Earnings for the first nine months of 1934 have been at the rate of $4.32 a share, indicating a substantial deficiency again this year in meeting the regular dividend requirements.

Since the last dividend was declared, the dividend rate on stock of Bell Telephone company of Pennsylvania has been reduced from an $8 to a $6 annual rate.

Reports have been current that the directors of the Illinois Bell Telephone company at their meeting scheduled for Nov. 28 may put the stock back on a dividend basis. After paying its first quarter dividend the company suspended payments due to a Supreme court decision involving a rebate of around $20,000,000, including interest, to subscribers. Payment of the regular $8 rate on Illinois Bell stock means about 64 cents a share annually on American Telephone stock.

STOCKS MOVE IRREGULARLY; RAILS HEAVY

A. T. & T. Dividend Action Aids Utility List.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 21.—The stock market continued to move sidewise today on what the brokerage house fraternity is fond of referring to as its trading shelf. Pressure on the utilities was lifted but the railroad group had its troubles and a scattering of miscellaneous and preferred shares were sold without any particular compunction. The result was an irregular closing of pretty much the same pattern as that which has gone into the overnight record on the last three or four sessions.

American Telephone which has been in the market spotlight for the last couple of weeks responded to the declaration of its regular dividend by an advance of a point. That gave some of the outstanding selling targets, groups and individual issues alike a little respite, although liquidation of railroad issues continued in intermittent fashion throughout the afternoon.

Trafic Figures Adverse.

Poor figures on last week's trafic operations are the road's chief source of embarrassment marketwise. Union Pacific sold down 2 points and Atchison sagged about half as far. New Haven common and preferred dipped to new lows for the year.

In the case of utilities the statistics on power and light output showing an increase of about 5 per cent over the corresponding week of last year, although slightly under the level of last week, brightened the picture mildly. Other midweek trade news was mildly reassuring.

Many traders however are "sold" on the idea that a period of adjustment at this stage of the market was to be expected and so continue to remain on the sidelines. Thus the volume continues to dwindle, today's turnover amounting to only about 870,000 shares, compared with yesterday's total of 970,000.

Auto Shares Easy.

General Motors had the benefit of some fresh buying in the forenoon, but the orders dried up around the turn of the day and the stock closed slightly lower. Auburn sagged about a point and some of the other stocks of the group found the going rather difficult. Some of the chemicals looked well and the foods showed a disposition to firmness. Beech-Nut sold to a new high on its extra dividend.

Trading in metals was mixed. Liggett & Myers fetched the best prices in four years but the tobacco group was not responsive to the print.

Freight Trafic Figures Vary on Different Roads

Freight trafic last week as reported by leading carriers so far shows no definite trend. Following are the car loadings for the week with comparisons for the preceding week and the corresponding week of 1933:

CORN ADVANCES CENT A BUSHEL; WHEAT STEADY

Yellow Cereal Routs Tuesday's Selling.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Corn advanced a cent a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday, while wheat, after a day of nervous price fluctuations, closed at approximately the same prices as the preceding day. The feature of the market was the resumption in the rise in corn, which was temporarily halted Tuesday by a wave of profit selling.

Yesterday's receipts of corn in the Chicago market were reported at 109 cars, of which only 20 cars came directly from the country and the balance represented shipments from other terminal markets.

Country Sales Light.

In former years of normal crops the receipt of 1,000 cars of corn in this market daily was not unusual at this season. Today, however, farmers are selling what corn they can spare to other farmers who are willing to pay the price and the country is shipping very little to market.

Trading in all grains was fairly active yesterday. Oats and rye moved higher with corn, which is now the market leader rather than wheat. Oats were bid up about ½ cent a bushel, while gains in rye extended up to 1 cent. Closing prices on May futures were:

Wheat	$ .97⅞	$ .98	$ .99⅛
Corn	.85¼	.84⅛	.82⅞
Oats	.50⅛	.49⅜	.49⅜
Rye	.75¼	.74⅛	.73⅜

Commercial users of corn are tapping reserve supplies and are not replenishing stocks as they go along because of prevailing prices. Chicago corn handlers can't compete in the country for the available supply because of their inability to dispose of it at the current prices. The reported sales of 390,000 bushels of corn yesterday for shipment east represented only a transfer and no real change of ownership, it was learned.

Wheat Action Nervous.

The action in wheat yesterday was one of fits and starts. Cabled dispatches that France is preparing to dump 73,000,000 bushel surplus accumulated through years of government control were sufficient to cause unsettlement early in the day. Later denials that the French cabinet had arrived at any decision on wheat policy served to allay the nervousness. Prices, however, were lower most of the day, with quotations changing in rapid order. Shortly before the close wheat rallied on the strength of developments in the corn pit and closed virtually unchanged.

Despite official denials of any change in the French policy of price control it was felt that the country is about ready to junk the control plan. The 73,000,000 bushels represents the total that the government must take over from the farmer under the present production agreement. Already between 8 and 10 million bushels of French wheat have been sold abroad by means of export subsidies. It is believed unlikely that the government will be able to continue to finance this costly method of forcing her wheat on the world market.

Quality Low Grade.

French wheat is of a low grade variety and the only probable use for it in this country would be for feed. If it was imported as feed wheat it would be subject only to a 10 per cent duty rather than the straight 42 cents a bushel tarif on milling grade wheat.

Several factors are forcing a reversal of French policy. Aside from the expense of the present plan it has tended to reduce consumption in France because of the high domestic price prevailing. Two bumper French wheat crops in succession have upset the caculations for controling production and prices.

REORGANIZATION OF PARAMOUNT PUBLIX PROPOSED

New York, Nov. 21.—[Special.]—A plan of reorganization for the Paramount Publix corporation which would end the bankruptcy in which the company was placed early last year has been developed by the three major committees of security holders and creditors. It will be submitted to the United States District court for approval.

The plan calls for the formation of a new company which would issue its securities for claims of creditors as well as for outstanding securities of the present company. Holders of the present 5½ per cent bonds of Paramount Publix and 6 per cent bonds of Paramount Famous-Players Lasky corporation together with the general creditors of the corporation would be paid for their claims 50 per cent in new 20 year 6 per cent debentures, and the other 50 per cent in new cumulative convertible $6 dividend first preferred stock.

Common stockholders would receive for each present share one-quarter share of new common stock plus a warant bearing the right to subscribe for a period of sixty days at $2 for one unit consisting of one-quarter share of new common stock and one-fiftieth of a share of new cumulative convertible $6 dividend second preferred stock.

Sinclair Defeat Permits Bonds to Sell at Premium

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 21.—[Special.]—Los Angeles county today was successful in selling a $5,000,000 block of Flood Control District bonds for which no bidders appeared Oct. 8, the date set for sale, during the Upton Sinclair governorship campaign. The bonds, drawing 5 per cent interest and running from 1935 to 1964, were purchased by the county at that time and today were sold to R. H. Moulton & Co. on a bid of par, accrued interest, and premium of $103,535.

JAMES H. GRIER TO DIRECT PWA HOUSE BUILDING

Name Chicago Engineer Project Manager.

BY AL CHASE.

James H. Grier, Chicago construction engineer, will have direct charge of the erection of the $12,500,000 PWA housing project on the southwest side and will probably also supervise the construction of the proposed $7,000,000 apartment group for colored families on the south side. His appointment as project manager was announced yesterday by F. J. C. Dresser, Chicago administrator for the housing division of the PWA.

JAMES H. GRIER.

Mr. Grier, who was born at Lake Geneva, Wis., is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin. For twelve years he was locating and construction engineer of the Chicago and North Western and the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroads.

For twelve years he was general superintendent and manager in the general contracting field and for several more years was special engineer and construction superintendent for New York Central lines in Chicago.

Office in Bank Building.

Mr. Grier's first project office will be in the First Italian State bank building, at the southwest corner of Taylor and Racine, the site of the first of the contemplated three Chicago slum reclamation projects.

Roger Steffan, director of modernization credits of the Federal Housing administration, Washington, D. C., discussed the federal repair program with fifty Chicago bankers at a meeting yesterday at the Federal Reserve bank.

Later he told newspaper men that "the bankers are awaiting loans with open arms." He said he believed the reason Chicago was lagging behind most of the large cities in FHA activities was the local tax problem.

Change in Loan Rules.

Mr. Steffan announced a change in the "Title One" rules regarding loans. Persons may now borrow up to $2,000 on vacant land for the erection of summer homes, bungalows or other structures.

Heretofore borrowers could only get loans for repair of completed buildings. He also said banks are now to be given more leeway in the matter of incomes of borrowers. Formerly, the person seeking credit could only borrow an amount equal to one-fifth of his annual income. Now it is left with the bank to decide the amount.

LARD FUTURES SHOW NET GAINS OF 15 TO 20 POINTS

A sharp upturn in the hog and corn markets brought increased commission house buying yesterday and a higher level of prices for lard. The latter was dull early, but the surplus in the pit was gradually absorbed by cash interests and later there was little for sale. Final trades were at the top, and only slightly under the best levels of the season. Net gains on lard were 15 to 20 points. Bellies were 5 points higher to 2½ points lower. Cash trade was reported as relatively slow. Cash lard finished at 10.40 cents; loose and leaf at 10¼ cents and bellies at 14¼ cents per pound. Prices follow:
